Army Plans To Slash Guard, Reserve Units

8 Divisions May Shrink To Brigades

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Army moved Wednesday to regroup its Reserves drastically by reducing four National Guard and four Reserve infantry divisions into brigades and setting up a ready-to-fight force of six National Guard divisions.

The plan, which is subject to review by Congress, contains political dynamite because it treads on state pride and traditions linked to some of the units to be broken up

NAME UNITS

The Army announced that four National Guard infantry divisions to be reconstituted into independent brigades are: the 34th of Iowa and Nebraska, the 35th of Kansas and Missouri, the 43rd of Connecticut, Rhode Island and Vermont, and the 51st of Florida and South Carolina.

Four Reserve divisions to be disbanded and their manpower reorganized in the same manner are: the 79th of Pennsylvania, Delaware and Maryland; the 94th of Massachusetts, the 96th of Arizona, Idaho, Montana, Washington, Nevada and Utah; and the 103rd of Iowa, Minnesota and Wisconsin.

The Army did not disclose the identity of the six priority divisions which will be tagged for call-up first in event of a future emergency.

It was believed four of them would be the 26th Infantry of Massachusetts, the 28th of Pennsylvania and two National Guard divisions now on active duty—the 32nd Infantry of Wisconsin and the 49th Armored of Texas.

The top-priority, six-division force, intended to back up the 16 regular Army divisions, will be maintained at 75 to 80 per cent of strength as compared to 52 to 78 per cent in the past.

ORAL DEPOSITIONS

U.S. Attorney To Be Queried On Rights Suit

By MARY ANNE CORPIN
World Staff Writer

Citizens' Council attorney W. M. Shaw of Homer said Wednesday that he will question U.S. Attorney General Robert Kennedy to find out the reasons behind a civil rights lawsuit against his clients.

Federal District Judge Ben C. Dawkins Jr., in an unprecedented move at Monroe, gave Shaw permission to take oral depositions from Kennedy, Assistant Atty. Gen. Burke Marshall who heads the Civil Rights Division, and two Justice Department officials.

Kennedy filed a lawsuit against Citizens' Council members and Ouachita Registrar of Voters Mrs. Mae Lucky, charging that they discriminated against Negroes.

Council members filed challenges against Negro registered voters, and Mrs. Lucky removed them from the voting rolls.

CHALLENGED

However, Dawkins said yesterday that the records to date indicate that 10,543 whites and 5,548 Negroes were challenged. "This certainly does not indicate any pattern of discrimination according to race. I don't know if these facts are true or not. I can't find out about what is or is not truth until we have a trial.

FBI agents investigated the Ouachita Registrar's office in 1956, but no charges were made until Kennedy filed the lawsuit some five years later.

Dawkins pointed out yesterday that Kennedy and his aides also have permission to file motions objecting to the questioning.

Apparently he expects the Attorney General to file objections, but said that whether he will overrule them or not depends on "what sort of objections they will raise. The original order may be modified later on.

"My decision allowing the questioning is based on law," said the judge.

Shaw, at Dawkins' suggestion, will give Kennedy 30-days notice before taking the depositions.

"What we're interested in knowing," said Shaw, "is first of

U.S. Seeks Voter Rolls Court Order

Bossier, Webster Parish Officials Latest Targets

SHREVEPORT, La. (AP) — The U.S. Justice Department asked U.S. District Court here Wednesday to order Bossier and Webster Parish registrars to produce their records for inspection.

Louis Padgett, district attorney for both parishes, called the request "undue harassment" of the registrars. He recommended that the registrars refuse to voluntarily submit their records.

ACTION BASIS

The Justice Department said its action was based on information it had "tending to show that distinctions on the basis of race or color have been made with respect to registration and voting within your jurisdiction."

It said it wanted to examine the records to determine whether there had been violation of federal law.

Padgett said both registrars had voluntarily submitted their records to inspection of federal agents in April, 1961.

In a letter to the Justice Department, Padgett said the registrars "instructed me to advise you that there has been no discrimination in the registration of voters in these two parishes, and that they do not intend to again submit voluntarily to intrusion their affairs by the federal government."

He added that since April of last year, "in Bossier Parish only 14 persons who have applied for registration have failed to qualify. Nine of these are Negroes and five are white. I am certain the situation is approximately the same in Webster Parish."

Walker Says Reds Aided By Official

Names Defense Chief's Aide In Probe Testimony

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Former Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker charged Wednesday night that a special assistant to Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara had a "close connection" with communism and "his activities have aided communism."

Walker also told Senate investigators that the McNamara aide, Adam Yarmolinsky, a former Washington lawyer, played a big part in his removal last year as commander of the 24th Infantry Division in Germany.

CITES RECORD

Yarmolinsky, asked for comment on Walker's reference to "aiding communism," said: "My whole public record points in the opposite direction."

Under questioning by Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., Walker further testified that Arthur Sylvester, assistant defense secretary for public affairs, had a hand in his ouster from the post in Germany.

He said Sylvester, former Washington correspondent for the Newark, N.J., Evening News, was a reporter on a newspaper which favored abolishing the House Committee on Un-American Activities and the Senate internal security subcommittee. He said Sylvester also was against the FBI.

Walker testified before the Senate subcommittee investigating alleged military muzzling and troop indoctrination programs. He traced most of his troubles to the "pro-blue" program he instituted while commander of the 24th Division in Germany.

The 52-year-old Texan, now seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in his state, charged that he was removed from his European command by a government "apparatus" devoted to ousting "militant anti-Com-

Federal Tax On Pleasure Boats Asked

Kennedy Urges New Revenue To Spur Recreation

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy has proposed a stiff tax on pleasure boats and other new revenue measures to finance the purchase of land and water areas for public recreation.

Kennedy sent Congress a bill on Wednesday to carry out his recommendation that the government create land conservation fund to expand existing recreational resources to meet present and future needs.

SENDS MESSAGE

In an accompanying message, Kennedy noted that Americans have traditionally considered the outdoors as free.

"In fact, however, outdoor recreation programs have been supported through a combination of general revenues and special levies such as national park admissions, fishing and hunting stamps and licenses, and federal excise taxes on fishing tackle and sporting arms and ammunition," the President said.

Kennedy had discussed methods of paying for additional land for outdoor recreation in his conservation message to Congress a month ago.

The bill recommends these specific courses:

—An annual federal tax on pleasure boats amounting to $5 for boats from 14 to 16 feet in length plus $2 for each additional foot. For one the size of the 92-foot presidential yacht "Honey Fitz" this would come to $157. Altogether, the Interior Department estimates this new charge would bring in about $45 million a year.

—Fees for the use of federal land and water recreation areas. One plan under consideration is the sale of automobile stickers for $2 or $3 to pay for admission to federal recreation areas on an unlimited number of occasions throughout a year. At $2, the revenue would total between $20 and $25 million. Few federal parks

Kennedys Plan Trip To Brazil

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Wednesday expressed "great interest" in a plan to end all foreign ownership of Brazil's public utilities as he ended two days of cordial talks with Brazilian President Joao Goulart.

Kennedy also announced that he will return Goulart's visit later this year. The First Lady will accompany him.

In a joint communique the two Presidents issued following their final round of talks, Goulart said his government would return public utilities to Brazilian ownership but under "the principle of fair compensation with reinvestment in other sectors."

"President Kennedy expressed great interest in this approach," the communique said.

Goulart, according to the communique, "stated the intention of his government to maintain conditions of security which will permit private capital to perform its vital role in Brazilian economic development."

The two leaders discussed at some length plans for what the communique described as "large-scale United States support of the Brazilian government's program for development of the northeast of Brazil." This is a depressed and drought-stricken area, the improvement of which the United States is ready to contribute something over $130 million to about $145 million by Brazil.

After the final meeting, Kennedy told reporters he was "looking forward to visiting" Goulart before year's end. No date for the trip was mentioned.

Five Hurt In Crash Of Diesels

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Five train crewmen were injured on Wednesday in a violent collision of two Pennsylvania Railroad diesel engines near Harmarville, about 10 miles northeast of here along the Allegheny river.

Fifteen cars were derailed and two engines of each of the three-unit diesels which were towing a total of 145 freight cars. Two of the cars were submerged in a coal company canal and one overturned on Route 28, blocking one lane of the busy highway between Pittsburgh and New Kensington.

The eastbound freight with 97 cars, 90 of them loaded, was en route from the PRR's Conway, Pa., yards west of here to Baltimore, Md. The westbound freight with 48 cars, 20 of them loaded, was en route from the PRR's Enola yard near Harrisburg, Pa., to Conway.

Charles W. Miller, 64, Pittsburgh, engineer of the eastbound freight, was reported in satisfactory condition at Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, Pa. He was the most seriously injured with a fractured left leg and abrasions.

'Phone Service Disrupted By Lightning Bolt

ABILENE, Tex. (UPI) —A bolt of lightning struck a buried transcontinental coaxial cable near Abilene Wednesday, disrupting telephone, teletype and television service for several hours.

The lightning bolt tore a hole in the ground and ruptured the cable on a farm about seven miles east of Abilene, a spokesman for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company said. The rupture knocked out 2,940 circuits of a main transcontinental coaxial route.

It interrupted long distance telephone service to California for several hours.

The break occurred at 4:12 p.m. EST. The telephone company spokesman said that by 8 p.m. EST, 65 per cent of the service had been restored. Some of the circuits were rerouted around Kansas City, the spokesman said.

Telephone crews located the break late in the day and began splicing the cable. The spokesman said full service was to be restored by 9:30 p.m. EST. Normal operation was scheduled by Thursday morning.

Seven Slain By Algerian Secret Army

ALGIERS (UPI) — European Secret Army Organization (OAS) terrorists struck with mortar shells and explosives in three attacks on crowded Moslem sections of Algiers Wednesday in an apparent new drive to provoke Moslems into violence that could upset the cease-fire in Algeria.

Authorities said at least seven persons were killed and 21 wounded in the attacks.

Three Moslems were killed and at least 17 wounded — most of them women and children — when the OAS lobbed five 60-millimeter mortar shells into a Moslem area of the Algiers working class suburb of Belcourt.

Five mortar shells Wednesday night fell in the Casbah, the historic Moslem quarter and a heavy explosion rocked Belcourt.

Violence throughout the country left at least 11 persons dead and wounded 27, and raised the unofficial 1962 terrorist casualty toll to 3,402 dead and 7,283 wounded.

The Belcourt shelling touched off panic among Moslems in the area. An angry crowd of several thousand massed in the narrow streets and the army sent armored cars and half-tracks to the scene.

But Moslem provisional government agents quickly intervened to calm the throng and prevent any reprisal action against Europeans. The provisional government has urged the Moslem population not to be provoked into violence that could bring the French army into action on the side of the OAS.

Police said at least eight children and six women were among those wounded in the attack.

The mortar shelling followed an attack on a police station in the Algiers suburb of El Bair by 15 OAS commandos who tied up the duty officer and a policeman. Their only loot was two automatic pistols.

STATE GRADE SCHOOLS

Solon Proposes Sex Segregation

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— A state representative said Wednesday he would introduce a bill at the legislature's May session to segregate sexes in Louisiana's elementary and secondary schools.

The proposal, said state Rep. Rodney Buras, would apply to both private and public schools, but he did not elaborate.

Buras offered the proposal in the wake of federal District Judge J. Skelly Wright's ruling Tuesday expanding public school desegregation through the sixth grade.

OTHERS UNCERTAIN

Other lawmakers were uncertain as to what path would be followed to combat, or delay the order. Those willing to discuss the matter generally voiced disappointment.

New Orleans Mayor Victor H. Schiro, elected to a full term in Tuesday's general election, said he would meet with the Orleans Parish legislative delegation to discuss what action could be taken to cope with the decision.

Schiro, critical of the ruling, said the decision "was a disservice to the community. We were going about the problem in a very intelligent, sensible way, but this decision seems to have carried us to a little disruption.

"Inasmuch as Mr. Wright was leaving New Orleans for another assignment, he should have left this decision, or any future decision, to his successor," Schiro said.

City councilman James A. Comiskey said he believed the school board should seek a rehearing in federal district court.

"It appears to me Judge Skelly

Judge Wright Challenged By Segregationist

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A Louisiana segregationist and legislative leader challenged U. S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright Wednesday to enforce his order outlawing limited stairstep integration in New Orleans schools.

Wright ruled Tuesday that the Louisiana pupil placement law is illegal, and ordered New Orleans public schools to admit children without regard to race from the first through the sixth grades.

"Judge Wright, you have made your decision; now, let's see you enforce it," state Rep. John S. Garrett said. Garrett is chairman of the Louisiana Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation.

New Orleans, as well as other Southern cities, has integrated by putting a limited number of Negro students into selected white public elementary schools in the first grade. An additional grade a year is integrated.

Municipal Elections Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For most of the candidates, the Democratic nomination will be tantamount to election. Only scant Republican opposition is expected in a few cities.

Some of the larger cities in the state holding primaries will be West Monroe, Crowley, Kenner, Opelousas, Harahan, Houma, Ruston, Winnfield, Pineville, Minden and DeRidder.

Lelon C. Swanner and L. O. Tait are fighting for the mayoralty nomination at Jonesboro while veteran Mayor Leon Gary of Houma has drawn opposition from Butley Mahler and Conrad Picou.

In the Town of Homer in north Louisiana, the candidates for mayor are C. G. Dowies and J. D. Walthall. Harahan's mayoralty opponents are Thomas F. Donelon and James Alexis.

Giant Nova Moon Rocket Described

NEW YORK (AP) — A space rocket as tall as a 36-story building — the one that may carry three Americans to the moon in 1970—was described Wednesday by a U.S. space agency engineer.

The rocket is called Nova — a three-stage monster standing about 360 feet tall with its moonship payload, and 50 feet in diameter at its base.

So reported Alfred G. Orillion of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration before a meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

The first stage of Nova, carrying six million pounds of propellant and standing 115 feet high, will produce a thrust or push of more than 12 million pounds.

The second stage, also 115 feet high, would have a two-million-pound push. The third stage, standing 82 feet high, will have one or more one-million-pound thrust engines.

That's a total of some 15 million pounds of thrust — enough to carry three men in the Apollo space craft to the moon and back. It dwarfs the Atlas rocket used to boost John H. Glenn Jr. into orbit. The Atlas stands about one-fourth as high as Nova and develops only 360,000 pounds of thrust.

Development of the Nova rocket begins this year and should have its first test flight perhaps as early as 1966, said Orillion, of NASA's George C. Marshall Space Flight Center.

Before Nova will come the Saturn line of rockets. The first-generation Saturn, called C-1, will stand 180 feet high with its spacecraft. Its first stage, with around 1½ million pounds of thrust, was tested for the first time last October, had a successful mission, and will be tested again this spring.

Army Sets Up Radar In Berlin

BERLIN (UPI) — The U.S. Army, determined to keep Soviet military vehicles from speeding into West Berlin, Wednesday set up a radar control post at a checkpoint opposite the Communist dividing wall.

American authorities are laying the groundwork for a possible protest to the Soviet against violation of traffic laws by its vehicles, reliable sources said.

Meanwhile, West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt demanded freer movement for Berliners through the Communist wall and said Germans never could accept East German control of access between West Berlin and West Germany.

NUCLEAR TESTING

Huge Pacific Test Area Is Designated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission set aside Wednesday a huge testing area in the Pacific Ocean in case the United States decides to resume nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

The commission said establishment of the 600-mile wide, 800-mile long area surrounding Christmas Island will become effective April 15 "in preparation for such actual tests as may be ordered later in the month."

"The establishment of the area," the AEC announcement said, "is part of the preparations for testing which are going forward. A preparatory measure which the United States has always considered essential for the public safety in any test series is public warning several weeks in advance to mariners, aviators, and others who might be in or plan to use the testing area.

"The purpose is to assure that every person, even in remote places with infrequent communications, is warned well in advance of the proposed tests to remain clear of the area."

The AEC said official notices to mariners and aviators are being issues through normal operational channels.

Christmas Island, a big atoll more than 1,000 miles south of Hawaii in a lonely section of the Pacific, is under British control.

A joint announcement was made by this country and the British Feb. 9 of an agreement under which the United States might use the island for the nuclear tests. President Kennedy has said such trials in the atmosphere will be ordered late this month unless the Soviet Union agrees in the meantime to a satisfactory treaty banning further tests.

Municipal Elections Saturday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

For most of the candidates, the Democratic nomination will be tantamount to election. Only scant Republican opposition is expected in a few cities.

Some of the larger cities in the state holding primaries will be West Monroe, Crowley, Kenner, Opelousas, Harahan, Houma, Ruston, Winnfield, Pineville, Minden and DeRidder.

Lelon C. Swanner and L. O. Tait are fighting for the mayoralty nomination at Jonesboro while veteran Mayor Leon Gary of Houma has drawn opposition from Butley Mahler and Conrad Picou.

In the Town of Homer in north Louisiana, the candidates for mayor are C. G. Dowies and J. D. Walthall. Harahan's mayoralty opponents are Thomas F. Donelon and James Alexis.

Five Hurt In Crash Of Diesels

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — Five train crewmen were injured on Wednesday in a violent collision of two Pennsylvania Railroad diesel engines near Harmarville, about 10 miles northeast of here along the Allegheny river.

Fifteen cars were derailed and two engines of each of the three-unit diesels which were towing a total of 145 freight cars. Two of the cars were submerged in a coal company canal and one overturned on Route 28, blocking one lane of the busy highway between Pittsburgh and New Kensington.

The eastbound freight with 97 cars, 90 of them loaded, was en route from the PRR's Conway, Pa., yards west of here to Baltimore, Md. The westbound freight with 48 cars, 20 of them loaded, was en route from the PRR's Enola yard near Harrisburg, Pa., to Conway.

Charles W. Miller, 64, Pittsburgh, engineer of the eastbound freight, was reported in satisfactory condition at Citizens General Hospital, New Kensington, Pa. He was the most seriously injured with a fractured left leg and abrasions.

Seven Slain By Algerian Secret Army

ALGIERS (UPI) — European Secret Army Organization (OAS) terrorists struck with mortar shells and explosives in three attacks on crowded Moslem sections of Algiers Wednesday in an apparent new drive to provoke Moslems into violence that could upset the cease-fire in Algeria.

Authorities said at least seven persons were killed and 21 wounded in the attacks.

Three Moslems were killed and at least 17 wounded — most of them women and children — when the OAS lobbed five 60-millimeter mortar shells into a Moslem area of the Algiers working class suburb of Belcourt.

Five mortar shells Wednesday night fell in the Casbah, the historic Moslem quarter and a heavy explosion rocked Belcourt.

Violence throughout the country left at least 11 persons dead and wounded 27, and raised the unofficial 1962 terrorist casualty toll to 3,402 dead and 7,283 wounded.

The Belcourt shelling touched off panic among Moslems in the area. An angry crowd of several thousand massed in the narrow streets and the army sent armored cars and half-tracks to the scene.

But Moslem provisional government agents quickly intervened to calm the throng and prevent any reprisal action against Europeans. The provisional government has urged the Moslem population not to be provoked into violence that could bring the French army into action on the side of the OAS.

Police said at least eight children and six women were among those wounded in the attack.

The mortar shelling followed an attack on a police station in the Algiers suburb of El Bair by 15 OAS commandos who tied up the duty officer and a policeman. Their only loot was two automatic pistols.

STATE GRADE SCHOOLS

Solon Proposes Sex Segregation

NEW ORLEANS (AP)— A state representative said Wednesday he would introduce a bill at the legislature's May session to segregate sexes in Louisiana's elementary and secondary schools.

The proposal, said state Rep. Rodney Buras, would apply to both private and public schools, but he did not elaborate.

Buras offered the proposal in the wake of federal District Judge J. Skelly Wright's ruling Tuesday expanding public school desegregation through the sixth grade.

OTHERS UNCERTAIN

Other lawmakers were uncertain as to what path would be followed to combat, or delay the order. Those willing to discuss the matter generally voiced disappointment.

New Orleans Mayor Victor H. Schiro, elected to a full term in Tuesday's general election, said he would meet with the Orleans Parish legislative delegation to discuss what action could be taken to cope with the decision.

Schiro, critical of the ruling, said the decision "was a disservice to the community. We were going about the problem in a very intelligent, sensible way, and I believe this decision seems to have carried us to a little disruption.

"Inasmuch as Mr. Wright was leaving New Orleans for another assignment, he should have left this decision, or any future decision, to his successor," Schiro said.

City councilman James A. Comiskey said he believed the school board should seek a rehearing in federal district court.

Judge Wright Challenged By Segregationist

NEW ORLEANS (UPI)—A Louisiana segregationist and legislative leader challenged U. S. Dist. Judge J. Skelly Wright Wednesday to enforce his order outlawing limited stairstep integration in New Orleans schools.

Wright ruled Tuesday that the Louisiana pupil placement law is illegal, and ordered New Orleans public schools to admit children without regard to race from the first through the sixth grades.

"Judge Wright, you have made your decision; now, let's see you enforce it," state Rep. John S. Garrett said. Garrett is chairman of the Louisiana Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation.

New Orleans, as well as other Southern cities, has integrated by putting a limited number of Negro students into selected white public elementary schools in the first grade. An additional grade a year is integrated.

'Phone Service Disrupted By Lightning Bolt

ABILENE, Tex. (UPI) — A bolt of lightning struck a buried transcontinental coaxial cable near Abilene Wednesday, disrupting telephone, teletype and television service for several hours.

The lightning bolt tore a hole in the ground and ruptured the cable on a farm about seven miles east of Abilene, a spokesman for Southwestern Bell Telephone Company said. The rupture knocked out 2,940 circuits of a main transcontinental coaxial route.

It interrupted long distance telephone service to California for several hours.

The break occurred at 4:12 p.m. EST. The telephone company spokesman said that by 8 p.m. EST, 65 per cent of the service had been restored. Some of the circuits were rerouted around Kansas City, the spokesman said.

Telephone crews located the break late in the day and began splicing the cable. The spokesman said full service was to be restored by 9:30 p.m. EST. Normal operation was scheduled by Thursday morning.

Giant Nova Moon Rocket Described

NEW YORK (AP) — A space rocket as tall as a 36-story building — the one that may carry three Americans to the moon in 1970—was described Wednesday by a U.S. space agency engineer.

The rocket is called Nova — a three - stage monster standing about 360 feet tall with its moonship payload, and 50 feet in diameter at its base.

So reported Alfred G. Orillion of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration before a meeting of the Society of Automotive Engineers.

The first stage of Nova, carrying six million pounds of propellant and standing 115 feet high, will produce a thrust or push of more than 12 million pounds.

The second stage, also 115 feet high, would have a two-million-pound push. The third stage, standing 82 feet high, will have one or more one-million-pound thrust engines.

That's a total of some 15 million pounds of thrust — enough to carry three men in the Apollo space craft to the moon and back. It dwarfs the Atlas rocket used to boost John H. Glenn Jr. into orbit. The Atlas stands about one-fourth as high as Nova and develops only 360,000 pounds of thrust.

Development of the Nova rocket begins this year and should have its first test flight perhaps as early as 1966, said Orillion, NASA's George C. Marshall Space Flight Center.

Before Nova will come the Saturn line of rockets. The first-generation Saturn, called C-1, will stand 180 feet high with its spaceship. Its first stage, with around 1½ million pounds of thrust, was tested for the first time last October, had a successful mission, and another will be shot again this spring.

NUCLEAR TESTING

Huge Pacific Test Area Is Designated

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Atomic Energy Commission set aside Wednesday a huge testing area in the Pacific Ocean in case the United States decides to resume nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

The commission said establishment of the 600-mile wide, 800-mile long area surrounding Christmas Island will become effective April 15 "in preparation for such actual tests as may be ordered later in the month."

"The establishment of the area," the AEC announcement said, "is part of the preparations for testing which are going forward in the event that the United States should have to resume nuclear tests. A preparatory measure which the United States has always considered essential for the public safety in any test series is public warning several weeks in advance to mariners, aviators, and others who might be in or plan to use the testing area.

"The purpose is to assure that every person, even in remote places with infrequent communications, is warned well in advance of the proposed tests to remain clear of the area."

The AEC said official notices to mariners and aviators are being issues through normal operational channels.

Christmas Island, a big atoll more than 1,000 miles south of Hawaii in a lonely section of the Pacific, is under British control.

A joint announcement was made by this country and the British Feb. 9 of an agreement under which the United States might use the island for the nuclear tests. President Kennedy has said such trials in the atmosphere will be ordered late this month unless the Soviet Union agrees in the meantime to a satisfactory treaty banning further tests.

all what information the government might have in their files regarding the facts of the case.

"It's been over five years since these Citizens Council men challenged anyone. In five years your memory fades about specific things. Any memorandum or records these men had would long since have been lost.

"We want to know what the federal records say, and if they accuse any of the Council men of making an improper challenge.

"If they do, we will try to show that the challenge was proper."

Shaw said he plans to question Kennedy in Washington, "unless they have another place they prefer. We will try to minimize any inconvenience to them.

"I wrote to them in February asking to take the depositions. I tried to do it amicably, but they refused. It was necessary for me to get an order from the court to do it."

Dawkins said yesterday that his order to question Kennedy is unprecendented.

"This is the first time I know of that it has come up in exactly this same setting," said the U.S. District Judge.

However, Dawkins also granted Justice Department attorney Frank M. Dunbaugh "permission to file any protective objections they may have.

"So my order may be modified later on," he added.

Shaw will contact Dunbaugh today. Dunbaugh was delegated as go-between to arrange the meeting between Kennedy, Marshall, and St. John Barrett, second assistant with the Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department, and Shaw.

Dunbaugh who has investigated Ouachita registration rolls since 1960, also is under the court order to submit to questioning.

Dawkins said last night that actual trial of the discrimination case probably will be in August or September in Monroe.

The Judge commented on the case, saying the main thing which concerned him was why the Justice Department waited five years after the investigation of local records before filing a lawsuit.

Shaw indicated that when he questions Kennedy and aides, he will be interested "in general in the vote policy which seems to be directed purely at the Southern states.

"Why is it that none of the other states are involved in registration or voting matters?" he asked.

"Anyone who has followed the papers during the last few years knows there have been major vote scandals in the north, but the government doesn't seem to be interested in them, even though they occurred in federal elections."

The Citizen's Council attorney apparently was referring to vote scandals in Chicago, New York and Philadelphia.

"Some in particular arose out of Kennedy's election as President," he said. "There was a move on to contest those things, but it was dropped after he got into office.

"In fact, there was an investigation in Cook County, Ill."

Shaw also filed a motion asking that the Civil Rights' discrimination lawsuit be declared unconstitutional, but Dawkins refused to go along with it.

The Judge said a three - judge federal court, composed of Judges Wisdom, Hunter and himself, had decided in the Bienville parish registrar's case that the Civil Rights act of 1957, as amended, in constitutional, and that the same ruling would apply to Shaw's motion.

Shaw said that he intends to question the act's constitutionality every time he has a court case involving it.

"Later on, we are going to reverse all this stuff," he said, speaking of the Civil Rights' laws. "It will have to be done politically."

—Retaining the two-cent per gallon tax on gasoline and special fuels used in motor boats that is now refunded.

The revenue would amount to more than a billion dollars. Kennedy also proposed advance appropriations of up to $500 million to the fund over the next eight years to get the stipulated sources of revenue.

Kennedy said he would create a Land Conservation Commission headed by Secretary of Interior Stewart H. Udall to advise him on the user fees and division of revenue between the land conservation fund and the Treasury. Under his proposal, a portion of the receipts would be turned over to the Treasury to offset costs of acquiring additional land for public recreation and fish and wildlife at federal reservoirs financed as individual projects under ordinary appropriations.

8 Divisions May Shrink To Brigades

ing eliminated will be reorganized into eight separate brigades—four National Guard and four Reserve.

They will range in size from 3,000 to 4,500 men grouped in four to six battalions each.

One thought back of the plan is that independent brigades could be filtered into divisions to beef up their strength.

The Army said its plan is "designed to improve the over-all combat readiness of the Reserve components by increasing the strength, amount of equipment, and mobilization readiness of high-priority units needed early in any call to active duty."

The plan to reshape the Reserves to achieve maximum readiness has been in the making for about a year.

It was spurred by the experience in last year's Berlin crisis call-up, which showed up weaknesses in the present organization in terms of equipping, training and manning units.

The Kennedy administration has proposed cutting paid drill strength of the National Guard by 58,000 from a total of 700,000.

Informed sources said this manpower cut would likely come out of elimination of certain obsolete units, such as antiaircraft gun batteries, and paring down of certain types of units of which there are more than needed.

In this connection, the Army said it had made a study of its 8,800 Reserve and National Guard units and that this "unit-by-unit comparison disclosed that certain types no longer were essential, that excess number of some types were on hand, and that units of certain other types not now available were needed."

The Army plan, if put into effect, would reduce the number of National Guard divisions to 23—17 infantry and six armored.

The six remaining Army Reserve divisions, the Army said, were selected on the basis of combat readiness and "the military desirability of retaining one division in each of the six continental army areas."

The Army said the headquarters of the eight realigned divisions will be retained to supervise training and support of certain units.

In addition 4,000 full-time civilian technicians will be added to the Reserve components during the next two fiscal years to increase unit capabilities in training, administration and maintenance.

Many of these will be assigned to Nike-Hercules antiaircraft batteries which are manned by National Guardsmen. A certain number of civilian technicians are kept at each site at all times. The entire battery can be mustered in 15 minutes if needed to ward off enemy air attack.

The Army had planned to announce details of its program Friday before a Senate committee, but details became available Wednesday from informed sources so the Army decided to announce it at once.

Wright has replaced the board's judgment with his," Comiskey said. "I believe the Orleans Parish School Board is better equipped to view the overall problem than Judge Wright in the matter at this time."

Voelker said the full impact of the decision "is difficult to foresee at this early date, but its apparent effect will be to impose upon the administrators of the Orleans Parish school system a legal responsibility for eliminating any planned or intention segregation in public schools.

"From a practical standpoint," Voelker continued, "the people of New Orleans are now afforded the barest of all alternatives. . . . or not education at all."

Rep. John Garrett, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, called the decision "a cowardly act" and noted Wright would be leaving the state.

State Rep. Edward LeBreton Jr., of Orleans Parish said he would ask for a meeting to map a program to combat the new sweeping order.

LeBreton is a member of the special legislative committee on schools and asked that such a meeting be held early next week. Rep. Risley Triche, chairman of the committee, said he had not received LeBreton's request and had no comment on LeBreton's proposal.

Work By CC Group Praised

West Monroe Chamber of Commerce Manager Eugene Smith Wednesday had high praise for the organization's highways and streets committee chairman Roy Brooks.

Brooks and his group were instrumental in the securing of a traffic light at the crossing of Thomas Street and Highway 80. The equipment was installed earlier this week and is in operation.

"This is just one more example of the fine work this committee is doing and has been doing in the past," commented Smith. "Mr. Brooks has been re-appointed to the chairmanship and we are looking for still more and better things in the future."

Rodriguez revealed Wednesday that he has received a reply from Nichols concerning proposed improvement of College Avenue from LaSalle to the Old DeSiard Road. Each property owner on the street received a notice from the city on the street work and was asked to vote for or against it. Nichols replied that, "This letter has just reached me. Sorry my vote did not reach you on desired date. I am surely hoping this will be done."

Speedy Recovery

Here's wishing a speedy recovery to Mrs. Barbara Fruge, secretary to West Monroe Mayor J. Allan Norris. Mrs. Fruge went home ill Tuesday afternoon, we understand, and was out of her office all day Wednesday. Coworkers don't think it's anything serious and they're looking for her back on the job today. We hope she makes it.

8 Divisions May Shrink To Brigades

ing eliminated will be reorganized into eight separate brigades—four National Guard and four Reserve.

They will range in size from 3,000 to 4,500 men grouped in four to six battalions each.

One thought back of the plan is that independent brigades could be filtered into divisions to beef up their strength.

The Army said its plan is "designed to improve the over-all combat readiness of the Reserve components by increasing the strength, amount of equipment, and mobilization readiness of high-priority units needed early in any call to active duty."

The plan to reshape the Reserves to achieve maximum readiness has been in the making for about a year.

It was spurred by the experience in last year's Berlin crisis call-up, which showed up weaknesses in the present organization in terms of equipping, training and manning units.

The Kennedy administration has proposed cutting paid drill strength of the National Guard by 58,000 from a total of 700,000.

Informed sources said this manpower cut would likely come out of elimination of certain obsolete units, such as antiaircraft gun batteries, and paring down of certain types of units of which there are more than needed.

In this connection, the Army said it had made a study of its 8,800 Reserve and National Guard units and that this "unit-by-unit comparison disclosed that certain types no longer were essential, that excess number of some types were on hand, and that units of certain other types not now available were needed."

The Army plan, if put into effect, would reduce the number of National Guard divisions to 23—17 infantry and six armored.

The six remaining Army Reserve divisions, the Army said, were selected on the basis of combat readiness and "the military desirability of retaining one division in each of the six continental army areas."

The Army said the headquarters of the eight realigned divisions will be retained to supervise training and support of certain units.

In addition 4,000 full-time civilian technicians will be added to the Reserve components during the next two fiscal years to increase unit capabilities in training, administration and maintenance.

Many of these will be assigned to Nike-Hercules antiaircraft batteries which are manned by National Guardsmen. A certain number of civilian technicians are kept at each site at all times. The entire battery can be mustered in 15 minutes if needed to ward off enemy air attack.

The Army had planned to announce details of its program Friday before a Senate committee, but details became available Wednesday from informed sources so the Army decided to announce it at once.

Solon Proposes Sex Segregation

Wright has replaced the board's judgment with his," Comiskey said. "I believe the Orleans Parish School Board is better equipped to view the overall problem than Judge Wright in the matter at this time."

Frank Voelker Jr., chairman of Gov. Jimmie H. Davis' Sovereignty Commission, called for "calmness, coolness and courage."

Voelker said the full impact of the decision "is difficult to foresee at this early date, but its apparent effect will be to impose upon the administrators of the Orleans Parish school system a legal responsibility for eliminating any planned or intention segregation in public schools.

"From a practical standpoint," Voelker continued, "the people of New Orleans are now afforded the barest of all alternatives. . . . or not education at all."

Rep. John Garrett, chairman of the Joint Legislative Committee on Segregation, called the decision "a cowardly act" and noted Wright would be leaving the state.

State Rep. Edward LeBreton Jr., of Orleans Parish said he would ask for a meeting to map a program to combat the new sweeping order.

LeBreton is a member of the special legislative committee on schools and asked that such a meeting be held early next week. Rep. Risley Triche, chairman of the committee, said he had not received LeBreton's request and had no comment on LeBreton's proposal.

Work By CC Group Praised

West Monroe Chamber of Commerce Manager Eugene Smith Wednesday had high praise for the organization's highways and streets committee chairman Roy Brooks.

Brooks and his group were instrumental in the securing of a traffic light at the crossing of Thomas Street and Highway 80. The equipment was installed earlier this week and is in operation.

"This is just one more example of the fine work this committee is doing and has been doing in the past," commented Smith. "Mr. Brooks has been re-appointed to the chairmanship and we are looking for still more and better things in the future."

CELEBRATION TODAY

ICC To Observe 75th Anniversary

WASHINGTON (AP) — You'd hardly guess it from the looks of the place, but the Interstate Commerce Commission — th government's oldest regulatory agency —wound up its 75th year Wednesday.

A big celebration—four hours of speeches and band music — will come Thursday.

Members of Congress, the Supreme Court and other government agencies will be on hand, along with spokesmen for the transportation industry, which the commission was set up to regulate in 1887.

No bunting draped the squat, seven-story ICC building, which takes up half a block at Constitution ave. and 12th St.

A lobby display on the evolution of transportation was the only outward indication of the milestone reached by the grandfather of government regulation.

It was business as usual in the office cells and dimly lit corridors with pea-green walls and clay-tile floors.

The ICC never was very demonstrative.

This, newsmen have been told, is in keeping with the dignity and decorum befitting an agency which regulates 20,000 carriers doing a $20-billion annual business.

The 11 commissioners heading the ICC are ultimately responsible for approving or disapproving a wide variety of changes in interstate commerce, whether they involve the merger of two giant railroads or a bid by a small trucker to begin hauling birdseed across state lines.

The last day of the ICC's 75th year began at 9:30 a.m., when a public servant entered Room 2229 in the headquarters building and deposited a 6 3-8-inch bundle of papers on the press table—an array of hearing notices, orders, petitions, applications, protests, replies to protests, answers to replies to protests, and just plain statements.

There was an order approving Norman Thorson's request for permission to seel his trucking business to Eldon D. Ayers of Spearfish, S.D.

There was an order telling the Pennsylvania Railroad that its plan to discontinue five passenger trains between Buffalo and Harrisburg will be investigated. In the meantime, the trains must be continued.

There was a protest from the Central States Motor Fright Bureau against the Wabash Railroad plan to reduce freight rates on pickled pork and aluminum ingots.

Then there was a brief filed by the Baltimore & Ohio and some other railroads opposing a move by the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad to lower its freight rates on coal.

"The issue in this case is not complex," said the brief. Then it went on for 105 pages, plus appendix.

Syria Eases Restrictions On Traveling

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — The military rulers of Syria relaxed some of their internal travel restrictions Wednesday, apparently confident they were in full control of the country once again.

Damascus Radio reported that the ban on travel between towns had been lifted and the Syrian airline service resumed flights within the country.

But the borders still were sealed and communications to other countries severely restricted. Scant information leaked out through Damascus radio or diplomatic channels.

Military leaders were reported conferring in Damascus on formation of a new civil government.

The picture put together from sources in several Middle East capitals suggested that when and if Syria is returned to civil rule the military will retain a strong hand in the government.

They said there was little chance a new government would be as conservative as the one toppled a week ago by the military coup. There also seemed little prospect for reunion between Syria and President Gamal Abdel Nasser's United Arab Republic.

The central military command appeared to be in full control of Aleppo, heart of a two-day northern Syrian military revolt seeking to take Syria back into the U.A.R.

Damascus Radio's first announcement Wednesday was a communique signed by the army commander for northern Syria telling the people of Aleppo that any disorders would be met with "drastic penalties."

A later communique banned gatherings of more than three persons.

An hour and a half later the general army command announced the relaxing of internal travel restrictions "in view of the return of normal conditions to the country and out of concern over the interests of the inhabitants."

Professor Says Link Is Found On Civilizations

WALTHAM, Mass. (UPI)—A Brandeis University professor has found evidence which he believes links the Hebrew and Greek civilizations—a discovery he called "more important to historians than the Dead Sea Scrolls."

Prof. Cyrus H. Gordon, chairman of the university's Department of Mediterranean Sutidies, said Tuesday night he believes his discovery proves the long held theory that the two civilizations developed independently is in error.

His discovery also suggests Gordon said, that a common Semitic heritage spanned the entire East Mediterranean area from Greece to Palestin.

In 1957, Gordon found the language of the Minoan Linear A inscriptions was Semitic. He now has identified the language more specifically, determining that it is Phoenician, a tongue of the west Semitic family.

This discovery enabled him to decipher Etocretan, the so-called "mystery" language of the Minoans who lived on the island of Crete 3,600 years ago. He found that it also is Phoenician though written in the Greek alphabet.

According to Gordon, this showed that the Phoenicians were living and writing on Crete before the Greeks invaded and that the Greek and Hebrew cultures came from a common Semitic heritage.

Lunch Counter At Baton Rouge Serves Negroes

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Three Negroes toppled segregation barriers Wednesday at the white lunch counter of the Greyhound bus station here.

The Rev. Arthur Jelks Sr., president of the local chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, said he received service at the previously all-white lunch counter, which before had turned him away. He said two other Negroes were with him.

Jelks said he would seek service at other lunch counters here, and if turned away would seek damages through lawsuits.

At Greyhound, Jelks said, a Negro waitress, or service girl, who was dressed in different clothing from the white waitresses,served him, his son, David, 22, and L. C. Bates, the NAACP field secretary.

Jelks said he noticed the Negro girl who served them also served both white and Negro customers. "We hope that the white waitresses do the same. I consider this a step forward in race relations in the city of Baton Rouge."

Catholic Mother To Defend Beliefs

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — A 41-year-old Catholic mother vowed Wednesday to accept excommunication rather than back down on her belief in racial segregation—unless the clergy shows her error in the Bible.

"If the Bible is not brought into the picture or discussed," said Mrs. Evelyn Gaillot, "then I will have to bow down gracefully and accept excommunication rather than desert my belief in God."

She faces an interview—probably Thursday—with Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel, the 85-year-old prelate whom she said threatened her with expulsion from the church.

The threat, said the dark-haired mother of two children in Catholic schools, came in a letter received late Saturday night.

The archbishop's chancery called the letter a "paternal admonition," and declined further comment.

The letter, she said, contained accusations and statements which are not true.

"My statements (about segregation) and my defense has always been the Bible," she continued, "and while I am not revealing the contents of the letter, it contains no mention or accusation against the Bible."

"I will not waste their time or mine," she said of the interview she requested, adding she had no idea who would be present with the archbishop.

"I only pray that God gives me the graces not to weaken where His word is concerned, nor shall I compromise," she said.

"But if they can show me from the Bible where I am wrong, then as I said before, I will get down on my knees before Archbishop Rummel and beg his forgiveness,' she added.

The chancery said she would be allowed to take two witnesses into audience, as she requested, but they must have chancery approval. Church authorities refused her request that two members of the press accompany her, she said.

"I have received so many calls from all parts of the country," she said, "and I have asked them all to pray for me."

Mrs. Gaillot heads a segregation group—Save Our Nation—and picketed the archbishop's residence last week, only hours before he ordered an end to segregation in parochial schools next fall.

Meanwhile, state leaders slapped at federal district Judge J. Skelly Wright's ruling Tuesday ordering desegregation of New Orleans schools through the sixth grade and outlawing application of Louisiana's pupil placement act in New Orleans.

Wright's decision agreed with 102 Negroes who told the court the New Orleans School Board was not complying with an original order several years ago that schools desegregate "with all deliberate speed."

Burton Professes Love Of His Wife

LONDON (AP) — Friends said actor Richard Burton cabled his wife Wednesday assuring her of his love despite his public kissing with Elizabeth Taylor. He followed this up with a telephone call.

This cheered up the blonde, Sybil Burton, 32, who had been so upset by the news out of Rome that a doctor had to give her sedatives, the friends reported.

Another friend said Burton may fly home this weekend from Rome where he is playing Antony to Miss Taylor's Cleopatra on movie location.

Molly Williams, wife of actor Emlyn Williams and a close friend of Mrs. Burton, told a reporter: "I am sure Sybil has made no plans at all to go to Rome. She only arrived here about 10 days ago with the two children and she wouldn't like to upset them by leaving again."

Williams himself, who is godfather to one of the Burton children, said he believed everything is fine between Burton and his wife.

"I just cannot imagine that Richard would throw his life away like this," he said. "They are exceedingly happy and he adores his daughters.

Without mentioning her name outright, a Vatican radio commentator condemned "caprices of adult children" which he described as "an insult to the nobility of the hearth which millions of married couples judge to be a beautiful and holy thing."

The Corriere della Sera of Milan suggested a 24-hour press moratorium on the subject in a feature article headed "Too Much Liz."

The Communist L'Unita of Rome asserted Miss Taylor was taking advantage of the already heavy investment in the movie to do as she pleases, regardless of what her advisers may say.

Visit To Israel By Eichmann's Wife Approved

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI) — Premier David Ben-Gurion's government has decided to let Adolf Eichmann's wife come to Israel for a brief visit with her imprisoned husband, authoritative sources said Wednesday.

Mrs. Vera Eichmann will be permitted to visit Israel for 24 hours only after the supreme court hands down its decision on Eichmann's appeal against his sentence of death for the mass murder of Jews in World War II.

The former Nazi SS official has not seen his wife since he was captured by Israeli agents in his Buenos Aires home nearly two years ago and spirited to Israel to stand trial for the exterminations of 6 million Jews.

A Jerusalem district court convicted Eichmann and sentenced him to death last year after a long trial. Eichmann appealed to the supreme court, which recently concluded a week-long hearing. No date has been set for the decision on the appeal.

The decision to permit Mrs. Eichmann to see her husband was reached at a meeting Tuesday of Ben-Gurion, Foreign Minister Golda Meir, and Justice Minister Dov Joseph, sources said.

Mrs. Eichmann applied for a visa at the Israeli embassy in Buenos Aires several months ago. The application was forwarded to the foreign ministry here.

This cheered up the blonde, Sybil Burton, 32, who had been so upset by the news out of Rome that a doctor had to give her sedatives, the friends reported.

Another friend said Burton may fly home this weekend from Rome where he is playing Antony to Miss Taylor's Cleopatra on movie location.

Molly Williams, wife of actor Emlyn Williams and a close friend of Mrs. Burton, told a reporter: "I am sure Sybil has made no plans at all to go to Rome. She only arrived here about 10 days ago with the two children and she wouldn't like to upset them by leaving again."

Williams himself, who is godfather to one of the Burton children, said he believed everything is fine between Burton and his wife.

"I just cannot imagine that Richard would throw his life away like this," he said. "They are exceedingly happy and he adores his daughters.

Without mentioning her name outright, a Vatican radio commentator condemned "caprices of adult children" which he described as "an insult to the nobility of the hearth which millions of married couples judge to be a beautiful and holy thing."

The Corriere della Sera of Milan suggested a 24-hour press moratorium on the subject in a feature article headed "Too Much Liz."

The Communist L'Unita of Rome asserted Miss Taylor was taking advantage of the already heavy investment in the movie to do as she pleases, regardless of what her advisers may say.

Visit To Israel By Eichmann's Wife Approved

JERUSALEM, Israel (UPI) — Premier David Ben-Gurion's government has decided to let Adolf Eichmann's wife come to Israel for a brief visit with her imprisoned husband, authoritative sources said Wednesday.

Mrs. Vera Eichmann will be permitted to visit Israel for 24 hours only after the supreme court hands down its decision on Eichmann's appeal against his sentence of death for the mass murder of Jews in World War II.

The former Nazi SS official has not seen his wife since he was captured by Israeli agents in his Buenos Aires home nearly two years ago and spirited to Israel to stand trial for the exterminations of 6 million Jews.

A Jerusalem district court convicted Eichmann and sentenced him to death last year after a long trial. Eichmann appealed to the supreme court, which recently concluded a week-long hearing. No date has been set for the decision on the appeal.

The decision to permit Mrs. Eichmann to see her husband was reached at a meeting Tuesday of Ben-Gurion, Foreign Minister Golda Meir, and Justice Minister Dov Joseph, sources said.

Mrs. Eichmann applied for a visa at the Israeli embassy in Buenos Aires several months ago. The application was forwarded to the foreign ministry here.

They buried Falguier, who died Tuesday at 85, and his orders were carried out to the letter. Bells rang in lieu of a dirge. After the burial, all his friends gathered at a restaurant for a feast in his honor.

Mrs. P. A. Poag

When the earthly life of a worthy and beloved person comes to an end her good works continue to grow and spread and multiply. Thus it was when Mrs. P. A. (Maude) Poag passed on recently. Her good works, her devotion to the causes of music, opera, art, Little Theater, flowers, church, the Young Women's Christian Association and humanity in general are still bearing splendid and wonderful fruit.

At the age of 11 the girl who was later to become Mrs. Poag moved to Monroe and immediately began taking an active part in music circles. At that young age she started playing the piano at churches and gatherings of various kinds. She advanced so rapidly and became so popular that it was not long before she was playing the musical accompaniment to silent movies in the theaters here.

Mrs. Poag was one of the pioneers and charter members in the organization of what is now called the Northeast Louisiana Concerts. It started as the Civic Music Concerts and was later known as Twin City Concerts.

She was a former president of the Y.W.C.A. board of directors and continued to sponsor the girls of that organization throughout the remainder of her life.

She helped organize and was the first president of the Fine Arts club. Among the organizations of which she was a member were various book clubs.

Although she was an enthusiastic and devoted leader in all kinds of cultural development, Mrs. Poag's great interests were in music and flowers. She was an accomplished pianist and was adept in all kinds of music, from religious to classic to jazz.

Overspreading all of her activities, which included a great deal of church work, was a spirit of enthusiasm and bouyancy and warm friendship that inspired her colleagues and friends and loved ones to strive for still greater things.

Cultural activities in which Mrs. Poag engaged served to compliment and enhance, rather than to detract from, her splendid home life. Before she passed away this year, Mrs. Poag could look back on her celebration with Mr. Poag, last October, of their golden wedding anniversary—50 years of successful married life, during which she reared three children of whom she could be proud.

Honoring her, members of the Opera Club said, in part:

"We, as members of the Opera Club, would like to pay our tribute to the memory of Mrs. P. A. Poag, whom we lovingly knew as Maude. For many years she was a faithful member of the Opera Club, where she gave generously of her musical talent, cheerful counsel and leadership ability. She was dependable as well as lovable. This was true of her not only as she served in the Opera Club as president and in other offices, but as she gave of herself in home, church and community. There is hardly an organization in our city to which she did not give generously and cheerfully of her outstanding musical talent.

"We miss her now and we will continue to miss her each time we meet, but we are grateful that we had the privilege of these years of happy association with her, because we have been made wiser and our lives have been enriched because of her influence, her love and talent which she so richly shared."

Few indeed are able to live lives which are fuller and more satisfactory and which pass on to others greater blessings. Hers was a notable and worthy life.

'Surrender On Left'

Senator Strom Thurmond of South Carolina, a man who is as staunch as they come in support of Americanism and constitutional government, in a recent statement, cited the policy of surrender or abject appeasement apparently being promulgated by the so-called "liberals."

In part Senator Thurmond said:

"In 1959 a group of Democratic congressmen formed 'The Liberal Project' for the purpose of publishing two books, containing policy recommendations for our nation in both foreign and domestic affairs. On March 16 the first of these two books, entitled 'The Liberal Papers,' was published with an introduction by Representative James Roosevelt.

"It contains the cold war foreign policy recommendations which have been aptly described by Senator Everett Dirksen in the following words:

"'Chamberlain surely never did as much for Hitler as is proposed here under the name of liberalism for Khrushchev and Mao. We have heard much of thunder on the right. Will we hear less now that surrender on the left is with us?'"

Containing 12 essays by a select group of leftist scholars, the book advocates the following actions by our nation:

1. Diplomatic recognition of Red China, with United Nations membership and foreign aid and recognition of Red China's claim to Formosa and the Pescadores Islands.

2. Diplomatic recognition of East Germany.

3. Recognition of our "untenable" position in East Berlin.

4. Demilitarization of West Germany.

5. Elimination of West Germany, Italy, France and the Scandinavian countries from NATO.

6. United States withdrawal from missile bases in Europe.

7. Abandonment of the "basically irrational conviction that the only way to avoid military conflict with the communist world is to prepare for it."

8. Invite Russia to plug in on our distant early warning (DEW) line to permit notice of any surprise attack we might launch against the communists.

As Senator Dirksen pointed out, Britain's Chamberlain, who went to Munich with umbrella in hand to meet Hitler and who returned home convinced that he had negotiated for "peace in our time" by appeasing the German dictator, never offered anything like as much appeasement and surrender as have the "liberal" Democrats in the United States.

If Khrushchev and Mao had been sitting in with our liberals and had held veto power over any pro-American suggestion they couldn't have got a better deal. Santa Claus is usually regarded as a liberal old gentleman but the "liberals" in this group make him look like Scrouge.

With Attorney General Robert Kennedy, our chief prosecutor, taking the position that communists in this country can operate with virual immunity and with the "liberals" trying to surrender this country to the Russian desires, we are without hope unless the people demand an about-face.

The first seven presidents of the African republic of Liberia were all born in the United States — four in Virginia, one in Maryland one in Kentucky and one in Ohio.

Natives of the Bahamas beat the long leaves of the cactus-like sisal plant into hemp, dye it and weave it into highly colored baskets, belts and hats.

The American Revolution was financed in part by a loan backed by five million pounds of Virginia tobacco. Benjamin Franklin helped get the money from France.

Canada supplies 71 per cent of all newsprint used in the United States.

Changes In Cold War Slow

Comparatively Few People Have Understanding Of What Goes On Day By Day In World Conflict

Changes in the cold war situation work out so slowly that few are able to keep up with them. That is obviously a contradiction in terms, but comparatively few people have a clear understanding of what goes on, day by day, in what so many pundits have described as "a situation which may erupt at any time into world conflagration."

That sounds frightening, but it is not true. The developments of the past two years have made push button war more unlikely, but it would be to their disadvantage for responsible officials of this government to say so, and of course the Soviet Government would never agree. They have run a successful bluff so far, and will continue to do so, though they must realize that such a war would, in all probability, destroy their iron control of the USSR. That they cannot risk.

In this country, concerned with its own problems under the pressure turned on by the Kennedy Administration, a small percentage of the population shows much concern about preparation for a push button war. This has been evidenced in the general indifference toward the fall out shelter program, which last year was a subject of general discussion with some action. Statistics on construction of private and individual fall out shelters are still lacking, but the promotional work in that direction is obviously declining.

The most likely reason is not so much that people doubt there will be nuclear war. Rather they have acquired a fatalism about atomic war. The average citizen, so far as can be ascertained, has three ideas (1) that there is no defense against atomic war (2) that the Russians realize this as well as we do, and (3) that backyard fallout shelters would not give sufficient protection for their occupants.

As usual, the country wide discussion of fallout shelters brought about a wave of advertising promotion from new or established builders, offering to build fallout shelters at low cost. But for the most part their plans called only for furnished holes in the ground which would cost as much or more than the new porch the enlarged garage or the extra room on the home that the family has long been planning. Nation wide construction statistics show no great increase because of fall out shelter building.

A full program of fall out shelters would cost billions of dollars, variously estimated from 7 billions to 20 or 30, as the individual builders added more and more conveniences for these underground living quarters. Even a free spending Administration is hesitant about pushing a program of questionable value, at a time when so many other expenditures are needed, naturally the suggestion has been made by some excitable proponents that the Federal Government should bear the cost of shelters.

If families believed that a nuclear attack was imminent they might be borrowing money to build shelters. Instead they are showing common sense in their reasoning that finishing a recreation room or home or buying a summer cottage will mean much more to the family in the long run.

The best evidence that the fear of nuclear warfare with the U. S. on the losing end, is declining was President Kennedy's quiet assertion in a recent interview that there might be circumstances under which the U. S. would shoot first. That has been well understood here for a long time, but only one person was in a position to say it — the head of this nation. Nikita Khrushchev has realized it for a long time, as his predecessor Josef Stalin apparently did not.

The lull in the fall out shelter business is pointed up by one fact — in those sections of Washington where Government officialdom resides, the fall out shelter construction is practically nil.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Glaucoma Tests

Urged For Those Past 40 Without Serious Symptoms

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have recently had a complete physical examination, but I have been wondering if the word "complete" describes it accurately. The doctor made all sorts of tests but left one out that you mentioned in your column months ago. I am 42 and asked how about the pressure test for the eye. But the doctor said it wasn't really necessary because I had no eye complaints. Shall I let it rest there? — Mr. T.

Comment: I'll still go along with my conviction that no examination of anyone over 40 is complete unless he has had a complete eye examination, including a tonometer test (a simple examination in which the doctor or nurse measures the pressure within the eyeball to rule out glaucoma).

There are thousands of people walking the streets today, who think themselves healthy, yet are slowly going blind because they have glaucoma which they do not suspect. This disease doesn't often give early warning of its presence. If diagnosed early, the doctor can prescribe medicine (or, if necessary, operate) to prevent blindness.

It is as simple as all that. But, being human, most people are satisfied to go along without taking precautions if they have no symptoms. A study was made in the Winnipeg Clinic and reported in the British Medical Journal, of the findings made on 5,000 above 40 patients in the clinic, for the early detection of glaucoma. Investigators found that 86 of these had unrecognized glaucoma.

I hope this answers your question, Mr. T. Ask your doctor again. If he still laughs it off as unnecessary, you owe it to yourself to make an appointment with an eye specialist for a tonometer test. As I said, it's simple and painless and takes only a minute or two to do.

ANAL ITCHING

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I know that this may seem unimportant, considering the questions you receive about very serious diseases, but I simply can't go on any longer with this anal itching which I've had for months. I have tried ointments, X ray treatments without help. Is there anything at all you can suggest? The doctors say the next step may be operation. — Mr. J.

Comment: There are many causes of itching around the anus. A common cause is relaxation of absolute cleanliness in that region. Often, obstinate hemorrhoid or fissures of the anus are the cause. Sometimes a general disease like diabetes or something causing jaundice is the culprit. Sometimes we don't know, and doctors label it psychogenic. Therefore, you will understand why I can't prescribe any specific treatment for you.

However, if your doctor hasn't already tried, perhaps he'll consider this treatment which seems to have helped many stubborn cases: using a drug called primeprazine, to be taken by mouth. Also, applying locally a steroid cream. If he believes in conservative treatment, it's worth a trial for four to six weeks.

For Mrs. H.: It is true that the diabetic who comes down with an infection (whether it's a carbuncle or appendicitis) immediately requires more insulin than he has been taking. If you take the regular doses you have been used to, you are in danger of getting acidosis or diabetic coma. A good rule is for the diabetic to consider even the simplest scratch or infection (especially if it occurs on the foot or leg in an elderly person) as potentially serious.

Dr. Steincrohn's leaflet, "Allergy — Disguised Attacker," will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self - addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for handling. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, c-o this newspaper.

Today is Thursday, April 5, the 95th day of the year with 270 to follow in 1962.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1614, Pocahontas, daughter of the Indian chieftain Powhatan, was married in Virginia to John Rolfe, an English colonist.

In 1939, the German government oldered all children aged 10 to 13 to register and serve in the Hitler youth organization.

In 1951, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg of New York City were sentenced to death as "atom spies," charged with transmitting secret atomic energy information to agents of the Soviet Union.

In 1955, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, then 81-years-old, submitted his resignation to Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace.

A thought for the day: Sir Winston Churchill said: "Dictators ride to and fro upon tigers which they dare not dismount. And the tigers are getting hungry."

Fly-By-Nighters

Many Stock Salesmen Are Untrained, Incompetent Or Worse

Roger C. Dunn, who for a number of years has been surveying and analyzing the American electorate, holds that: "No national party has championed the traditional constitutional concept of American government for over twenty years." He also holds that: "Under the gilded banners of 'liberal,' 'me-too' and 'modern,' the American people have been led far into a welfare-socialist state." His view is that the conservatives have failed because they have, in effect, been unable to state their case; that is, the case for traditional constitutional government.

I fear that Dunn over-simplifies his problem, for to state it accurately and with some relationship to the realities of the current situation, he must define how he would apply his concept of the American constitutional government to the manufacture and cost of the rockets and the social consequences of unemployment.

The climactic shift in the American view of government occurred in 1929, but it had been in the making prior to that since the Civil War.

Had William Jennings Bryan and the Populist Party won in 1896, many of the sharp changes which subsequently occurred would undoubtedly have started. And Mark Hanna, who managed our government during the two McKinley Administrations, might have found himself in major difficulties were it not for the invention of a chemical means for increasing the gold supply, producing an unusual prosperity. Nevertheless there were strikes and a demand for an eight-hour day and a "full dinner pail" in the 1900 campaign.

It was World War I which forced upon this country startling changes because it was essential, if we went to war at all, for the government to expand its controls over the economy and the people. The war did not last long and many of the controls were siwftly liquidated, but the pattern of governmental expansion of power remained. The control over the flow of money through the Federal Reserve System and the habit of subsidizing industry for proper performance of government contracts provided a pattern from which we have not moved far. World War II nearly turned us into a fascist state.

What can be said is that economic depression and war are largely responsible for changes in the attitude of the American people toward government. The politicians, in or out of office, can only deal with what they have before them. They are technicians. They are required by their positions to balance one immediate problem against another immediate problem. A public official is a prisoner of the pressures of current events. He may labor like Sisyphus to relieve himself of pressures, but in a free country, he will never succeed.

Other factors for change in this country have been the increase in population in large cities, the change over from rural to urban occupations, the granting of political equality to women, the increased organization of labor, the movement of Negroes from South to North and many similar reasons.

The two - party system will collapse, it is true, unless the Republicans cease to be a mere vehicle for electing candidates and produce some beliefs and ideas. The 1960 Platform of the Republican Party is an absurd document, prepared without any relationship to the historic ideals of the party and with no forward look. Richard Nixon had a wonderful opportunity to produce an exciting leadership but he was apparently talked out of it by his associates or by his impossible position, for it he spoke frankly, he would have had to criticize President Eisenhower, which he obviously could not do. It was not until Barry Goldwater took hold that the Republican Party generated ideas which could be historically its own and then a conservative movement got rolling.

The Republicans have not absorbed the conservatives nor have the conservatives managed to produce any outstanding leadership other than Goldwater thus far. It is not so much bloc voting that is damaging the Republican Party, it is its inability to oppose by defining its terms. At any rate, during the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations, there were powerful voices in the Republican Party — Herbert Hoover, Robert A. Taft, Joe McCarthy, Styles Bridges and, to an extent, Thomas E. Dewey. These voices no longer speak. In their stead are the "modern" Republicans who want to be elected but will not say why they should be. Senator Jacob Javits, at any rate, has dropped the word "modern" and uses the word, "progressive." He is a progressive Republican without definition. It would be interesting to note whether he can produce a definition. I, for one, would like to wrestle with it.

There are fly-by-night salesmen of stocks operating in the United States today who are untrained, incompetent or, worse crooks — and if you're gullible enough to let them handle your investments, your nestegg will disappear.

If though, you use basic common sense and simply pick out one of the reputable brokerage firms in your area, the odds are the man or woman handling your account will be a professional. He'll be educated in every phase of the securities business. He will have passed a stiff exam qualifying him to be a "registered representative" of the brokerage firm and to advise you on your purchases and sales. He will be under the direct scrutiny of the firm's partners and of organizations now determined to raise the standards and ethics of all connected with "Wall Street."

Never has there been so concerted a drive by leaders of the securities business as today to improve the training of salesmen and analysts of securities — and for good reason.

The Securities & Exchange Commission is conducting a full-scale probe of the stock markets this year, is focusing much attention on the training of employes of brokerage firms. Recent shocking disclosures about the low calibre of many part-time salesmen of mutual funds, particularly, have spurred responsible brokers and their organizations to try to correct the situation before the government cracks down. The fact that there has been an upsurge in investor's complaints about their transactions with brokers — the New York Stock Exchange alone received 1,200 in 1961, double the number in the previous year—is flashing a warning to the securities business.

The important point for you to appreciate is that, if you'll only do it the easy way and deal with a broker who is compelled to meet the highest standards now set, you can have considerable confidence that he is informed and ethical. When he makes mistakes, they'll be errors of judgment rather than of ignorance.

Consider, for instance, the requirements which registered representatives of New York Stock Exchange member firms must meet. There are 30,628 of these representatives today, up 88 per cent since 1955, and 1,700 of them are women. None is a part-time worker.

First, each applicant must go through a six-month apprenticeship: Some go to school full-time for four months of this period, getting 300 to 400 hours of classroom instruction. Others are enrolled in correspondence training programs, still others take special courses given in universities or educational institutions in eight major cities. Incidentally, of those being trained today, 61 per cent are college graduates and 66 per cent are in their 30s or 40s—mature, serious individuals.

Then, each trainee must pass a written examination consisting of 150 multiple-choice questions at an examination center under the supervision of proctors. The exam is definitely no cinch.

Each will get on-the-job training with his or her firm too. There also is an intensified effort underway now to retrain employes who have had years of experience.

In every section of the securities business, this sort of thing is happening now. The National Assn. of Securities Dealers — the self-policing organization of the over-the-counter markets — revised its exam for registered representatives of over-the counter firms this past January and it's much tougher than ever before. Work is progressing on a single securities exam for all segments of the business. The NYSE has developed a uniform licensing exam for use by State Securities Commissioners; nine states have adopted it in full, 22 others are using it in part or considering it.

Ideal the training is not—far from it. But the requirements are being raised, there is increasing awareness of the need for better education of analysts and salesmen of securities.

Use your head. Unless you have excellent reason for doing otherwise and are sufficiently sophisticated in finance to know what you are doing and why, go to a broker who must meet the top standards.

With Attorney General Robert Kennedy, our chief prosecutor, taking the position that communists in this country can operate with virual immunity and with the "liberals" trying to surrender this country to the Russian desires, we are without hope unless the people demand an about-face.

The first seven presidents of the African republic of Liberia were all born in the United States — four in Virginia, one in Maryland one in Kentucky and one in Ohio.

Changes In Cold War Slow

Comparatively Few People Have Understanding Of What Goes On Day By Day In World Conflict

Changes in the cold war situation work out so slowly that few are able to keep up with them. That is obviously a contradiction in terms, but comparatively few people have a clear understanding of what goes on, day by day, in what so many pundits have described as "a situation which may erupt at any time into world conflagration."

That sounds frightening, but it is not true. The developments of the past two years have made push button war more unlikely, but it would be to their disadvantage for responsible officials of this government to say so, and of course the Soviet Government would never agree. They have run a successful bluff so far, and will continue to do so, though they must realize that such a war would, in all probability, destroy their iron control of the USSR. That they cannot risk.

In this country, concerned with its own problems under the pressure turned on by the Kennedy Administration, a small percentage of the population shows much concern about preparation for a push button war. This has been evidenced in the general indifference toward the fall out shelter program, which last year was a subject of general discussion with some action. Statistics on construction of private and individual fall out shelters are still lacking, but the promotional work in that direction is obviously declining.

The most likely reason is not so much that people doubt there will be nuclear war. Rather they have acquired a fatalism about atomic war. The average citizen, so far as can be ascertained, has three ideas (1) that there is no defense against atomic war (2) that the Russians realize this as well as we do, and (3) that backyard fallout shelters would not give sufficient protection for their occupants.

As usual, the country wide discussion of fallout shelters brought about a wave of advertising promotion from new or established builders, offering to build fallout shelters at low cost. But for the most part their plans called only for furnished holes in the ground which would cost as much or more than the new porch the enlarged garage or the extra room on the home that the family has long been planning. Nation wide construction statistics show no great increase because of fall out shelter building.

A full program of fall out shelters would cost billions of dollars, variously estimated from 7 billions to 20 or 30, as the individual builders added more and more conveniences for these underground living quarters. Even a free spending Administration is hesitant about pushing a program of questionable value, at a time when so many other expenditures are needed, naturally the suggestion has been made by some excitable proponents that the Federal Government should bear the cost of shelters.

If families believed that a nuclear attack was imminent they might be borrowing money to build shelters. Instead they are showing common sense in their reasoning that finishing a recreation room or home or buying a summer cottage will mean much more to the family in the long run.

The best evidence that the fear of nuclear warfare with the U. S. on the losing end, is declining was President Kennedy's quiet assertion in a recent interview that there might be circumstances under which the U. S. would shoot first. That has been well understood here for a long time, but only one person was in a position to say it — the head of this nation. Nikita Khrushchev has realized it for a long time, as his predecessor Josef Stalin apparently did not.

The lull in the fall out shelter business is pointed up by one fact — in those sections of Washington where Government officialdom resides, the fall out shelter construction is practically nil.

DR. PETER J. STEINCROHN

Urged For Those Past 40 Without Serious Symptoms

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I have recently had a complete physical examination, but I have been wondering if the word "complete" describes it accurately. The doctor made all sorts of tests but left one out that you mentioned in your column months ago. I am 42 and asked how about the pressure test for the eye. But the doctor said it wasn't really necessary because I had no eye complaints. Shall I let it rest there? — Mr. T.

Comment: I'll still go along with my conviction that no examination of anyone over 40 is complete unless he has had a complete eye examination, including a tonometer test (a simple examination in which the doctor or nurse measures the pressure within the eyeball to rule out glaucoma).

There are thousands of people walking the streets today, who think themselves healthy, yet are slowly going blind because they have glaucoma which they do not suspect. This disease doesn't often give early warning of its presence. If diagnosed early, the doctor can prescribe medicine (or, if necessary, operate) to prevent blindness.

It is as simple as all that. But, being human, most people are satisfied to go along without taking precautions if they have no symptoms. A study was made in the Winnipeg Clinic and reported in the British Medical Journal, of the findings made on 5,000 above 40 patients in the clinic, for the early detection of glaucoma. Investigators found that 86 of these had unrecognized glaucoma.

I hope this answers your question, Mr. T. Ask your doctor again. If he still laughs it off as unnecessary, you owe it to yourself to make an appointment with an eye specialist for a tonometer test. As I said, it's simple and painless and takes only a minute or two to do.

ANAL ITCHING

Dear Dr. Steincrohn: I know that this may seem unimportant, considering the questions you receive about very serious diseases, but I simply can't go on any longer with this anal itching which I've had for months. I have tried ointments, X ray treatments without help. Is there anything at all you can suggest? The doctors say the next step may be operation. — Mr. J.

Comment: There are many causes of itching around the anus. A common cause is relaxation of absolute cleanliness in that region. Often, obstinate hemorrhoid or fissures of the anus are the cause. Sometimes a general disease like diabetes or something causing jaundice is the culprit. Sometimes we don't know, and doctors label it psychogenic. Therefore, you will understand why I can't prescribe any specific treatment for you.

However, if your doctor hasn't already tried, perhaps he'll consider this treatment which seems to have helped many stubborn cases: using a drug called primeprazine, to be taken by mouth. Also, applying locally a steroid cream. If he believes in conservative treatment, it's worth a trial for four to six weeks.

For Mrs. H.: It is true that the diabetic who comes down with an infection (whether it's a carbuncle or appendicitis) immediately requires more insulin than he has been taking. If you take the regular doses you have been used to, you are in danger of getting acidosis or diabetic coma. A good rule is for the diabetic to consider even the simplest scratch or infection (especially if it occurs on the foot or leg in an elderly person) as potentially serious.

Dr. Steincrohn's leaflet, "Allergy — Disguised Attacker," will be mailed to you on receipt of a stamped, self - addressed envelope and 10 cents in coin for handling. Address your request to Dr. Steincrohn, c-o this newspaper.

Today is Thursday, April 5, the 95th day of the year with 270 to follow in 1962.

The moon is approaching its first quarter.

The morning stars are Jupiter and Saturn.

The evening star is Venus.

On this day in history:

In 1614, Pocahontas, daughter of the Indian chieftain Powhatan, was married in Virginia to John Rolfe, an English colonist.

In 1939, the German government oldered all children aged 10 to 13 to register and serve in the Hitler youth organization.

In 1951, Julius and Ethel Rosenberg of New York City were sentenced to death as "atom spies," charged with transmitting secret atomic energy information to agents of the Soviet Union.

In 1955, Prime Minister Winston Churchill, then 81-years-old, submitted his resignation to Queen Elizabeth II at Buckingham Palace.

A thought for the day: Sir Winston Churchill said: "Dictators ride to and fro upon tigers which they dare not dismount. And the tigers are getting hungry."

Fly-By-Nighters

Many Stock Salesmen Are Untrained, Incompetent Or Worse

Roger C. Dunn, who for a number of years has been surveying and analyzing the American electorate, holds that: "No national party has championed the traditional constitutional concept of American government for over twenty years." He also holds that: "Under the gilded banners of 'liberal,' 'me-too' and 'modern,' the American people have been led far into a welfare-socialist state." His view is that the conservatives have failed because they have, in effect, been unable to state their case; that is, the case for traditional constitutional government.

I fear that Dunn over-simplifies his problem, for to state it accurately and with some relationship to the realities of the current situation, he must define how he would apply his concept of the American constitutional government to the manufacture and cost of the rockets and the social consequences of unemployment.

The climactic shift in the American view of government occurred in 1929, but it had been in the making prior to that since the Civil War.

Had William Jennings Bryan and the Populist Party won in 1896, many of the sharp changes which subsequently occurred would undoubtedly have started. And Mark Hanna, who managed our government during the two McKinley Administrations, might have found himself in major difficulties were it not for the invention of a chemical means for increasing the gold supply, producing an unusual prosperity. Nevertheless there were strikes and a demand for an eight-hour day and a "full dinner pail" in the 1900 campaign.

It was World War I which forced upon this country startling changes because it was essential, if we went to war at all, for the government to expand its controls over the economy and the people. The war did not last long and many of the controls were siwftly liquidated, but the pattern of governmental expansion of power remained. The control over the flow of money through the Federal Reserve System and the habit of subsidizing industry for proper performance of government contracts provided a pattern from which we have not moved far. World War II nearly turned us into a fascist state.

What can be said is that economic depression and war are largely responsible for changes in the attitude of the American people toward government. The politicians, in or out of office, can only deal with what they have before them. They are technicians. They are required by their positions to balance one immediate problem against another immediate problem. A public official is a prisoner of the pressures of current events. He may labor like Sisyphus to relieve himself of pressures, but in a free country, he will never succeed.

Other factors for change in this country have been the increase in population in large cities, the change over from rural to urban occupations, the granting of political equality to women, the increased organization of labor, the movement of Negroes from South to North and many similar reasons.

The two - party system will collapse, it is true, unless the Republicans cease to be a mere vehicle for electing candidates and produce some beliefs and ideas. The 1960 Platform of the Republican Party is an absurd document, prepared without any relationship to the historic ideals of the party and with no forward look. Richard Nixon had a wonderful opportunity to produce an exciting leadership but he was apparently talked out of it by his associates or by his impossible position, for it he spoke frankly, he would have had to criticize President Eisenhower, which he obviously could not do. It was not until Barry Goldwater took hold that the Republican Party generated ideas which could be historically its own and then a conservative movement got rolling.

The Republicans have not absorbed the conservatives nor have the conservatives managed to produce any outstanding leadership other than Goldwater thus far. It is not so much bloc voting that is damaging the Republican Party, it is its inability to oppose by defining its terms. At any rate, during the Roosevelt and Truman Administrations, there were powerful voices in the Republican Party — Herbert Hoover, Robert A. Taft, Joe McCarthy, Styles Bridges and, to an extent, Thomas E. Dewey. These voices no longer speak. In their stead are the "modern" Republicans who want to be elected but will not say why they should be. Senator Jacob Javits, at any rate, has dropped the word "modern" and uses the word, "progressive." He is a progressive Republican without definition. It would be interesting to note whether he can produce a definition. I, for one, would like to wrestle with it.

There are fly-by-night salesmen of stocks operating in the United States today who are untrained, incompetent or, worse crooks — and if you're gullible enough to let them handle your investments, your nestegg will disappear.

If though, you use basic common sense and simply pick out one of the reputable brokerage firms in your area, the odds are the man or woman handling your account will be a professional. He'll be educated in every phase of the securities business. He will have passed a stiff exam qualifying him to be a "registered representative" of the brokerage firm and to advise you on your purchases and sales. He will be under the direct scrutiny of the firm's partners and of organizations now determined to raise the standards and ethics of all connected with "Wall Street."

Never has there been so concerted a drive by leaders of the securities business as today to improve the training of salesmen and analysts of securities — and for good reason.

The Securities & Exchange Commission is conducting a full-scale probe of the stock markets this year, is focusing much attention on the training of employes of brokerage firms. Recent shocking disclosures about the low calibre of many part-time salesmen of mutual funds, particularly, have spurred responsible brokers and their organizations to try to correct the situation before the government cracks down. The fact that there has been an upsurge in investor's complaints about their transactions with brokers — the New York Stock Exchange alone received 1,200 in 1961, double the number in the previous year—is flashing a warning to the securities business.

The important point for you to appreciate is that, if you'll only do it the easy way and deal with a broker who is compelled to meet the highest standards now set, you can have considerable confidence that he is informed and ethical. When he makes mistakes, they'll be errors of judgment rather than of ignorance.

Consider, for instance, the requirements which registered representatives of New York Stock Exchange member firms must meet. There are 30,628 of these representatives today, up 83 per cent since 1955, and 1,700 of them are women. None is a part-time worker.

First, each applicant must go through a six-month apprenticeship: Some go to school full-time for four months of this period, getting 300 to 400 hours of classroom instruction. Others are enrolled in correspondence training programs, still others take special courses given in universities or educational institutions in eight major cities. Incidentally, of those being trained today, 61 per cent are college graduates and 66 per cent are in their 30s or 40s—mature, serious individuals.

Then, each trainee must pass a written examination consisting of 150 multiple-choice questions at an examination center under the supervision of proctors. The exam is definitely no cinch.

Each will get on-the-job training with his or her firm too. There also is an intensified effort underway now to retrain employes who have had years of experience.

In every section of the securities business, this sort of thing is happening now. The National Assn. of Securities Dealers — the self-policing organization of the over-the-counter markets — revised its exam for registered representatives of over-the counter firms this past January and it's much tougher than ever before. Work is progressing on a single securities exam for all segments of the business. The NYSE has developed a uniform licensing exam for use by State Securities Commissioners; nine states have adopted it in full, 22 others are using it in part or considering it.

Ideal the training is not—far from it. But the requirements are being raised, there is increasing awareness of the need for better education of analysts and salesmen of securities.

Use your head. Unless you have excellent reason for doing otherwise and are sufficiently sophisticated in finance to know what you are doing and why, go to a broker who must meet the top standards.

Walker Says Reds Aided By Official

munist" leaders of the armed forces.

He declared that he was "a scapegoat of an unwritten policy of collaboration and collusion with the international Communist conspiracy."

Yarmolinsky's name came up when Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., asked Walker to name some individuals behind such a policy. Walker said he had a number of people in mind. He added that he disagreed "100 per cent" with Yarmolinsky and would fire him if he were McNamara.

As for McNamara himself, he said he was in no position to judge, except that the secretary had broad responsibility.

Under later questioning by Thurmond, Walker — disclaiming any desire for "name - calling"—said that Yarmolinsky's "connection with communism has certainly been close and his activities have aided communism."

Walker said Yarmolinsky had admitted attending meetings of the Young Communist League as a guest, but denied membership in the party youth group.

Yarmolinsky, he said, did a critical survey of government security programs under the sponsorship of the fund for the republic.

Walker also offered information on Yarmolinsky's parents. He linked Yarmolinsky's mother, the writer Babette Deutsch, with public statements urging abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Walker said Yarmolinsky's parents translated a volume of Russian poetry in 1927 for what he said was the official Communist publishing house.

Walker said Yarmolinsky once was associated with the law firm of George W. Ball, now undersecretary of state. Ball, he said, was associated with Philip Stern who as deputy assistant secretary of state had charge of the State Department's speech review program. Stern has recently left the department.

Walker said Yarmolinsky also was associated with presidential assistant Ted Sorensen and President Kennedy's brother-in - law, Sargent Shriver, in screening some 75 top attorneys for posts in the administration.

Thurmond asked Walker to name "salacious" publications others which he viewed as detrimental to his European command.

Walker, who earlier, had denounced Overseas Weekly, the publication that first criticized his indoctrination program, named The Nation, the New Republic, and The Reporter. He said they were "soft on communism, definitely, following the party line...and assisting it."

In reply to subsequent questions he added the Bulletin of atomic scientists and the Foreign Policy Bulletin of the Foreign Policy Association, Inc.

In a statement opening the hearing, Walker accused President Kennedy of acting as both prosecutor and judge in his case. He also charged that McNamara issued an army report on his indoctrination program to slander and defame him.

In his statement and in reply to questions, Walker said U. S. armed forces "are paralyzed by our national policy of 'no win' and retreat from victory." He said there are several military actions they could plan to put the United States in a winning posture.

The ex-general, who resigned from the Army after his removal as commander of the 24th Division in Germany, testified at a hearing marked by the ejection of George Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi party, and two of his storm troopers. They were removed for wearing swastika buttons in violation of a Capitol rule.

Walker denied charges that he violated the Hatch Act's ban on political activity by federal employes by trying to influence soldiers and civilians under his jurisdiction in the 1960 congressional elections.

Rather, he said, he "came into conflict with the real control apparatus, and was removed from my command and admonished."

"I did not run afoul of the regular Army system of control," he said. "I was in high favor with ostensible military authorities. Yet I was obviously very much out of favor with the real decision making apparatus."

"The sticking point seemed to be that the apparatus will not permit an Army division to be commanded by a persistently militant anti-Communist," he said in the prepared statement with which he opened the hearing.

Condemning Defense Department information and education policies, Walker charged that civilian control of the military "has been perverted and extended into a commissar-like system of control at all major echelons."

"Behind this unprecedented move to undermine our American way and convince the military that they must support collusion are individuals whose actions endanger the security of our country," he said.

At times visibly nervous, Walker stumbled on occasion while reading his statement. At one point, his attorney, Clyde J. Watts, patted him on the shoulder and corrected his mispronunciation of a word.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., who joined other senators in praising Walker's military record, noted before posing a question that the former general was being given hand-written notes and whispered advice from his two aides at the table.

Symington then asked what Walker found objectionable about a book on communism by Harry and Bonaro Overstreet. Walker had mentioned it and other in his statement as encouraging "accommodation with the enemy—competitive coexistence, which is fundamentally the Communist line."

Walker replied that his knowledge of the book was "hearsay" since he had not read it completely. He said he thought there were some "insinuations of pacifism in it."

In his statement, Walker cited press reports that President Kennedy had ordered the Army inquiry into his indoctrination program and reviewed the subsequent findings. In effect, he said, the President served as both prosecutor and judge.

Walker strongly protested the fact that McNamara released at the subcommittee hearing last fall the record of the inquiry which led to an admonishment and Walker's decision to resign and fight communism in his own way.

"Secretary McNamara misused the report of the investigation to create in the public mind the false impression that I had been found guilty of violating the Hatch Act," Walker said. "this was slander and defamation of character and reputation in the privileged sanctuary of a Senate committee.

Four Indicted On Charges Of Smuggling

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacques Angelvin, 34, an entertainer on French television, was indicted with three other men Wednesday on charges of smuggling $3.3 million worth of heroin into this country.

Despite protests of his lawyer, Angelvin was held in $100,000 bail in Kings County Court. He was master of ceremonies on a popular French television show, "Paris Club."

Similar bail was set for three other defendants, Francois Scaglia, 47, of Paris, and Joseph Fuca, 60, and his son, Pasquale, 31, both of Brooklyn.

No trial date was set. Charges against the four include conspiracy and possession of narcotics.

The state charged that the four men were members of a dope ring operating in France, Canada and the United States, with Lebanon as its source of supply.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Robert Walsh claimed that 24 bags of raw heroin with a value in the illicit market of $3.3 million were brought into this country Jan. 10, hidden in Angelvin's 1960 American-made automobile aboard the liner United States.

Scaglia was described as a contact man who came here from Montreal to supervise transfer of the dope to the Fucas. Police and federal agents tracing the dope raided the Fucas' Brooklyn home Jan. 18, and said they found the narcotics hidden beneath a newly-plastered ceiling.

Body Of 16th Milton Tornado Victim Found

MILTON, Fla. (AP)—The body of the 16th victim of last Saturday's tornado was recovered Wednesday.

The body was that of a 70-year-old Milton Negro, Solomon McLean. An extensive search had been under way for him since shortly after the storm struck this northwest Florida town of 10,000.

Sheriff Wade Cobb said the body was found amid wreckage in a wooded area about 100 yards from where McLean was last seen.

HUNDREDS ROUTED

Kim Novak Flees Fire In Sable Coat

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Kim Novak, wearing a sable coat over a nightgown, fled along with several hundred other guests Wednesday when a kitchen fire sent smoke swirling through the exclusive Plaza Hotel.

Two persons were treated for smoke poisoning, but no one suffered any other ill effects in the Fifth Avenue blaze.

"Oh, my gosh," she exclaimed. "What a way to make an exit."

The film star planned to find an elevator, but a fireman stopped her in the hall and assured her there was no danger and she returned to her room.

"I was sound asleep when the smell of smoke awoke me," she told newsmen later. "I don't mind admitting I was scared. I threw on the sable, gathered a few things and began running down the hall."

The blaze broke out about midnight and was declared under control at 12:33 a.m. It was confined to the kitchen.

Some of those who fled to the halls and lobby had been attending a wedding reception in the grand ballroom. Others were in their nightclothes.

The fire department later issued a summons to William Sheppard, an official at the hotel, because "a door was chocked open, which made for a very serious draft condition," Asst. Fire Chief Thomas J. Hartnett said.

the placement plan, a few New Orleans public elementary schools would have been integrated into the third grade.

Rep. E. W. Gravelet Jr., vice chairman of the segregation committee, said the group "now thinks we have the answer which will ultimately solve this problem and help the people thwart this so-called sociological experiment."

He declined to say what the answer is, but announced that the committee will meet soon to discuss it.

Wright's order was the third setback for New Orleans segregationists in a week. It may have endangered the South's biggest bulwark against immediate and massive public school desegregation.

PALESTINE ARMISTICE

U.N. Observers' Work Restricted

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—U.N. military observers stationed at the Palestine armistice lines are restricted in their movements by both Syria and Israel, their commanding officer said Wednesday.

Their work is further handicapped by Israel's 11-year-old boycott of the Israeli-Syrian U.N. Mixed Armistice Commission, said Swedish Maj. Gen. Carl Carlsson von Horn.

Von Horn, chief of staff of the U.N. truce supervision organization in Palestine, made the statements in written answers to questions from members of the U.N. Security Council. He indicated the Israelis at times used force to hinder his observers.

The members had asked the questions Tuesday in the council's debate on complaints of Syria and Israel accusing each other of aggression in recent border clashes.

To a U.S. query on how his organization's effectiveness could be increased, Von Horn said it "would be greatly increased if both parties were to facilitate the movement" of U.N. observers.

In Syria, Von Horn said, the observers are not allowed to move more than 50 meters from any observation post without Syrian escort or liaison officers, and so cannot see things happening beyond nearby hilltops.

In Israel, he said, it is hard for observers to see what is going on without some means of transportation on the Sea of Galilee, where shooting has occurred among Syrian posts near the shore and Israeli fishing and police boats.

The council, after its third meeting on the complaints, quickly adjourned until Thursday morning to give members time to study Von Horn's replies. Meanwhile, Israel submitted a resolution to have the council express grave concern at Syrian attacks and call on Syria to stop firing into Israel and interfering with Israeli activities on the sea.

Syria had submitted one Tuesday to have the council condemn Israel for a mid-March attack and resolve to impose penalties if it was repeated.

Von Horn said Israel forbade his observers to cruise the Israel-controlled Sea of Galilee without Israeli liaison officers, even though Israeli residents could do so. He added that Israel also denied U.N. planes the use of the nearby Rosh Pina-Mahanayim airport and of the commercial air corridors through there from Jerusalem to the Lebanese border.

Furthermore, the general said, U.N. observers sometimes have been kept out of the demilitarized zone "even by the threat and use of force when crossing at certain points from east to west"—in other words, from Syria toward Israel.

He declared that U.N. authority over the demilitarized zone had been greatly weakened because the Israeli boycott had kept the Mixed Armistice Commission from holding any meetings since 1951. He noted the boycott grew out of a dispute over that authority—and held that it was inconsistent with the armistice agreement to refuse to attend commission meetings.

Judge Suspends Sentence For Winnsboro Man

WINNSBORO (Special)—Jackie Broadway, 23, of Winnsboro, entered a plea of guilty in Fifth District Court here Wednesday to a charge of forgery and was sentenced to three years' imprisonment in the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola. Judge J. Vernon Sims, however, suspended the sentence and placed Broadway on three years' active probation.

Broadway was the subject of a two-state search March 7, following his disappearance in the family car. He returned home March 19, claiming amnesia.

Last Thursday, he cashed a $494 check made out to a local tractor company where he previously was employed. Franklin Parish Sheriff's Department investigators revealed he had left on the trip with the money instead of depositing it. The company deposit included $283.65 in cash and $1,247.11 in checks. The cash had not been recovered.

Valentine Ashworth, 31, Leesville, was sentenced to 20 days in jail on each count after pleading guilty to two previous Grand Jury indictments for worthless checks. The sentence is not to run concurrently. Ashworth already is serving a jail sentence on another worthless check charge.

Five persons entered pleas of guilty to traffic violations and were fined $25 and costs of court each. Guilty pleas were entered by the Sheriff's Department on two DWI cases and 18 other traffic violations on which a total of $1234 in fines and costs were collected.

Walker Says Reds Aided By Official

munist" leaders of the armed forces.

He declared that he was "a scapegoat of an unwritten policy of collaboration and collusion with the international Communist conspiracy."

Yarmolinsky's name came up when Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., asked Walker to name some individuals behind such a policy. Walker said he had a number of people in mind. He added that he disagreed "100 per cent" with Yarmolinsky and would fire him if he were McNamara.

As for McNamara himself, he said he was in no position to judge, except that the secretary had broad responsibility.

Under later questioning by Thurmond, Walker — disclaiming any desire for "name - calling"— said that Yarmolinsky's "connection with communism has certainly been close and his activities have aided communism."

Walker said Yarmolinsky had admitted attending meetings of the Young Communist League as a guest, but denied membership in the party youth group.

Yarmolinsky, he said, did a critical survey of government security programs under the sponsorship of the fund for the republic.

Walker also offered information on Yarmolinsky's parents. He linked Yarmolinsky's mother, the writer Babette Deutsch, with public statements urging abolition of the House Un-American Activities Committee.

Walker said Yarmolinsky's parents translated a volume of Russian poetry in 1927 for what he said was the official Communist publishing house.

Walker said Yarmolinsky once was associated with the law firm of George W. Ball, now undersecretary of state. Ball, he said, was associated with Philip Stern who as deputy assistant secretary of state had charge of the State Department's speech review program. Stern has recently left the department.

Walker said Yarmolinsky also was associated with presidential assistant Ted Sorensen and President Kennedy's brother-in - law, Sargent Shriver, in screening some 75 top attorneys for posts in the administration.

Thurmond asked Walker to name "salacious" publications others which he viewed as detrimental to his European command.

Walker, who earlier, had denounced Overseas Weekly, the publication that first criticized his indoctrination program, named The Nation, the New Republic, and The Reporter. He said they were "soft on communism, definitely, following the party line. . .and assisting it."

In reply to subsequent questions he added the Bulletin of atomic scientists and the Foreign Policy Bulletin of the Foreign Policy Association, Inc.

In a statement opening the hearing, Walker accused President Kennedy of acting as both prosecutor and judge in his case. He also charged that McNamara issued an army report on his indoctrination program to slander and defame him.

In his statement and in reply to questions, Walker said U. S. armed forces "are paralyzed by our national policy of 'no win' and retreat from victory." He said there are several military actions they could plan to put the United States in a winning posture.

The ex-general, who resigned from the Army after his removal as commander of the 24th Division in Germany, testified at a hearing marked by the ejection of George Lincoln Rockwell, head of the American Nazi party, and two of his storm troopers. They were removed for wearing swastika buttons in violation of a Capitol rule.

Walker denied charges that he violated the Hatch Act's ban on political activity by federal employes by trying to influence soldiers and civilians under his jurisdiction in the 1960 congressional elections.

Rather, he said, he "came into conflict with the real control apparatus, and was removed from my command and admonished."

"I did not run afoul of the regular Army system of control," he said. "I was in high favor with ostensible military authorities. Yet I was obviously very much out of favor with the real decision making apparatus."

"The sticking point seemed to be that the apparatus will not permit an Army division to be commanded by a persistently militant anti-Communist," he said in the prepared statement with which he opened the hearing.

Condemning Defense Department information and education policies, Walker charged that civilian control of the military "has been perverted and extended into a commissar-like system of control at all major echelons."

"Behind this unprecedented move to undermine our American way and convince the military that they must support collusion are individuals whose actions endanger the security of our country," he said.

At times visibly nervous, Walker stumbled on occasion while reading his statement. At one point, his attorney, Clyde J. Watts, patted him on the shoulder and corrected his mispronunciation of a word.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., who joined other senators in praising Walker's military record, noted before posing a question that the former general was being given hand-written notes and whispered advice from his two aides at the table.

Symington then asked what Walker found objectionable about a book on communism by Harry and Bonaro Overstreet. Walker had mentioned it and other in his statement as encouraging "accommodation with the enemy—competitive coexistence, which is fundamentally the Communist line."

Walker replied that his knowledge of the book was "hearsay" since he had not read it completely. He said he thought there were some "insinuations of pacifism in it."

In his statement, Walker cited press reports that President Kennedy had ordered the Army inquiry into his indoctrination program and reviewed the subsequent findings. In effect, he said, the President served as both prosecutor and judge.

Walker strongly protested the fact that McNamara released at the subcommittee hearing last fall the record of the inquiry which led to an admonishment and Walker's decision to resign and fight communism in his own way.

"Secretary McNamara misused the report of the investigation to create in the public mind the false impression that I had been found guilty of violating the Hatch Act," Walker said. "this was slander and defamation of character and reputation in the privileged sanctuary of a Senate committee.

Four Indicted On Charges Of Smuggling

NEW YORK (AP)—Jacques Angelvin, 34, an entertainer on French television, was indicted with three other men Wednesday on charges of smuggling $3.3 million worth of heroin into this country.

Despite protests of his lawyer, Angelvin was held in $100,000 bail in Kings County Court. He was master of ceremonies on a popular French television show, "Paris Club."

Similar bail was set for three other defendants, Francois Scaglia, 47, of Paris, and Joseph Fuca, 60, and his son, Pasquale, 31, both of Brooklyn.

No trial date was set. Charges against the four include conspiracy and possession of narcotics.

The state charged that the four men were members of a dope ring operating in France, Canada and the United States, with Lebanon as its source of supply.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Robert Walsh claimed that 24 bags of raw heroin with a value in the illicit market of $3.3 million were brought into this country Jan. 10, hidden in Angelvin's 1960 American-made automobile aboard the liner United States.

Scaglia was described as a contact man who came here from Montreal to supervise transfer of the dope to the Fucas. Police and federal agents tracing the dope raided the Fucas' Brooklyn home Jan. 18, and said they found the narcotics hidden beneath a newly-plastered ceiling.

Body Of 16th Milton Tornado Victim Found

MILTON, Fla. (AP)—The body of the 16th victim of last Saturday's tornado was recovered Wednesday.

The body was that of a 70-year-old Milton Negro, Solomon McLean. An extensive search had been under way for him since shortly after the storm struck this northwest Florida town of 10,000.

Sheriff Wade Cobb said the body was found amid wreckage in a wooded area about 100 yards from where McLean was last seen.

County Civil Defense Director Ben Henry Pooley estimated damage at about $1.85 million.

Kim Novak Flees Fire In Sable Coat

NEW YORK (AP) — Actress Kim Novak, wearing a sable coat over a nightgown, fled along with several hundred other guests Wednesday when a kitchen fire sent smoke swirling through the exclusive Plaza Hotel.

Two persons were treated for smoke poisoning, but no one suffered any other ill effects in the Fifth Avenue blaze.

"Oh, my gosh," she exclaimed. "What a way to make an exit."

The film star planned to find an elevator, but a fireman stopped her in the hall and assured her there was no danger and she returned to her room.

"I was sound asleep when the smell of smoke awoke me," she told newsmen later. "I don't mind admitting I was scared. I threw on the sable, gathered a few things and began running down the hall."

The blaze broke out about midnight and was declared under control at 12:33 a.m. It was confined to the kitchen.

Some of those who fled to the halls and lobby had been attending a wedding reception in the grand ballroom. Others were in their nightclothes.

The fire department later issued a summons to William Sheppard, an official at the hotel, because "a door was chocked open, which made for a very serious draft condition," Asst. Fire Chief Thomas J. Hartnett said.

Judge Wright Challenged By Segregationist

the placement plan, a few New Orleans public elementary schools would have been integrated into the third grade.

Rep. E. W. Gravelet Jr., vice chairman of the segregation committee, said the group "now thinks we have the answer which will ultimately solve this problem and help the people thwart this so-called sociological experiment."

He declined to say what the answer is, but announced that the committee will meet soon to discuss it.

Wright's order was the third setback for New Orleans segregationists in a week. It may have endangered the South's biggest bulwark against immediate and massive public school desegregation.

PALESTINE ARMISTICE

U.N. Observers' Work Restricted

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —U.N. military observers stationed at the Palestine armistice lines are restricted in their movements by both Syria and Israel, their commanding officer said Wednesday.

Their work is further handicapped by Israel's 11-year-old boycott of the Israeli-Syrian U.N. Mixed Armistice Commission, said Swedish Maj. Gen. Carl Carlsson von Horn.

Von Horn, chief of staff of the U.N. truce supervision organization in Palestine, made the statements in written answers to questions from members of the U.N. Security Council. He indicated the Israelis at times used force to hinder his observers.

The members had asked the questions Tuesday in the council's debate on complaints of Syria and Israel accusing each other of aggression in recent border clashes.

To a U.S. query on how his organization's effectiveness could be increased, Von Horn said it "would be greatly increased if both parties were to facilitate the movement" of U.N. observers.

In Syria, Von Horn said, the observers are not allowed to move more than 50 meters from any observation post without Syrian escort or liaison officers, and so cannot see things happening beyond nearby hilltops.

In Israel, he said, it is hard for observers to see what is going on without some means of transportation on the Sea of Galilee, where shooting has occurred among Syrian posts near the shore and Israeli fishing and police boats.

The council, after its third meeting on the complaints, quickly adjourned until Thursday morning to give members time to study Von Horn's replies. Meanwhile, Israel submitted a resolution to have the council express grave concern at Syrian attacks and call on Syria to stop firing into Israel and interfering with Israeli activities on the sea.

Syria had submitted one Tuesday to have the council condemn Israel for a mid-March attack and resolve to impose penalties if it was repeated.

Von Horn said Israel forbade his observers to cruise the Israel-controlled Sea of Galilee without Israeli liaison officers, even though Israeli residents could do so. He added that Israel also denied U.N. planes the use of the nearby Rosh Pina-Mahanayim airport and of the commercial air corridors through there from Jerusalem to the Lebanese border.

Furthermore, the general said, U.N. observers sometimes have been kept out of the demilitarized zone "even by the threat and use of force when crossing at certain points from east to west"—in other words, from Syria toward Israel.

He declared that U.N. authority over the demilitarized zone had been greatly weakened because the Israeli boycott had kept the Mixed Armistice Commission from holding any meetings since 1951. He noted the boycott grew out of a dispute over that authority—and held that it was inconsistent with the armistice agreement to refuse to attend commission meetings.

Judge Suspends Sentence For Winnsboro Man

WINNSBORO (Special)—Jackie Broadway, 23, of Winnsboro, entered a plea of guilty in Fifth District Court here Wednesday to a charge of forgery and was sentenced to three years' imprisonment in the Louisiana State Penitentiary at Angola. Judge J. Vernon Sims, however, suspended the sentence and placed Broadway on three years' active probation.

Broadway was the subject of a two-state search March 7, following his disappearance in the family car. He returned home March 19, claiming amnesia.

Last Thursday, he cashed a $494 check made out to a local tractor company where he previously was employed. Franklin Parish Sheriff's Department investigators revealed he had left on the trip with the money instead of depositing it. The company deposit included $283.65 in cash and $1,247.11 in checks. The cash had not been recovered.

Valentine Ashworth, 31, Leesville, was sentenced to 20 days in jail on each count after pleading guilty to two previous Grand Jury indictments for worthless checks. The sentence is not to run concurrently. Ashworth already is serving a jail sentence on another worthless check charge.

Five persons entered pleas of guilty to traffic violations and were fined $25 and costs of court each. Guilty pleas were entered by the Sheriff's Department on two DWI cases and 18 other traffic violations on which a total of $1234 in fines and costs were collected.

CONNIE NICHOLAS, 47, wept Wednesday as she walked free from Indiana Women's Prison after serving two years for killing her millionaire drug executive lover, Forrest Teel. (AP Wirephoto)

SERVES TWO YEARS

Woman Released In Lover Slaying

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Connie Nicholas walked through the gate at the Indiana Women's Prison Wednesday a free woman, and burst into tears as she did frequently during her trial for killing her millionaire lover.

Mrs. Nicholas, 47, had served the minimum two-year sentence on a manslaughter conviction for the fatal shooting of Forrest Teel, 54, vice president of Eli Lilly & Co. She said Teel spurned her for a younger woman after a 15-year illicit love affair.

With her head bowed, she walked briskly from her prison cottage to the gate. As she walked down a sidewalk to the administration building, tears filled her eyes.

Seeing newsmen she recognized from the trial, she raised her head for the only time, wiped away the tears and said: "It looks like old home week, doesn't it."

Those were the only words she spoke.

After about two minutes inside the building, she walked out and stepped quickly into a car with her sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Blankenship of nearby New Whiteland, Ind., in whose home she'll live until she decides about her future.

"I'm still excited," she said, "excited and happy."

She planned to relax and rest. She looked slightly heavier than when she entered prison, but denied having gained any weight.

"In fact I lost a little," she said.

Mrs. Nicholas has said she hopes to return to work as a secretary, probably in Indianapolis, but indicated she is a little worried about publicity.

"I don't want to put my future in jeopardy," she said. "I do have to work for a living."

When she left the prison, Mrs. Nicholas carried her overnight case in her right hand—the one the defense contended was left paralyzed because of injuries suffered in a struggle with Teel, a married man, the night of July 31, 1958. Teel was shot to death that night in his car near the apartment of his new girl friend.

The prosecution contended the paralysis was caused by an overdose of sleeping pills Mrs. Nicholas took in some fruit juice after the shooting. She was found in a coma in her parked car along a secluded creek bank about 20 hours after Teel was shot.

Her hand does not appear paralyzed now, but a prison official said the little fingers of both hands are stiff and there is some sign of paralysis in both ring fingers.

The official said Mrs. Nicholas, who worked at fingerprinting and photographing new prisoners, and in the hospital, had developed her own system of typing.

She will have to report regularly to a parole officer for one year.

U.S. Urges Freezing Of Arms Race

GENEVA (UPI) — The United States called Wednesday for prompt action on measures to "freeze the arms race" as the first step toward worldwide disarmament.

U. S. chief delegate Arthur H. Dean urged the 17-nation disarmament conference to bring experts of East and West and the neutral countries together to consider how best to carry out the measures and verify that nations keep their promises.

He pointed out to the eight non-aligned nations at the conference that their compromise suggestions for ending the Soviet-American deadlock over a nuclear test ban treaty all hinged on some degree of international inspection.

"But nothing they have said gives the slightest indication that the Soviets might be willing to sign a treaty incorporation controls," he said.

"On this critical point, the Socialist (Communist) countries appear at odds with every other nation represented on this committee.

"The basic and fundamental issue of controls cannot be compromised at the start. It would be like removing the motor from a car, and then deciding what color to paint the empty, useless spot."

Deal laid out this program of immediate goals:

—Ending production of plutonium and uranium for making nuclear warheads.

—Insuring that nuclear weapons are not transferred to nations who do not now have them.

—Arrange the transfer of 50,000 kilograms (55 tons) of fissionable materials from national stockpiles to an international agency to be used for peaceful purposes.

"Such measures would freeze the arms race and reduce the number of nuclear weapons ... we want to put the lid on nuclear production," Dean said.

Canada's Gen. E. L. J. Burns, former chief of the U.N. middle east force, circulated a document comparing American and Soviet views on each step of disarmament. He said he hoped this would point up possible areas of agreement.

Dean reported he and Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin were making "some progress" in drafting a preamble for a disarmament treaty and hoped to report agreement soon.

Arrests Clear Local Burglary; 3 Negroes Held

The Monday night burglary of a Monroe business has been cleared with the arrests of three Negroes by Monroe police.

Chief James C. Kelly identified them as John Wesley Wright, 26, of 1607 South College Ave.; George Lewis, 22, of 1105 Pine St., and Algie Lee Collins, 23, of 1312½ Olive St., all of Monroe.

Police recovered close to $275 worth of the merchandise that was stolen from Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company at 1514 Louisville Ave.

Both Lewis and Collins, who were apprehended at 8 p.m. Tuesday and booked for burglary, have given statements admitting the breakin. However, Wright, who was apprehended at 11:30 p.m. Tuesday on the same charge, has not been questioned, police said.

Among the items police have recovered are a $10.95 electric hair cutter; two six - transistor radios valued at $26.95 each; four 10 - transistor radios valued at $44.44 each; and two of the six watches that were reported taken whose value ranged from $6.95 to $15.

All three Negroes were transferred to the Ouachita Parish jail.

Guido Gets Demands Of Peron Group

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—President Jose M. Guido sought to broaden the base of his new government Wednesday but met a Peronist demand he "respect" the March 18 election results.

In those elections, followers of ousted dictator Juan D. Peron won governorships in 10 provinces, control of an eleventh and 46 seats in the federal congress. The surprise victories sparked a 12-day political crisis capped by military ouster, arrest and banishment of President Arturo Frondizi and his succession by Guido.

However, despite the stiffness of the Peronist attitude, outlined by Textile Union leader Andres Framini, Guido appeared to be gathering support for his caretaker government elsewhere.

Leaders of the People's Radical Progressive Democrat and Democratic Socialist parties agreed to discuss possible collaboration.

The revised attitude of the opposition party leaders followed a Supreme Court ruling that the Guido's efforts to get the country back on a level political keel came with the decision of Frondizi's intransigeant radical party to boycott the new government.

Intransigeant senators who hold 43 of the 46 seats in the chamber voted solidarity with Frondizi Tuesday night and agreed they would have no part of the new Guido regime. However, Party spokesman Sen. Alfred Garcia pledged "patriotic collaboration" of the party to "re-channel" democracy in Argentina.

Perhaps significantly, however, the intransigeants made it clear they did not challenge Guido patriotism and also pledged a constitutional "loyal opposition" stand.

Framini's statement attacked what the successful Peronist candidate for the Buenos Aires Province governorship called "an era of the hiding of the truth" following the Frondizi ouster by the military.

"Apparently the public is to be given the choice of a 'conditioned' legality or a military dictatorship," Framini said. The only solution to the Argentine political situation is to respect the results of the March 18 elections, the textile leader said.

SUBS THREATEN FLEET

Pershing Fired Over 200 Miles

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — A Pershing artillery missile was fired more than 200 miles Wednesday in a test designed primarily to check characteristics of warhead re-entry.

The Army, which is developing the Pershing as a mobile field weapon, announced success of the mission, 29th in 33 Pershing test firings.

The two-stage solid-fuel missile is scheduled to become operational late this year. It will be deployed initially with troops in Western Europe.

—Insuring that nuclear weapons are not transferred to nations who do not now have them.

—Arrange the transfer of 50,000 kilograms (55 tons) of fissionable materials from national stockpiles to an international agency to be used for peaceful purposes.

"Such measures would freeze the arms race and reduce the number of nuclear weapons . . . we want to put the lid on nuclear production," Dean said.

Canada's Gen. E. L. J. Burns, former chief of the U.N. middle east force, circulated a document comparing American and Soviet views on each step of disarmament. He said he hoped this would point up possible areas of agreement.

Dean reported he and Soviet delegate Valerian Zorin were making "some progress" in drafting a preamble for a disarmament treaty and hoped to report agreement soon.

Arrests Clear Local Burglary; 3 Negroes Held

The Monday night burglary of a Monroe business has been cleared with the arrests of three Negroes by Monroe police.

Chief James C. Kelly identified them as John Wesley Wright, 26, of 1607 South College Ave.; George Lewis, 22, of 1105 Pine St., and Algie Lee Collins, 23, of 1312½ Olive St., all of Monroe.

Police recovered close to $275 worth of the merchandise that was stolen from Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company at 1514 Louisville Ave.

Both Lewis and Collins, who were apprehended at 8 p.m. Tuesday and booked for burglary, have given statements admitting the breakin. However, Wright, who was apprehended at 11:30 p.m. Tuesday on the same charge, has not been questioned, police said.

Among the items police have recovered are a $10.95 electric hair cutter; two six - transistor radios valued at $26.95 each; four 10 - transistor radios valued at $44.44 each; and two of the six watches that were reported taken whose value ranged from $6.95 to $15.

All three Negroes were transferred to the Ouachita Parish jail.

Guido Gets Demands Of Peron Group

BUENOS AIRES (UPI)—President Jose M. Guido sought to broaden the base of his new government Wednesday but met a Peronist demand he "respect" the March 18 election results.

In those elections, followers of ousted dictator Juan D. Peron won governorships in 10 provinces, control of an eleventh and 46 seats in the federal congress. The surprise victories sparked a 12-day political crisis capped by military ouster, arrest and banishment of President Arturo Frondizi and his succession by Guido.

However, despite the stiffness of the Peronist attitude, outlined by Textile Union leader Andres Framini, Guido appeared to be gathering support for his caretaker government elsewhere.

Leaders of the People's Radical Progressive Democrat and Democratic Socialist parties agreed to discuss possible collaboration.

The revised attitude of the opposition party leaders followed a Supreme Court ruling that the Guido's efforts to get the country back on a level political keel came with the decision of Frondizi's intransigeant radical party to boycott the new government.

Intransigeant senators who hold 43 of the 46 seats in the chamber voted solidarity with Frondizi Tuesday night and agreed they would have no part of the new Guido regime. However, Party spokesman Sen. Alfred Garcia pledged "patriotic collaboration" of the party to "re-channel" democracy in Argentina.

Perhaps significantly, however, the intransigeants made it clear they did not challenge Guido patriotism and also pledged a constitutional "loyal opposition" stand.

Framini's statement attacked what the successful Peronist candidate for the Buenos Aires Province governorship called "an era of the hiding of the truth" following the Frondizi ouster by the military.

"Apparently the public is to be given the choice of a 'conditioned' legality or a military dictatorship," Framini said. The only solution to the Argentine political situation is to respect the results of the March 18 elections, the textile leader said.

Conservative Group Leader Resigns In Fear

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The girl president of a politically conservative group of college students said Wednesday she had resigned "in fear of my safety."

Miss Billie Lutz, 19, said that her fear was inspired by the hanging death of Newton E. Armstrong Jr., 19, a member of the group, and by what she considered an implied threat in a hangman's noose left in the parked car of another member.

She said her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Lutz, of nearby Pacific Beach, had urged her to resign from the presidency and from membership in the Student for Freedom group at San Diego State College.

His father, a member of the John Birch Society, declared he had been murdered by Communists.

Coroner Robert L. Creason has held the death was by accident or suicide, but is holding the case open pending an investigation by Dist. Atty. Don Keller.

Dr. Malcolm Love, president of the college, said Tuesday he saw no relation between Armstrong's death and his campus political activities.

Indictments Returned By Grand Jury

Ouachita's Parish Grand Jury returned indictments for murder, negligent homicide and simple battery Wednesday, and apparently returned a no-true bill clearing Police Juror Leslie Hamm of any guilt in the "kapture gun" incident.

Jurors returned a total of three true bills, two no-true bills and pretermitted one case.

True bills were brought against:

1. Mattie N. Smith, Sterlington Negress charged with negligent homicide in the death of Monroe industrialist Robert W. Cretney, 63. He died 10 days after his auto was involved in a collision with her vehicle on U. S. 165 on March 16.

2. Willie Tugwell, Negro indicted on a murder charge in the fatal shooting of Mary Belle Smith, Negro, on March 7.

3. James W. Shanks, 430 Bawcom St., West Monroe, indicted on a charge of simple battery on Marie Teasley on February 17.

Earle brought charges against Hamm in February, and in stories carried by the News-Star and World he claimed that the Police Jury had bought as new a gun used by Hamm. As the time, Hamm denied it.

"I think the action of the Grand Jury tends to confirm my claim of innocence all along," Hamm said last night. "They took a negative view of Mr. Earle's accusations."

"I don't know what his testimony or accusations were to the Grand Jury," said Hamm, who represents Ward five, "but I feel sure he was unable to show any wrong doing on my part."

In February of this year, Earle charged that Hamm had bought the gun from the veterinarian, used it, returned it in damaged condition, and that the repairs were paid for by the Police Jury.

"That's not true, of course," Hamm said yesterday. "If it had been, don't you know I'd have been indicted.

"If he (Earle) can produce a repair bill, I'd like to see it."

Hamm has maintained that the veterinarian accepted the gun, on approval, from a salesman, then asked Hamm to try it out to see how it worked.

A "kapture gun" contains syringes, and is used to inject tranquilizers or medicine into animals which would balk at close-up treatment.

The ward five juror tired it out on a stump, but decided not to try it on an animal because the syringe hit the stump with a great force which might injure an animal.

However, he was billed for the gun by the veterinarian's nurse, who did not know the circumstances of the case, and Hamm's wife paid the bill by check without consulting him.

When Hamm saw the cancelled check, he immediately returned the gun, and had the price credited to his account.

Later, when the parish Range Rider requested the Police Jury to purchase such a gun for him to use, the Jury bought that "kapture gun" from the veterinarian.

Eleven months later, Earle brought charges against Hamm.

"That gun was in brand new condition when it was returned to the veterinarian, and when it was picked up for use by our parish range rider," Hamm said.

Although the charges have been made, Hamm revealed that Earle, "never approached me about it at all. He has never mentioned anything about it to me."

Fred Brownless of ward 10 served as foreman of the Grand Jury, which reported to Judge Mack Barham in Fourth District Court yesterday.

Grand Jurors noted that both Conway Memorial Hospital and Louisiana Training Institute are in need of additional space.

LTI Superintendent A. L. Swanson and his staff were commended for the "very excellent job which they have been doing and are now doing in their supervision" of youths.

"It is apparent," the report continued, "that further capital expenditures are necessary in order to keep pace with the increased population of that institution." It called for immediate repairs and reconditioning of the Institute.

Law enforcement officers of the Sheriff's Department, Monroe Police, West Monroe Police and Troop F State Police, and Fourth District Court were commended.

Dixon Is Named To Traffic Post

Harry Dixon Jr., of Monroe, has been named to fill the unexpired term of New Orleans C. C. Bostwick as president of the Louisiana chapter of the American Society of Traffic and Transportation.

New officers will not be elected until September.

Conservative Group Leader Resigns In Fear

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—The girl president of a politically conservative group of college students said Wednesday she had resigned "in fear of my safety."

Miss Billie Lutz, 19, said that her fear was inspired by the hanging death of Newton E. Armstrong Jr., 19, a member of the group, and by what she considered an implied threat in a hangman's noose left in the parked car of another member.

She said her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James C. Lutz, of nearby Pacific Beach, had urged her to resign from the presidency and from membership in the Student for Freedom group at San Diego State College.

His father, a member of the John Birch Society, declared he had been murdered by Communists.

Coroner Robert L. Creason has held the death was by accident or suicide, but is holding the case open pending an investigation by Dist. Atty. Don Keller.

Dr. Malcolm Love, president of the college, said Tuesday he saw no relation between Armstrong's death and his campus political activities.

Indictments Returned By Grand Jury

Ouachita's Parish Grand Jury returned indictments for murder, negligent homicide and simple battery Wednesday, and apparently returned a no - true bill clearing Police Juror Leslie Hamm of any guilt in the "kapture gun" incident.

Jurors returned a total of three true bills, two no - true bills and pretermitted one case.

True bills were brought against:

1. Mattie N. Smith, Sterlington Negress charged with negligent homicide in the death of Monroe industrialist Robert W. Cretney, 63. He died 10 days after his auto was involved in a collision with her vehicle on U. S. 165 on March 16.

2. Willie Tugwell, Negro indicted on a murder charge in the fatal shooting of Mary Belle Smith, Negro, on March 7.

3. James W. Shanks, 430 Bawcom St., West Monroe, indicted on a charge of simple battery on Marie Teasley on February 17.

Earle brought charges against Hamm in February, and in stories carried by the News - Star and World he claimed that the Police Jury had bought as new a gun used by Hamm. As the time, Hamm denied it.

"I think the action of the Grand Jury tends to confirm my claim of innocence all along," Hamm said last night. "They took a negative view of Mr. Earle's accusations."

"I don't know what his testimony or accusations were to the Grand Jury," said Hamm, who represents Ward five, "but I feel sure he was unable to show any wrong doing on my part."

In February of this year, Earle charged that Hamm had bought the gun from the veterinarian, used it, returned it in damaged condition, and that the repairs were paid for by the Police Jury.

"That's not true, of course," Hamm said yesterday. "If it had been, don't you know I'd have been indicted.

"If he (Earle) can produce a repair bill, I'd like to see it."

Hamm has maintained that the veterinarian accepted the gun, on approval, from a salesman, then asked Hamm to try it out to see how it worked.

A "kapture gun" contains syringes, and is used to inject tranquillizers or medicine into animals which would balk at close-up treatment.

The ward five juror tired it out on a stump, but decided not to try it on an animal because the syringe hit the stump with a great force which might injure an animal.

However, he was billed for the gun by the veterinarian's nurse, who did not know the circumstances of the case, and Hamm's wife paid the bill by check without consulting him.

When Hamm saw the cancelled check, he immediately returned the gun, and had the price credited to his account.

Later, when the parish Range Rider requested the Police Jury to purchase such a gun for him to use, the Jury bought that "kapture gun" from the veterianarian.

Eleven months later, Earle brought charges against Hamm.

"That gun was in brand new condition when it was returned to the veterinarian, and when it was picked up for use by our parish range rider," Hamm said.

Although the charges have been made, Hamm revealed that Earle, "never approached me about it at all. He has never mentioned anything about it to me."

Fred Brownless of ward 10 served as foreman of the Grand Jury, which reported to Judge Mack Barham in Fourth District Court yesterday.

Grand Jurors noted that both Conway Memorial Hospital and Louisiana Training Institute are in need of additional space.

LTI Superintendent A. L. Swanson and his staff were commended for the "very excellent job which they have been doing and are now doing in their supervision" of youths.

"It is apparent," the report continued, "that further capital expenditures are necessary in order to keep pace with the increased population of that institution." It called for immediate repairs and reconditioning of the Institute.

Law enforcement officers of the Sheriff's Department, Monroe Police, West Monroe Police and Troop F State Police, and Fourth District Court were commended.

Luxembourg Bidding For Europe Mart

LUXEMBOURG (AP)—This nation of 318,000 is making a bid to become headquarters of a unified Europe.

The Council of State has declared itself ready to give highest priority to building suitable quarters for Europe's burgeoning international institutions — common Market, Coal-Steel Pool, Euratom.

Parliament has approved construction of $304-million headquarters for the Coal-Steel Pool, already located here.

The Common Market Commission and Euratom, the atomic organization, are in Brussels, the Coal-Steel Pool and the Court of Justice in Luxembourg, the European Parliamentary Assembly in Strasbourg.

Luxembourg, bounded by Germany, Belgium and France, was established when the Congress of Vienna drew a new map of Europe after Napoleon's final defeat in 1815. It has been independent ever since, except for the German occupation of two world wars.

Today the tiny state has a full customs and monetary union with Belgium and is also a member of Benelux, the customs union embracing Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg as one economic group.

The ruler is Grand Duchess Charlotte, 66. She has passed over part of her duties to her heir, Prince Jean, and is expected to retire. The grand duchy's official language is French, although a local dialect of German is even more widely used.

Luxembourg would dearly love to see the tiny capital (Pop. 70,000) the new European headquarters.

Civil servants of the European community are less enthusiastc. The placid life of Luxembourg burghers, expensive and comfortable, does not appeal. There are not enough bright lights provided by its half-dozen night clubs. The town goes to bed too early.

Pravda Urges Incentive Pay For Workers

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda, the voice of the Communist party, came out Wednesday for individual bonus payments and incentives to workers to speed production.

It means scrapping the system of incentive payments to work brigades and other groups. Bonuses for the individual worker have not been general.

Incentive payments to groups have been made to encourage team spirit and collective morale.

The Pravda article, written by A. Volkov, said current leveling of payments in many places was bad.

The article, in effect a directive to get more production through individual incentives, followed demands by Premier Khrushchev that more pay be offered for more work, especially on farms where harvests have been lagging for three years.

As a matter of fact many factories already have been paying individual and group bonuses for piece work, but these resulted in draining off most skilled labor from farms to cities.

Volkov condemned the magazine Economic Gazette for publishing an article encouraging payment on a collective basis instead of individually.

The magazine writer said payment for individual productivity cultivates individuality and weakens the strength of the collective. The same views were expressed in a book recently and in an article by the popular big circulation magazine Light.

Pravda said such articles introduce harmful confusion in workers' ranks.

"Leveling is inadmissable under any system of payment. Like any unjustified haste in expansion of free services and advantages, leveling can only impair the cause of Communist construction, further advance of labor productivity and material well being of people, development of soviet science, technique and culture," Pravda said.

"Employment at some enterprises of payment for work according to collective piecework system, which considers final results, cannot be universal."

The free services and advantages referred to the encouragement of workers to accept fringe benefits, such as entertainment and vacations, in lieu of higher wages.

As is often done when a sharp change of direction is ordered, the Pravda writer pretended there was no real change.

"The principle of payment in accordance with quantity and quality of work of each worker has served and continues to serve as a mighty means of advancing socialist output," Volkov wrote.

Lenten Message

By The Rt. Rev. C. AVERY MASON
Bishop
Episcopal Diocese of Dallas
Written for UPI

Each spring the period of Lent and Easter reminds us of Christian hope. Lent is a time of purification, not only in the springtime of nature, but in the hearts and minds of all people.

Underneath the discipline of Lenten self-denial is the spirit of expectation and of hope. That expectation and that hope is fulfilled at Easter.

Certainly the times in which we live call for the Christian spirit of hope. Despite the prophets of gloom and destruction about us, despite the fact that they may be the end of our time through the dropping of atomic bombs, Christians are still the messengers of hope. Our extinction on this earth will come quickly or gradually — really it doesn't matter, and death by bombs is no different than death through natural causes. One may be more agonizing than the other, but to be dead is to be dead.

The hope of the Christian is in Easter, for the Christian has not been sold, by materialists, "a bill of goods," that this life is all there is. The hope of the Christian himself is founded, not on the theory, but the fact of Christ's resurrection. That hope is predicated on the promises of the resurrected Christ.

Therefore, we rejoice in this age of discovery and revelation as we read each bit of news which magnifies the wonderful world which God has created. Atomic energy, radio, television, jet flying, psychology, medicine, psychiatry, et cetera, all reveal the wonderful works of God. Yet beyond this world lies another world in the realm of the spirit. Into the mysteries of this unseen world of the spirit, we are projected by prayer and sacrament.

Our confidence, our trust is in the lordship of the risen Christ over this world and the next, and the hope that we shall see Him face to face. Take courage, my brethern, prepare for the great adventure of your life beyond time and space.

FASHION HOUSES MOVE

ROME (UPI) — Simonetta and Alberto Fabiani, top figures in Italy's fashion world, announced Wednesday they are moving their operation to Paris. Roberto Capucci, another big name in Italian fashions, moved to France in January.

French Police Fear Secretary Kidnap Victim

PARIS (UPI)—Police throughout France were alerted Wednesday to search for a pretty brunette secretary in the French military intelligence service who was feared to have been kidnapped by the terrorist Secret Army Organization (OAS).

Madame Francoise Francon, 24, tall, slim widow of a French air force sergeant, disappeared Monday from a small hotel in central Paris. She worked formerly in the Algerian city of Oran for a French intelligence colonel who was murdered by the OAS last December.

Members of her family said she had received a number of threats from the OAS and appeared worried.

Her mother, Madame Renee Sarazy, said "she seemed afraid of something." She told police she was convinced her daughter had been seized by the OAS.

The manageress of the hotel where Madame Francon lived said a blonde young woman with dark glasses left a letter there for the missing girl late Sunday night. She said Madame Francon read it before leaving the hotel and had not been seen since.

Police confirmed that a nation-wide search had been ordered. But they refused to speculate whether Madame Francon might have been kidnapped by the OAS.

Luxembourg Bidding For Europe Mart

LUXEMBOURG (AP)—This nation of 318,000 is making a bid to become headquarters of a unified Europe.

The Council of State has declared itself ready to give highest priority to building suitable quarters for Europe's burgeoning international institutions — common Market, Coal-Steel Pool, Euratom.

Parliament has approved construction of $304-million headquarters for the Coal-Steel Pool, already located here.

The Common Market Commission and Euratom, the atomic organization, are in Brussels, the Coal-Steel Pool and the Court of Justice in Luxembourg, the European Parliamentary Assembly in Strasbourg.

Luxembourg, bounded by Germany, Belgium and France, was established when the Congress of Vienna drew a new map of Europe after Napoleon's final defeat in 1815. It has been independent ever since, except for the German occupation of two world wars.

Today the tiny state has a full customs and monetary union with Belgium and is also a member of Benelux, the customs union embracing Belgium, the Netherlands and Luxembourg as one economic group.

The ruler is Grand Duchess Charlotte, 66. She has passed over part of her duties to her heir, Prince Jean, and is expected to retire. The grand duchy's official language is French, although a local dialect of German is even more widely used.

Luxembourg would dearly love to see the tiny capital (Pop. 70,000) the new European headquarters.

Civil servants of the European community are less enthusiastc. The placid life of Luxembourg burghers, expensive and comfortable, does not appeal. There are not enough bright lights provided by its half-dozen night clubs. The town goes to bed too early.

Pravda Urges Incentive Pay For Workers

MOSCOW (AP) — Pravda, the voice of the Communist party, came out Wednesday for individual bonus payments and incentives to workers to speed production.

It means scrapping the system of incentive payments to work brigades and other groups. Bonuses for the individual worker have not been general.

Incentive payments to groups have been made to encourage team spirit and collective morale.

The Pravda article, written by A. Volkov, said current leveling of payments in many places was bad.

The article, in effect a directive to get more production through individual incentives, followed demands by Premier Khrushchev that more pay be offered for more work, especially on farms where harvests have been lagging for three years.

As a matter of fact many factories already have been paying individual and group bonuses for piece work, but these resulted in draining off most skilled labor from farms to cities.

Volkov condemned the magazine Economic Gazette for publishing an article encouraging payment on a collective basis instead of individually.

The magazine writer said payment for individual productivity cultivates individuality and weakens the strength of the collective. The same views were expressed in a book recently and in an article by the popular big circulation magazine Light.

Pravda said such articles introduce harmful confusion in workers' ranks.

"Leveling is inadmissable under any system of payment. Like any unjustified haste in expansion of free services and advantages, leveling can only impair the cause of Communist construction, further advance of labor productivity and material well being of people, development of soviet science, technique and culture," Pravda said.

"Employment at some enterprises of payment for work according to collective piecework system, which considers final results, cannot be universal."

The free services and advantages referred to the encouragement of workers to accept fringe benefits, such as entertainment and vacations, in lieu of higher wages.

As is often done when a sharp change of direction is ordered, the Pravda writer pretended there was no real change.

"The principle of payment in accordance with quantity and quality of work of each worker has served and continues to serve as a mighty means of advancing socialist output," Volkov wrote.

Lenten Message

By The Rt. Rev.
C. AVERY MASON
Bishop
Episcopal Diocese of Dallas
Written for UPI

Each spring the period of Lent and Easter reminds us of Christian hope. Lent is a time of purification, not only in the springtime of nature, but in the hearts and minds of all people.

Underneath the discipline of Lenten self-denial is the spirit of expectation and of hope. That expectation and that hope is fulfilled at Easter.

Certainly the times in which we live call for the Christian spirit of hope. Despite the prophets of gloom and destruction about us, despite the fact that they may be the end of our time through the dropping of atomic bombs, Christians are still the messengers of hope. Our extinction on this earth will come quickly or gradually — really it doesn't matter, and death by bombs is no different than death through natural causes. One may be more agonizing than the other, but to be dead is to be dead.

The hope of the Christian is in Easter, for the Christian has not been sold, by materialists, "a bill of goods," that this life is all there is. The hope of the Christian himself is founded, not on the theory, but the fact of Christ's resurrection. That hope is predicated on the promises of the resurrected Christ.

Therefore, we rejoice in this age of discovery and revelation as we read each bit of news which magnifies the wonderful world which God has created. Atomic energy, radio, television, jet flying, psychology, medicine, psychiatry, et cetera, all reveal the wonderful works of God. Yet beyond this world lies another world in the realm of the spirit. Into the mysteries of this unseen world of the spirit, we are projected by prayer and sacrament.

Our confidence, our trust is in the lordship of the risen Christ over this world and the next, and the hope that we shall see Him face to face. Take courage, my brethern, prepare for the great adventure of your life beyond time and space.

French Police Fear Secretary Kidnap Victim

PARIS (UPI)—Police throughout France were alerted Wednesday to search for a pretty brunette secretary in the French military intelligence service who was feared to have been kidnapped by the terrorist Secret Army Organization (OAS).

Madame Francoise Francon, 24, tall, slim widow of a French air force sergeant, disappeared Monday from a small hotel in central Paris. She worked formerly in the Algerian city of Oran for a French intelligence colonel who was murdered by the OAS last December.

Members of her family said she had received a number of threats from the OAS and appeared worried.

Her mother, Madame Renee Sarazy, said "she seemed afraid of something." She told police she was convinced her daughter had been seized by the OAS.

The manageress of the hotel where Madame Francon lived said a blonde young woman with dark glasses left a letter there for the missing girl late Sunday night. She said Madame Francon read it before leaving the hotel and had not been seen since.

Police confirmed that a nationwide search had been ordered. But they refused to speculate whether Madame Francon might have been kidnapped by the OAS.

IN LETTER TO SENATOR

JFK Suggests Reforms In U.N.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy proposed reforms in United Nations financing Wednesday and promised to seek larger contributions from other nations while holding down U.S. assistance. But he did not say exactly how he would use $100 million he wants from Congress to ease a U.N. financial crisis.

He took this position in a letter to Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., endorsing a compromise proposal now under Senate debate that would permit him either to loan the $100 million to the United Nations or purchase that amount of U.N. bonds.

Late in the day, Sen. Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., obtained an agreement limiting debate on the bill. This will permit voting on amendments and substitutes to start Thursday. Final disposition may not come until next week.

Sparkman read Kennedy's letter to the Senate and said he was confident it would answer questions raised about how the President would use the authority.

Some Republicans, however, wanting to commit the President to a short-term loan at the same interest rate the United States has to pay in its borrowing, did not agree.

"I do not feel this letter obviates in any way the need to write standards into this bill," said Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., said the letter was couched in ambiguous terms.

The opposition is aimed at preventing Kennedy from purchasing half of a $200-million U.N. bond issue needed to pay debts stemming from refusal of some nations to pay assessments for peacekeeping operations in the Middle East and the Congo.

The bonds run for 25 years at 2 per cent return. The President originally asked authority for an outright $100-million purchase, but endorsed the compromise plan worked out with GOP leaders to permit either loans or a purchase, with the interest rate and duration left up to him.

"It is a wholly satisfactory substitute," he said in his letter, "with just the right combination of discretionary authority and legislative guidelines.

"The funds . . . will be promptly used, as necessary . . . in the manner most likely to minimize the outlays of the United States, maximize the contributions of others and put the essential operation of the United Nations on a sound financial basis."

Kennedy cautioned against the harm that would be done by repudiating the United Nations at this time and emphasized: "The money will be loaned in such a way as to insure repayment of both principal and interest in annual installments."

West Monroe CC Leaders Meet Tonight

A discussion of goals and aims for the coming year will make up the meat of a joint conference of all 11 working committees of the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, called by new president Eugene Scott for 7 a.m., Thursday, April 12.

A breakfast session, set for Walt's Restaurant, the program represents the first of its type ever scheduled by the organization. Chamber Manager Eugene Smith calls it "the first of what we expect will be many firsts from our new president." Scott took over the Chamber reins from retiring Mack Owens Jr., now vice president, at the organization's last board meeting of fiscal 1961, March 28.

A second purpose of next week's meeting, according to Scott himself, will be as a "get-together" to allow the various members and committee heads to become better acquainted. It will be their first common gathering since being named to their posts.

The committees and respective chairmen are: agriculture, A. B. Smith; area and industrial development, Hugh Balfour; civic improvement, A. L. DeLoach; education, C. G. Wall; highways and streets, Roy Brooks; legislative, Bert Hatten; membership and finance, Buster Crowley; retail merchants division, H. R. Parker; transportation, Jack Gaines; and tourism, Tommy Hebert.

The tourism group, headed by Hebert, a West Monroe police officer, is an entirely new one, designed as an aid in the attraction of tourists to Louisiana generally and to West Monroe in particular. Its first major function will be in the planning and promotion of the city's Tourist Appreciation Day, May 9, on which an out of state car will be stopped and its occupants treated to a "grand tour" of the town.

Guido Seeks Support For New Regime

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—President Jose Maria Guido sought support for his new regime Wednesday from Argentine political leaders.

He sent Interior Minister Rodolfo Martinez to huddle with leaders of the People's Radical party, which was the main opposition to deposed President Arturo Frondizi before followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron scored startling election victories March 18.

Frondizi's own Intransigent Radical party—still controlling the Senate and retaining large groups in the Chamber of Deputies—seemed to be turning back from previously announced opposition to the regime which Guido is shaping under the watchful eyes of the Argentine military.

Intransigent Radical senators approved a resolution implying that while they consider themselves divorced politically from their former party colleague, Guido, they will support all government measures deemed good for the country.

Guido, president pro tem of the Senate before a military coup boosted him into the nation's leadership, resigned from the Intransigent Radical party when he became president almost a week ago.

An Intransigent Radical party convention, called to discuss ways to bring Frondizi back into the presidency from his arrest on a Plate River island, appeared to calm down.

Meanwhile, Peronist leader Andres Framini demanded the election victories taken from Peronist candidates by a presidential decree last month be given absolute and unconditional recognition by the new government.

French, Italy Leaders Confer For Eight Hours

TURIN, Italy (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle and Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani conferred for almost eight hours Wednesday and agreed that Western European countries must strengthen their political ties.

But there was no public indication on how close they had brought their opposing views.

France is reported seeking a political confederation of the six original European Common Market nations, with their foreign and defense policies coordinated, but no loss of national sovereignty.

Italy feels that political unity of the six—France, Italy, West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—must include some loss of national sovereignty.

A communique at the end of the talks simply said the two leaders exchanged views on the political union of Europe and "found themselves in agreement in thinking that the (economic) links already uniting the countries of the European community must be strengthened and completed in the political field."

Negro School Principal Asks Desegregation

CARTHAGE, Miss. (AP) — O. E. Jordan, principal of O. E. Jordan Negro school in Leake County, said Wednesday he sent a letter to petitioners seeking school desegregation and urged them to reconsider.

Jordan, immediate past president of the State Negro Teachers Association, said in warning of the consequences: "I did what I thought was my responsibility."

A petition, signed by 52 of whom 23 remain on the list, called on the county board of trustees to desegregate schools. The action came after 132 students from Harmony School were consolidated with another school farther away.

Jordan said in the letter he admired the peaceful race relations that have existed in Leake County, but "at this particular time I am disturbed.

"I call upon you to remove your name from the petition that is now in the superintendent's office. This document, if allowed to be executed, is going to set race relations in Leake County back 50 years.

"We should not let outsiders come in and destroy the peace and dignity of our county."

Jordan said the petitioners would never get the Harmony school back because there isn't enough money to operate three schools in Leake County.

IN MISSISSIPPI

Parenthood Clinic Bill Introduced

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Sen. Sonny Montgomery of Meridian introduced a bill Wednesday to establish a planned parenthood clinic under the State Board of Health and to permit sexual sterilization in certain types of cases.

Montgomery told newsmen doctors had recommended the measure.

The bill, apparently aimed at reducing the number of illegitimate children on welfare rolls, would require the mother of every baby delivered at state expens to attend the planned parenthood clinics at the county health office.

"In the event the mother fails to comply," the bill says, "she and her offspring shall not be eligible to receive additional welfare benefits administered under the laws of this state."

1. Any married adult woman who has been delivered of two children if her husband joins in the request.

2. Any adult woman who has been delivered of at least two illegitimate children.

3. Any minor woman who has been delivered of two illegitimate children if joined in the request by her parents or guardian.

4. Any adult woman who has a medical condition that would endanger life or health.

5. Any minor woman who has a medical condition that would endanger her life or health, if joined by parents or guardian.

Sen. Bill Caraway of Leland offered a bill to give municipal courts authority to punish for contempt of court, with the penalty not exceeding $100 and 30 days.

Caraway also introduced a bill to allow municipalities to microfilm records and destroy originals. It does not require the keeping of any records not required by law to be preserved.

Other introductions were by:

Sen. Ben Hilbun of State College to permit Department of Public Safety employes recourse to courts when dismissed from service.

Sen. Hugh Bailey of Winona and others to permit the state to sell surplus property to congressionally chartered veterans organizations.

Sen. Caraway to exempt nonprofit civic groups from property taxes on property used exclusively for public purposes.

Rep. Lloyd Dickerson of Pike and 27 colleagues to declare the sale, or possession of liquor be a felony.

Rep. J. P. Love of Holmes and others to permit the state tax commission to revoke the beer license of any retailer when the sheriff, police chief or 25 freeholders attest that the retailer handles liquor.

Rep. Tom Campbell of Yazoo and two colleagues to make the county's seats in the house be designated and require candidates for them to run for designated posts.

Rep. Jim Mathis of Leake to require prescriptions for all household domestic purposes under certain conditions.

U.S. Probe Figures On Profits Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Figures presented at a Senate hearing on missile contract profits were challanged by aircraft executive Donald Douglas Wednesday as "a gross distortion."

Douglas is head of the Douglas Aircraft Co., one of the major contractors in the development of the Nike antiaircraft missile systems that have been installed around many U.S. defense areas.

Robert E. Dunne, a Senate staff investigator, testified the Douglas firm received $45.58 million in profits on a series of Nike contracts after turning over much of the work to subcontractors.

Dunne said that based on the ratio of work done by subcontractors the Douglas company's profit was the equivalent of 44.3 per cent, although he said it figured out to 7.6 per cent on all of the work performed by both Douglas and its subcontractors.

Douglas contended his company's profits in the Nike program amounted to only 3.2 per cent of sales.

He contended the figures as presented before the Senate investigations subcommittee were "a gross distortion of the traditions and practices of all business."

By shifting economic frameworks, Douglas said, a fee of 5 or 6 per cent, "which by all present economic standards is a quite proper fee," suddenly becomes "20 to 40 times greater without increasing one with the dollars earned."

Douglas said this type of manipulation "borders on economic frivolity."

The subcommittee began hearings Tuesday into what Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark. calls profit pyramiding. This is a practice by which government contracts pass from one contractor to another, with each putting in a claim for profits and fees on top of the other's bill.

Douglas testified it takes costly specialized facilities, such as laboratories, wind tunnels, missile test stands and the like, to keep the United States ahead of potential enemies.

The government helps support some of this research and development work, he said, but only when the production phase is reached "are we able to earn enough to maintain our technological muscle."

Discussing the relationship between contractors and subcontractors, Douglas said "all levels of the industrial team must be geared to work effectively together so that a desirable change — perhaps something learned through actual deployment to the field—may be incorporated in production as speedily and economically as possible."

"Directing and supervising the incorporation of such changes in subcontractor production, and standing ready to do so," he said, "is a fundamental responsibility of the system manager of subsystem manager."

STORE ON WHEELS

NEW YORK (UPI)—The store went to the customer in early America. Shopping was done in reverse.

This was accomplished by the Yankee peddler, the Antiques Fair News Bureau reports. The peddler and his wagon were responsible for popularizing such things as shelf clocks, the famous Hitchcock chair, pewter, buttons, tinware.

BLIND REPAY INVESTMENT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Russell Bowers, though blind, has been a quality control inspector for 19 years.

The Sharples Corporation, where Bowers works, has developed an attachment for him for a gauging stand widely used in industry. The attachment has a control unit that measures to within five ten-thousandths of an inch. Oversize parts sound one buzzer, undersize parts another and those within allowable tolerances a third.

Sharples says the cost of equipping a blind inspector is $150 more than for a sighted person. However, the company says the investment usually will be repaid quickly since blind persons generally can be trained to out-produce sighted persons in this type of work.

IN LETTER TO SENATOR

JFK Suggests Reforms In U.N.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy proposed reforms in United Nations financing Wednesday and promised to seek larger contributions from other nations while holding down U.S. assistance. But he did not say exactly how he would use $100 million he wants from Congress to ease a U.N. financial crisis.

He took this position in a letter to Sen. John Sparkman, D-Ala., endorsing a compromise proposal now under Senate debate that would permit him either to loan the $100 million to the United Nations or purchase that amount of U.N. bonds.

Late in the day, Sen. Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., obtained an agreement limiting debate on the bill. This will permit voting on amendments and substitutes to start Thursday. Final disposition may not come until next week.

Sparkman read Kennedy's letter to the Senate and said he was confident it would answer questions raised about how the President would use the authority.

Some Republicans, however, wanting to commit the President to a short-term loan at the same interest rate the United States has to pay in its borrowing, did not agree.

"I do not feel this letter obviates in any way the need to write standards into this bill," said Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Neb.

Sen. John G. Tower, R-Tex., said the letter was couched in ambiguous terms.

The opposition is aimed at preventing Kennedy from purchasing half of a $200-million U.N. bond issue needed to pay debts stemming from refusal of some nations to pay assessments for peacekeeping operations in the Middle East and the Congo.

The bonds run for 25 years at 2 per cent return. The President originally asked authority for an outright $100-million purchase, but endorsed the compromise plan worked out with GOP leaders to permit either loans or a purchase, with the interest rate and duration left up to him.

"It is a wholly satisfactory substitute," he said in his letter, "with just the right combination of discretionary authority and legislative guidelines.

"The funds ... will be promptly used, as necessary ... in the manner most likely to minimize the outlays of the United States, maximize the contributions of others and put the essential operation of the United Nations on a sound financial basis."

Kennedy cautioned against the harm that would be done by repudiating the United Nations at this time and emphasized: "The money will be loaned in such a way as to insure repayment of both principal and interest in annual installments."

West Monroe CC Leaders Meet Tonight

A discussion of goals and aims for the coming year will make up the meat of a joint conference of all 11 working committees of the West Monroe Chamber of Commerce, called by new president Eugene Scott for 7 a.m., Thursday, April 12.

A breakfast session, set for Walt's Restaurant, the program represents the first of its type ever scheduled by the organization. Chamber Manager Eugene Smith calls it "the first of what we expect will be many firsts from our new president." Scott took over the Chamber reins from retiring Mack Owens Jr., now vice president, at the organization's last board meeting of fiscal 1961, March 28.

A second purpose of next week's meeting, according to Scott himself, will be as a "get-together" to allow the various members and committee heads to become better acquainted. It will be their first common gathering since being named to their posts.

The committees and respective chairmen are: agriculture, A. B. Smith; area and industrial development, Hugh Balfour; civic improvement, A. L. DeLoach; education, C. G. Wall; highways and streets, Roy Brooks; legislative, Bert Hatten; membership and finance, Buster Crowley; retail merchants division, H. R. Parker; transportation, Jack Gaines; and tourism, Tommy Hebert.

The tourism group, headed by Hebert, a West Monroe police officer, is an entirely new one, designed as an aid in the attraction of tourists to Louisiana generally and to West Monroe in particular. Its first major function will be in the planning and promotion of the city's Tourist Appreciation Day, May 9, on which an out of state car will be stopped and its occupants treated to a "grand tour" of the town.

Guido Seeks Support For New Regime

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP)—President Jose Maria Guido sought support for his new regime Wednesday from Argentine political leaders.

He sent Interior Minister Rodolfo Martinez to huddle with leaders of the People's Radical party, which was the main opposition to deposed President Arturo Frondizi before followers of ex-dictator Juan D. Peron scored startling election victories March 18.

Frondizi's own Intransigent Radical party—still controlling the Senate and retaining large groups in the Chamber of Deputies—seemed to be turning back from previously announced opposition to the regime which Guido is shaping under the watchful eyes of the Argentine military.

Intransigent Radical senators approved a resolution implying that while they consider themselves divorced politically from their former party colleague, Guido, they will support all government measures deemed good for the country.

Guido, president pro tem of the Senate before a military coup boosted him into the nation's leadership, resigned from the Intransigent Radical party when he became president almost a week ago.

An Intransigent Radical party convention, called to discuss ways to bring Frondizi back into the presidency from his arrest on a Plate River island, appeared to calm down.

Meanwhile, Peronist leader Andres Framini demanded the election victories taken from Peronist candidates by a presidential decree last month be given absolute and unconditional recognition by the new government.

French, Italy Leaders Confer For Eight Hours

TURIN, Italy (AP) — French President Charles de Gaulle and Italian Premier Amintore Fanfani conferred for almost eight hours Wednesday and agreed that Western European countries must strengthen their political ties.

But there was no public indication on how close they had brought their opposing views.

France is reported seeking a political confederation of the six original European Common Market nations, with their foreign and defense policies coordinated, but no loss of national sovereignty.

Italy feels that political unity of the six—France, Italy, West Germany, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg—must include some loss of national sovereignty.

A communique at the end of the talks simply said the two leaders exchanged views on the political union of Europe and "found themselves in agreement in thinking that the (economic) links already uniting the countries of the European community must be strengthened and completed in the political field."

Negro School Principal Asks Desegregation

CARTHAGE, Miss. (AP) — O. E. Jordan, principal of O. E. Jordan Negro school in Leake County, said Wednesday he sent a letter to petitioners seeking school desegregation and urged them to reconsider.

Jordan, immediate past president of the State Negro Teachers Association, said in warning of the consequences: "I did what I thought was my responsibility."

A petition, signed by 52 of whom 23 remain on the list, called on the county board of trustees to desegregate schools. The action came after 132 students from Harmony School were consolidated with another school farther away.

Jordan said in the letter he admired the peaceful race relations that have existed in Leake County, but "at this particular time I am disturbed.

"I call upon you to remove your name from the petition that is now in the superintendent's office. This document, if allowed to be executed, is going to set race relations in Leake County back 50 years.

"We should not let outsiders come in and destroy the peace and dignity of our county."

Jordan said the petitioners would never get the Harmony school back because there isn't enough money to operate three schools in Leake County.

MAJOR GENERAL Delmar Taft Spivey, USAF retired, and superintendent of Culver Military Academy at Culver, Ind., will be in Monroe today to visit with Culver graduates and to show a film of the institution at 5:30 p.m. at the Bayou DeSiard Country Club. CHILDISH TIP

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Install a cabinet with mirror for the children when doing over the bathroom, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Research Service suggests.

Place the cabinet about three feet from the floor. This will give the children a place to keep their own toilet articles. Later, when the youngsters are grown, you can use the cabinet to store shoe polish, brushes and other supplies.

IN MISSISSIPPI

Parenthood Clinic Bill Introduced

JACKSON, Miss. (AP) — Sen. Sonny Montgomery of Meridian introduced a bill Wednesday to establish a planned parenthood clinic under the State Board of Health and to permit sexual sterilization in certain types of cases.

Montgomery told newsmen doctors had recommended the measure.

The bill, apparently aimed at reducing the number of illegitimate children on welfare rolls, would require the mother of every baby delivered at state expens to attend the planned parenthood clinics at the county health office.

"In the event the mother fails to comply," the bill says, "she and her offspring shall not be eligible to receive additional welfare benefits administered under the laws of this state."

1. Any married adult woman who has been delivered of two children if her husband joins in the request.
2. Any adult woman who has been delivered of at least two illegitimate children.
3. Any minor woman who has been delivered of two illegitimate children if joined in the request by her parents or guardian.
4. Any adult woman who has a medical condition that would endanger life or health.
5. Any minor woman who has a medical condition that would endanger her life or health, if joined by parents or guardian.

Sen. Bill Caraway of Leland offered a bill to give municipal courts authority to punish for contempt of court, with the penalty not exceeding $100 and 30 days.

Caraway also introduced a bill to allow municipalities to microfilm records and destroy originals. It does not require the keeping of any records not required by law to be preserved.

Other introductions were by:

Sen. Ben Hilbun of State College to permit Department of Public Safety employes recourse to courts when dismissed from service.

Sen. Hugh Bailey of Winona and others to permit the state to sell surplus property to congressionally chartered veterans organizations.

Sen. Caraway to exempt nonprofit civic groups from property taxes on property used exclusively for public purposes.

Rep. Lloyd Dickerson of Pike and 27 colleagues to declare the sale, or possession of liquor be a felony.

Rep. J. P. Love of Holmes and others to permit the state tax commission to revoke the beer license of any retailer when the sheriff, police chief or 25 freeholders attest that the retailer handles liquor.

Rep. Tom Campbell of Yazoo and two colleagues to make the county's seats in the house be designated and require candidates for them to run for designated posts.

Rep. Jim Mathis of Leake to require prescriptions for all household domestic purposes under certain conditions.

U.S. Probe Figures On Profits Hit

WASHINGTON (AP) — Figures presented at a Senate hearing on missile contract profits were challanged by aircraft executive Donald Douglas Wednesday as "a gross distortion."

Douglas is head of the Douglas Aircraft Co., one of the major contractors in the development of the Nike antiaircraft missile systems that have been installed around many U.S. defense areas.

Robert E. Dunne, a Senate staff investigator, testified the Douglas firm received $45.58 million in profits on a series of Nike contracts after turning over much of the work to subcontractors.

Dunne said that based on the ratio of work done by subcontractors the Douglas company's profit was the equivalent of 44.3 per cent, although he said it figured out to 7.6 per cent on all of the work performed by both Douglas and its subcontractors.

Douglas contended his company's profits in the Nike program amounted to only 3.2 per cent of sales.

He contended the figures as presented before the Senate investigations subcommittee were "a gross distortion of the traditions and practices of all business."

By shifting economic frameworks, Douglas said, a fee of 5 or 6 per cent, "which by all present economic standards is a quite proper fee," suddenly becomes "20 to 40 times greater without increasing one with the dollars earned."

Douglas said this type of manipulation "borders on economic frivolity."

The subcommittee began hearings Tuesday into what Chairman John L. McClellan, D-Ark. calls profit pyramiding. This is a practice by which government contracts pass from one contractor to another, with each putting in a claim for profits and fees on top of the other's bill.

Douglas testified it takes costly specialized facilities, such as laboratories, wind tunnels, missile test stands and the like, to keep the United States ahead of potential enemies.

The government helps support some of this research and development work, he said, but only when the production phase is reached "are we able to earn enough to maintain our technological muscle."

Discussing the relationship between contractors and subcontractors, Douglas said "all levels of the industrial team must be geared to work effectively together so that a desirable change — perhaps something learned through actual deployment to the field—may be incorporated in production as speedily and economically as possible."

"Directing and supervising the incorporation of such changes in subcontractor production, and standing ready to do so," he said, "is a fundamental responsibility of the system manager of subsystem manager."

STORE ON WHEELS

NEW YORK (UPI)—The store went to the customer in early America. Shopping was done in reverse.

This was accomplished by the Yankee peddler, the Antiques Fair News Bureau reports. The peddler and his wagon were responsible for popularizing such things as shelf clocks, the famous Hitchcock chair, pewter, buttons, tinware.

BLIND REPAY INVESTMENT

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Russell Bowers, though blind, has been a quality control inspector for 19 years.

The Sharples Corporation, where Bowers works, has developed an attachment for him for a gauging stand widely used in industry. The attachment has a control unit that measures to within five ten-thousandths of an inch. Oversize parts sound one buzzer, undersize parts another and those within allowable tolerances a third.

Sharples says the cost of equipping a blind inspector is $150 more than for a sighted person. However, the company says the investment usually will be repaid quickly since blind persons generally can be trained to out-produce sighted persons in this type of work.

The area, Long said, is being established in preparation for tests that may be ordered later in the month.

Ships and planes, Long said, will be notified to remain clear of an area 600 miles wide and 800 miles long.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

Guinea Dispute Getting Hotter

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — The dispute over West New Guinea is getting hotter, with three conflicting ideas on the political future of the territory, generally considered the most backward place in creation.

Indonesia claims it outright, native leaders demand it as their own, and Holland hangs on to it as a reluctant administrator waiting for a chance to bow out gracefully.

When the colony of the Netherlands East Indies became the sovereign republic of Indonesia in 1949, West New Guinea was excluded from the deal pending a separate agreement between the Dutch government and Japanese revolutionaries.

So many documents relating to the early Dutch-Indonesian independence talks still are secret so that nobody knows precisely for what reasons the territory remained under Dutch administration.

The Dutch argued, however, that the New Guinea Papuans had nothing in common with the Indonesians, ethnically or economically.

In later years New Guinea's separation from Indonesia, in the Dutch view, was covered by the U. N.-endorsed principle of self-determination.

Indonesia, after initially agreeing to forego New Guinea for the time being, increased demands for the territory until last year President Sukarno threatened to annex the territory by force.

Meanwhile, the Papuans were being educated towards voicing their own opinion. A legislative council was established a year ago as New Guinea's first "parliament." A two-way fight thus became three-cornered.

With an armed conflict threatening in their last remaining Pacific outpost the Dutch often wonder: How did we acquire this area? Why did we decide to occupy a territory which is costing us some 100 million guilders a year?

Naval Commander Jan Carstensz had his first look at New Guinea in 1623 when he glimpsed some "very high mountains, white with snow" and remarked this was unusual for mountains so near the equator.

The first Dutch flag was planted at the west coast 50 years later and another two centuries passed before New Guinea officially became an extension of the Dutch East Indies Empire.

New Guinea got a capital fifty odd years ago when a small party of Dutch explorers planted a red-white-and-blue flag in a jungle area on the north coast and christened it Hollandia.

Hollandia first became widely known when American forces landed there and used it as a repair base for their warships and a recreation center for troops prior to World War II.

Hollandia still shows traces of "Americanization."

A hill still bears the name "MacArthur Hill." The former destroyer repair base is still the main harbor facility, with the old quonset huts and the pier still in use.

In the past years a few modern facilities were added. But the government could not afford to replace the obsolete wartime installations.

Three airstrips, built by the Japanese and improved by the Americans, are still in use today.

The Papuans still remember the days that "Tuan Amerika" (Tuan for mister) was there. Those were days of incredible splendor.

The Dutch set out to put the entire coastal area under a ship-shape administration. Officials started to interrogate Papuans, to duly register them. As far as "name" was concerned, things went smoothly. "Age" proved to be a problem. Even such time-measuring as "last full moon" (known to most primitive tribes) was unknown in many parts of New Guinea.

Today slightly more than half of West New Guinea's population is "put on paper."

No matter how primitive certain tribes are and how much their economy still depends on hunting (swine, kangaroos and birds), spearfishing (at sea as well as on the lakes) and some agriculture (bananas, sweet potatoes, sago), a good many Papuans are firmly settled as civilized people: Teachers, clerks, technicians, gardeners, patrolmen, businessmen and even a number of them holding a university decree.

The Papuans have no patriotic aspiration. They admit this. But they are anxious to take on their shoulders the burden of leading their country, once independence is won.

They reason that an independent West New Guinea will be able to get whatever kind of help it needs. Many feel it would be stupid to declare themselves either pro-Dutch or pro-Indonesian because that would only limit much needed aid and assistance.

FUTURE UNCERTAIN

Guinea Dispute Getting Hotter

AMSTERDAM (UPI) — The dispute over West New Guinea is getting hotter, with three conflicting ideas on the political future of the territory, generally considered the most backward place in creation.

Indonesia claims it outright, native leaders demand it as their own, and Holland hangs on to it as a reluctant administrator waiting for a chance to bow out gracefully.

When the colony of the Netherlands East Indies became the sovereign republic of Indonesia in 1949, West New Guinea was excluded from the deal pending a separate agreement between the Dutch government and Japanese revolutionaries.

So many documents relating to the early Dutch-Indonesian independence talks still are secret so that nobody knows precisely for what reasons the territory remained under Dutch administration.

The Dutch argued, however, that the New Guinea Papuans had nothing in common with the Indonesians, ethnically or economically.

In later years New Guinea's separation from Indonesia, in the Dutch view, was covered by the U. N.-endorsed principle of self-determination.

Indonesia, after initially agreeing to forego New Guinea for the time being, increased demands for the territory until last year President Sukarno threatened to annex the territory by force.

Meanwhile, the Papuans were being educated towards voicing their own opinion. A legislative council was established a year ago as New Guinea's first "parliament." A two-way fight thus became three-cornered.

With an armed conflict threatening in their last remaining Pacific outpost the Dutch often wonder: How did we acquire this area? Why did we decide to occupy a territory which is costing us some 100 million guilders a year?

Naval Commander Jan Carstensz had his first look at New Guinea in 1623 when he glimpsed some "very high mountains, white with snow" and remarked this was unusual for mountains so near the equator.

The first Dutch flag was planted at the west coast 50 years later and another two centuries passed before New Guinea officially became an extension of the Dutch East Indies Empire.

New Guinea got a capital fifty odd years ago when a small party of Dutch explorers planted a red-white-and-blue flag in a jungle area on the north coast and christened it Hollandia.

U.S. Counts On British In Trade Plans

LONDON (UPI)—U.S. Undersecretary of State George Ball told officials here Wednesday the United States is counting on Britain gradually to end its preferential trading arrangements with commonwealth countries after it joins the European Common Market, reliable sources said.

Ball, accompanied by U.S. Ambassador David Bruce, spent most of the day in private talks with Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath and his aides. Heath is the minister responsible for negotiating Britain's entry into the Common Market.

There was no formal communique on the conferences and British officials only reported that "mutual problems" had been discussed.

But reliable sources said Ball spelled out in detail U.S. hopes for Britain's entry into the Common Market. The talks began at 10 a.m. and continued through lunch until late afternoon. Then Ball boarded a plane and headed back to Washington via New York.

Diplomatic quarters said Ball expressed optimism that a strong common market—with Britain's backing — and an economically strong United States would be able to work out a liberalization of international trade.

He emphasized the view that any "freezing" of existing preferential trade arrangements between Britain and the commonwealth countries would be bad for future world trade, these sources said.

It was explained that the United States is acting only as an "interested bystander" and that Ball did not come here to try to "dictate" terms to Britain.

WITH TEEN-AGE GIRLS

Nursing, Teaching Careers Popular

By PATRICIA McCORMACK
United Press International

NEW YORK (UPI) Memo to: Nurses, school teachers and social workers needing a morale booster.

The models they hope to emulate in the three fields are fit for a pedestal perch, as the teenagers view the situation.

The three careers, in fields featuring modest pay and not much glory, were the most frequently written about in a nationwide essay contest concerning career plans.

The proof's contained in the inspirational prose. The inspiration hits its highest pitch in the winning essays. Samples:

—Jeanne Ruth Baggett, of Birmingham, Ala., selects nursing as a means of rendering a service to country and fellow man. "I chose this field because of my interest in and love for people," she said. "There is no burden that is not lightened by the sharing of it. A nurse can help to make lives more enjoyable."

—Phyllis Coffey, of Franklin, Ind., wants to be a teacher—a career she describes as suitable for other-centered rather than self-centered individuals. "Teaching," she said, "offers personal satisfaction as well as a chance to serve others. I am aware of the difficulties . . . but realize we get out of life just what we put into it."

—Carol Jedlicka, of New York, wants to be a social worker in Spanish speaking neighborhoods "to help misunderstood people gain a better understanding of this country and its people."

—Helene Bolbach, of Lancaster, Pa., hopes to teach music. "It is possible for a child to find something in music that will make him a better person with stronger character and personality," she said.

—Ruth Ann Rotundo, of Schenectady, N. Y., wants to be a psychiatric social worker. In this field she sees an opportunity "to make a positive contribution to society."

—Patricia Ann Stambaugh, of Newport News, Va., wants to be a nurse, a career "that calls for controlling your emotions, yet being able to give comfort and understanding at the exact moment. She said a good nurse has an inner desire to serve mankind and to help others so that they in turn may help themselves.

The winners in the career key awards competition sponsored by Girls Clubs of America and the Reader's Digest Foundation said at first they considered glamour careers — names in lights and headline fame.

But they said they gave up thoughts of glory and fame for great satisfaction, very little honor and practically no fame.

Coexistence Policy Urged By Goulart

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Joao Goulart of Brazil told Congress Wednesday that "peaceful coexistence' between the West and the Communist bloc would work to the advantage of the free world.

Goulart said the result would be to "show that representative democracy is the more perfect form of government, and more compatible with the protection of man and the preservation of his liberty."

The Brazilian chief executive reaffirmed his country's support of the "democratic principles which united the peoples of the West" and praised the U.S. Alliance for Progress program.

Goulart leaves Thursday morning for two days in New York, after laying a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in nearby Arlington, Va.

In his speech to a joint meeting of the House and Senate, Goulart stressed the importance of good relations between the United States and Brazil. "It is essential," he said, "that there be always a perfect understanding between the two largest nations of this hemisphere."

He said that through mutual cooperation, "we can contribute to the peace and happiness of the world, eliminating economic slavery, despotism and fear, and guaranteeing popular liberties and personal security, within a democratic, representative system."

Goulart touched on a sensitive observing that there were "certain point with many congressmen in areas of friction" between his government and public utilities.

This was indirect reference to government seizure in sections of Brazil of foreign-owned telephone facilities, including one company owned by International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Goulart said he hoped that "misunderstandings" between the United States and Brazil as a result of such "frictions" could be eliminated.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

Goulart said the result would be to "show that representative democracy is the more perfect form of government, and more compatible with the protection of man and the preservation of his liberty."

The Brazilian chief executive reaffirmed his country's support of the "democratic principles which united the peoples of the West" and praised the U.S. Alliance for Progress program.

Goulart leaves Thursday morning for two days in New York, after laying a wreath on the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in nearby Arlington, Va.

In his speech to a joint meeting of the House and Senate, Goulart stressed the importance of good relations between the United States and Brazil. "It is essential," he said, "that there be always a perfect understanding between the two largest nations of this hemisphere."

He said that through mutual cooperation, "we can contribute to the peace and happiness of the world, eliminating economic slavery, despotism and fear, and guaranteeing popular liberties and personal security, within a democratic, representative system."

Goulart touched on a sensitive observing that there were "certain point with many congressmen in areas of friction" between his government and public utilities.

This was indirect reference to government seizure in sections of Brazil of foreign-owned telephone facilities, including one company owned by International Telephone & Telegraph Co.

Goulart said he hoped that "misunderstandings" between the United States and Brazil as a result of such "frictions" could be eliminated.

HERE is a pleasant little game that will give you a message every day. It is a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

HOW THEY PICK THEM

Teen View Of 'Oscars'

By EUGENE GILBERT
President, Gilbert Yourth Research Co.

Now, while the experts and pros are making final choices before the big night (April 9), your vote is already in.

No single actor, actress or movie got as many as half the votes in our national survey of over 1,000 young people. But that's to be expected. The thing that counts, of course, who who or what draws the most votes in each category

More than 45 per cent of you are convinced that the Oscar for the best motion picture of 1961 will be awarded to "West Side Story," a movie that impressed many of you as it did Joan Brandzel, 16, of Chicago, who said

"Everything about it is so great. The story touches on a current problem, the music is so powerful, the dancing so great."

"Guns of Navarone" was runnerup

The next largest vote was in the best actor category in which Paul Newman was picked by more than 43 per cent for his performance as the pool hall sharpie in "The Huslter."

NATALIE WOOD A CLOSE SECOND

"He gave a very vivid portrayal of the hustler," commented Neal Reilly, 17, of Everett, Wash.

Audrey Hepburn topped the list in the best actress voting, with nearly 35 per cent naming her for her role as Holly Golightly in "Breakfast at Tiffany's." But Natalie Wood was close behind with 26 per cent of the vote and Sophia Loren with 23 per cent. Miss Wood was chosen for her performance in "Splendor in the Grass," and Miss Loren for "Two Women."

There's a fairly close spread between George Chakiris and Jackie Gleason who topped the list for best supporting actor. Chakiris got 30 per cent for his work in "West Side Story," mostly on the strength of heavy voting by the girls. Gleason, who played the role of "Minneapolis Fats" in "The Hustler," got the votes of nearly 26 per cent and was a heavy favorite among the boys, who went for him by a big 46 per cent.

Judy Garland also has a warm spot among the boys. They gave her nearly 47 per cent of their votes in selecting the best supporting actress. Her group vote came to 37 per cent, enough to put her at the top of the category, 9 percentage points ahead of Rita Moreno. Judy was cited for her vignette in "Judgment at Nuremberg," and Miss Moreno for her performance in "West Side Story."

REMEMBER LAST YEAR?

Looking toward the future, you did a bit of crystal - ball gazing and came up with your choices as the most promising newcomers among the young actors and actresses today. Warren Beatty was named most often as the most promising male newcomer, the choice of nearly 17 per cent. He appeared in "Splendor in the Grass" opposite Natalie Wood.

Paula Prentiss was named by nearly 11 per cent as the most promising female newcomer for her comic role in "Bachelor in Paradise," the Bob Hope movie

That's how the voting came out in this year's poll. In our 1961 survey, you correctly picked Elizabeth Taylor, Burt Lancaster, and "The Apartment," for the top three awards. You just missed in the supporting roles, putting Shirley Jones and Peter Ustinov — the winners — in second place.

Self Knowledge Is Youth's Key To His Career

GILBERT YOUTH SERVICE

Teen-agers bewildered by the many choices available to them in the adult workaday world may find comfort in knowing that their plight is understood by a philosophy professor at Columbia University in New York City.

In an address before the Child Study Association's annual convention, attended by professionals who work with youth, Dr. Charles Frankel describes the confusion that besets 16 and 17 year olds in trying to find themselves and their niche in today's society.

"Teen-agers ask, 'Where do my real talents lie?" What really interests me?" What can give real meaning to my life?'" says Dr. Frankel. "But they must ask themelves. Adults don't have the answer."

Few teen-agers can go through this soul - searching with ease. Some actually break down under it. But to have a satisfactory life as an adult, the process of knowing yourself is vital, says the professor.

Even if the teen - ager doesn't pressure himself into charting his course, he is pressured by his world into making decisions — whether it's his school, his parents, or his contemporaries who push him for an anwer.

Aggravating the problem of finding a way to make his life significant is the discrepancy the teen - ager observes between what adults preach and what they practice. Young people ask parents and teachers to tell the truth, and skip the platitudes. They must have the facts as guidelines, even if they're not as pleasant as the flowery phrases that cover the truth.

Facing the facts of living comes more easily for teen - agers whose families show a willingness to engage in political controversy and who have great interest in social reform, Dr. Frankel says. Verbal examination in these areas helpls yough get its feet more firmly on solid ground

Judge Accepts Explanation

LONDON (AP)—The judge dismissed the doctor's petition for divorce but accepted his explanation that he looked on woman patients as "typewriters which he touched without pleasure."

Claiming his jealous wife was cruel because she objected to his examining woman patients, Dr. Norman Crisp, 36, sued for divorce. He charged that she expressed her resentment with a violent temper and harsh words and when he examined woman friends of the family she refused to have them in the house again.

Top Records

Compiled Weekly by BARRY SINROD
of Gilbert Youth Research

Chubby Checker's partner on SLOW TWISTIN', Dee Dee Sharp, has ousted Chubby from the top spot with her own record MASHED POTATO TIME. It zoomed up from No. 5 last week, and No. 20 two weeks ago. The last No. 1 girl was Brenda Lee, about seven months ago.

Shelley Fabares has her first top ten hit, JOHNNY ANGEL, as No. 6.

Two of the hottest records in the country made the list this week. Joey Dee with his Starliters moved to No. 7 with SHOUT (PART 1). Those Fantastic Shirelles continue to roll along; SOLDIER BOY, released a few weeks back, is already No. 8 this week, it was our pick hit of the week on March 9.

Others new this week: Acker Bolk's beautiful instrumental STRANGER ON THE SHORE, No. 16. Larry Finegan's DEAR ONE, No. 14. Etta James' SOMETHING'S GOT A HOLD ON ME, No. 19.

HOW THEY PICK THEM

Teen View Of 'Oscars'

By EUGENE GILBERT
President, Gilbert Yourth Research Co.

Now, while the experts and pros are making final choices before the big night (April 9), your vote is already in.

No single actor, actress or movie got as many as half the votes in our national survey of over 1,000 young people. But that's to be expected. The thing that counts, of course, who who or what draws the most votes in each category.

More than 45 per cent of you are convinced that the Oscar for the best motion picture of 1961 will be awarded to "West Side Story," a movie that impressed many of you as it did Joan Brandzel, 16, of Chicago, who said:

"Everything about it is so great. The story touches on a current problem, the music is so powerful, the dancing so great."

"Guns of Navarone" was runnerup.

The next largest vote was in the best actor category in which Paul Newman was picked by more than 43 per cent for his performance as the pool hall sharpie in "The Huslter."

NATALIE WOOD A CLOSE SECOND

"He gave a very vivid portrayal of the hustler," commented Neal Reilly, 17, of Everett, Wash.

Audrey Hepburn topped the list in the best actress voting, with nearly 35 per cent naming her for her role as Holly Golightly in "Breakfast at Tiffany's." But Natalie Wood was close behind with 26 per cent of the vote and Sophia Loren with 23 per cent. Miss Wood was chosen for her performance in "Splendor in the Grass," and Miss Loren for "Two Women."

There's a fairly close spread between George Chakiris and Jackie Gleason who topped the list for best supporting actor. Chakiris got 30 per cent for his work in "West Side Story," mostly on the strength of heavy voting by the girls. Gleason, who played the role of "Minneapolis Fats" in "The Hustler," got the votes of nearly 26 per cent and was a heavy favorite among the boys, who went for him by a big 46 per cent.

Judy Garland also has a warm spot among the boys. They gave her nearly 47 per cent of their votes in selecting the best supporting actress. Her group vote came to 37 per cent, enough to put her at the top of the category, 9 percentage points ahead of Rita Moreno. Judy was cited for her vignette in "Judgment at Nurember," and Miss Moreno for her performance in "West Side Story."

REMEMBER LAST YEAR?

Looking toward the future, you did a bit of crystal - ball gazing and came up with your choices as the most promising newcomers among the young actors and actresses today. Warren Beatty was named most often as the most promising male newcomer, the choice of nearly 17 per cent. He appeared in "Splendor in the Grass" opposite Natalie Wood.

Paula Prentiss was named by nearly 11 per cent as the most promising female newcomer for her comic role in "Bachelor in Paradise," the Bob Hope movie.

That's how the voting came out in this year's poll. In our 1961 survey, you correctly picked Elizabeth Taylor, Burt Lancaster, and "The Apartment," for the top three awards. You just missed in the supporting roles, putting Shirley Jones and Peter Ustinov — the winners — in second place.

Self Knowledge Is Youth's Key To His Career

GILBERT YOUTH SERVICE

Teen-agers bewildered by the many choices available to them in the adult workaday world may find comfort in knowing that their plight is understood by a philosophy professor at Columbia University in New York City.

In an address before the Child Study Association's annual convention, attended by professionals who work with youth, Dr. Charles Frankel describes the confusion that besets 16 and 17 year olds in trying to find themselves and their niche in today's society.

"Teen-agers ask, 'Where do my real talents lie?" What really interests me?" What can give real meaning to my life?'" says Dr. Frankel. "But they must ask themelves. Adults don't have the answer."

Few teen-agers can go through this soul - searching with ease. Some actually break down under it. But to have a satisfactory life as an adult, the process of knowing yourself is vital, says the professor.

Even if the teen - ager doesn't pressure himself into charting his course, he is pressured by his world into making decisions — whether it's his school, his parents, or his contemporaries who push him for an anwer.

Aggravating the problem of finding a way to make his life significant is the discrepancy the teen - ager observes between what adults preach and what they practice. Young people ask parents and teachers to tell the truth, and skip the platitudes. They must have the facts as guidelines, even if they're not as pleasant as the flowery phrases that cover the truth.

Facing the facts of living comes more easily for teen - agers whose families show a willingness to engage in political controversy and who have great interest in social reform, Dr. Frankel says. Verbal examination in these areas helpls yough get its feet more firmly on solid ground

LONDON (AP)—The judge dismissed the doctor's petition for divorce but accepted his explanation that he looked on woman patients as "typewriters which he touched without pleasure."

Claiming his jealous wife was cruel because she objected to his examining woman patients, Dr. Norman Crisp, 36, sued for divorce. He charged that she expressed her resentment with a violent temper and harsh words and when he examined woman friends of the family she refused to have them in the house again.

Two of the hottest records in the country made the list this week. Joey Dee with his Starliters moved to No. 7 with SHOUT (PART I). Those Fantastic Shirelles continue to roll along; SOLDIER BOY, released a few weeks back, is already No. 8 this week, it was our pick hit of the week on March 9.

Others new this week: Acker Bolk's beautiful instrumental STRANGER ON THE SHORE, No. 16. Larry Finegan's DEAR ONE, No. 14. Etta James' SOMETHING'S GOT A HOLD ON ME, No. 19.

BOB GROVES

WITH .400 AVERAGE

Bob Groves Heads Indian Batting List

Monroe sophomore Bob Groves, one of the stars of Northeast State's Gulf States Conference championship basketball team, is proving he's just as good on the baseball diamond this spring.

Groves is the leading Northeast hitter after seven games this season, sporting a handsome .400 average. The tall centerfielder is tied for the team lead in three other departments also — hits, doubles and home runs.

The ex-Neville star has collected 10 safeties in 25 at-bats to tie him for the lead in hits with outfielder John Pace. Groves has two doubles, as has Charley Dykes and Donnie Brunson, and has hit one of two homers slugged by Indain batters this season. First baseman Don Boniol hit the other roundtripper.

Two other Indian timber toters are batting over .300. Pace, the all-GSC star from Haile, is hitting .384 while Boniol, a freshman from Alexandria, is batting at a .381 clip. Second sacker Eddie McGowan is just under the .300 mark at .296.

Although he is batting a sub-par .200, all-GSC shortstop Phil Petras is leading the Indians in two departments. He has scored the most runs, seven, and has collected the most triples, two.

Pace is the runs-batted-in leader with seven, three more than any other player.

As a team, the Indians are hitting. 266.

Spearsville junior Bobby Lockwood and Alexandria sophomore Bob Rachal, both righthanders, are the leading Indian pitchers this spring. Lockwood has been the busiest Tribe hurler, pitching 24 2-3 innings and tops the team in wins with two against two defeats. His earned run average is 2.52.

Rachal, 1-0 for the young campaign, has the best ERA mark on the club, 1.85.

Northeast, 4-3 for the season and 1-1 in GSC play, will meet McNeese in a conference twin bill on the Ouachita High diamond here Saturday afternoon. Lockwood, who blanked Northwestern, 6-0 in his latest start Monday, is expected to start one game with Rachal, Teddy Payne, Ed Quimby or Jerry Godwin expected to open in the other contest.

Celtics Favored Over Warriors In Final Playoff

BOSTON (AP)—The return of Frank Ramsey and the home court advantage make Boston a favorite in the seventh and final game in the National Basketball Association's semifinal playoff series Thursday night.

The teams will play at Boston Garden and the winner will play the Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA best-of-7 championship series.

The Celtics are favored to win and to defeat the Lakers as well and win their fourth consecutive championship.

Ramsey, who has been out of action because of a leg injury, will bolster the Celtics' defense. He is expected to be assigned to guard either Paul Arizin or Tom Meschery, the two Warrior corner men who have been bad news for the Celtics in this series.

After a skull session and a light practice Wednesday the Celtics' perennial star Bob Cousy said:

"We won't be able to let up for a minute but if we play the defense we'll win it."

As Jim Loscutoff put it:

"I don't want to spend the summer explaining why we lost in the playoffs. We want to win and we will.'

Loscutoff has a chipped bone in his right wrist but will play.

Orioles Cut Three More From Roster

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles cut three players from their roster Wednesday and assigned them to Rochester of the International League.

Emile Griffith Voted Fighter Of Month By Ring

NEW YORK (AP)—Emile Griffith, whose flailing fists stripped Benny (Kid) Paret of the welterweight crown and his life in their March 24 title bout, was named "fighter of the month" for March by Ring Magazine Wednesday.

The magazine also withdrew recognition of Archie Moore as light heavyweight champion, and moved him into sixth place among the heavyweights, where Sonny Liston is ranked No. 1.

Ring said the action was taken against moore because only the California commission still recognizes his title claim. All other major boxing bodies have followed the NBA lead in taking the title from Moore for failure to defend it.

Ouachita, West Monroe Meet 1-AAA Teams

Ouachita and West Monroe meet district baseball foes in important games tomorrow, the Lions hosting Woodlawn and the Rebels traveling to Bastrop.

Ouachita, with a 3-1 league record, needs a win in its 3:15 p.m. game to stay in the 1-AAA running, while league leading Bastrop must topple last place West Monroe to stay atop the district heap. The surprising Rams have a 4-1 loop mark.

Palmer Tops Record List Of Linksmen

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, bold as a Pirate and strong enough to choke a tiger with his bare hands, is a 3-1 favorite to whip a record field in the 26th Masters Golf Tournament, starting Thursday.

The relaxed confident professional from Latrobe, Pa., heads a list of 110 of the world's premier amateur and pro shotmakers who tee off, starting at 9:15 a.m. EST, on the first round of a four-day, 72-hole battle with the Augusta National course.

The field is so large, surpassing by eight the previous record of 102 in 1957, that the organizers found it necessary to break with tradition and send the competitors off on the first two days in threesomes, instead of the customary twosomes.

Palmer, who has won two of the last four championships and missed the other two by the combined margin of three strokes, goes off at 12:58 p.m. with Bill Hyndman III, the stylish Walker Cup amateur star from Philadelphia, and Mike Souchak, the former Duke football player.

While wagering is illegal and frowned upon by the Masters sponsors, an Augusta bookmaker put out a line which showed Palmer at 3-1 one of the shortest priced favorites in the tournament's history. Ben Hogan, in his heyday, was seldom better than 6-1.

The defending champion, Gary Player of South Africa, was listed as a 4-1 second choice with Bill Casper Jr., whose phenomenal putting touch has projected him to the top of the year's money-winner list, and Doug Sanders, the man with the hurry-up swing.

Jack Nicklaus, 21-year-old slugger from Columbus, Ohio, who turned pro shortly after winning the National Amateur title last fall, is rated a strong threat at at 5-1. Observers know he has the game but wonder if he has matured enough to stand the severe pressures of a test of this caliber.

An amateur has never won this prized championship, but two of them—Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City and Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C.—are rated at 6-1 with U.S. Open champion Gene Littler, Dow Finsterwald, Ken Venturi and Phil Rodgers.

Ben Hogan, whose 274 in 1953 still stands as the Masters record, is an 8-1 choice despite his chronic attack of putting jitters. You can get 10 for 1 if you like such masters as Sam Snead and Cary Middlecoff. Perfect weather—was forecast for the weekend. The sun brought added warmth Wednesday after a brief cool spell and indications were the tournament would be played in 70-degree temperatures. Wednesday, tournament eve, was almost windless.

The 6,990-yard, par 72 Augusta course is lush and green after spring rains, with flowers which frame most of the holes in full bloom. The course is playing long but its broad, deceptive greens are soft enough that bold marksmen can go for the pins.

Palmer, determinedly whipping his game back into championship shape after a brief slump brought on by business distractions, said he was entering the tournament with no inhibitions over last year's renowned blowup.

Coming to the final hole needing only a par to win, Palmer took a double bogey 6 and finished in a tie with Coe for second, one shot back of Player.

"If I worried about every hole I goofed up in a tournament, I'd have nightmares in the daytime," Palmer said. "I'd like to come up to the 72nd hole again, with a one-stroke lead."

Player is battling a recalcitrant putter which has forced him into an unprofitable winter campaign. "I change my stroke every two holes," the South African said glumly. "But I think I'll get my touch back before Thursday."

Tulane To Host Ole Miss Nine In SEC Games

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — Hoping to snap a three-game losing streak, Tulane's baseball team entertains the Ole Miss Rebels in New Orleans Friday and Saturday afternoons in two key Southeastern Conference games.

Friday's game will start at 3:15 and Saturday's at 2:30.

Coach Doug Hafner's Wave has found Mississippi schools tough to handle this year, losing 3-0 and 8-1 to Mississippi State and a 9-5 slugfest to Southern Mississippi.

Tulane's overall record is 3-7 and 1-3 in the league. Ole Miss split its first SEC games with LSU. Earlier the Greenies had also split with the Tigers.

APRIL 12

Pettit Guest Speaker For Tech Cage Fete

RUSTON (Special) — Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks will be guest speaker at the annual Lions Club banquet here Thursday, April 12, honoring the Louisiana Tech basketball squad.

The banquet will be held at 7 p.m., in the student center on the campus.

The Tech team which won only six of 17 games this past campaign was a freshman and sophomore-loaded outfit with only two seniors and one junior, Max Lewis will be the only senior next season.

Tech's players will elect a captain for next season and awards will go to the Tech players who were tops in scholastic average, rebounding and free throw shooting. These are given by Town Tech, Ruston Hardware, and Ruston Office and Photo Supply, respectively.

Pettit, the former LSU All-American, has been named to the National Basketball Association all-star team for eight straight years. Pettit is also a successful businessman, with an insurance company in Baton Rouge as well as extensive apartment building holdings while serving as a special adviser to a national sporting goods firm.

Despite a record of 29 wins and 51 losses last season for St. Louis, Pettit scored 2,429 points for a 31.1 average and hauled down 1,459 rebounds, an average of 18.7 per tilt.

IN MEMPHIS RELAYS

Tech Track Team To Defend Crown

The Tech cinder team, however, is without the strong relay teams that carried them to victory a year ago.

Several Bulldog thinclads turned in good performances last weekend in the Florida Relays. Max Howard broad jumped 22-9¾ for fifth and Bob Goree barely missed going over the 14-foot mark in the pole vault.

Joe Cage was second in the javelin with a heave of 206-8 and Robert Daulton and Howard placed fourth and fifth in the hop, step and jump.

Tech Coach Jim Mize will take a 24-man team to Memphis and will compete in every running event, all the field events, and all the relays.

JOHN S. OELKERS

Tulane Coach To Pilot AAU Track Team

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Tulane University track coach John S. Oelkers has been named head coach of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union team which will compete against a Russian squad in July, the AAU track and field committee said Wednesday.

J. B. (Cap) Haralson, chairman of the AAU committee, said the executive body of the group picked Oelkers by ballot. He received 123 votes with his nearest rival compiling 78.

T e Americans and Russians will meet at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., July 21-22.

Oelkers is a 54-year-old native of New Orleans, attended Tulane where he lettered in track for three years, specializing in the shot put and discus.

He joined the Tulane coaching staff in 1942, but had been a part-time assistant since 1937.

Haralson said he "considered it a privilege of the AAU to have such an outstanding coach and man as Oelkers named as head coach."

AFTER CLOSING RUSH LAST YEAR

St. Louis Is Favored To Win N.L. Pennant

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League is so well balanced this year that the pennant may go to the club with the best sign stealer in the scoreboard.

In the absence of accurate spring training reports on the agility and electronic know-how of the telescope spies, selections must be made on a provisional B. S. (before spying) basis.

The pick here is an outsider—the St. Louis Cardinals—a 6-1 shot that finished fifth, 13 games back, last season.

San Francisco, Los Angeles, Cincinnati and Milwaukee all are solid ball clubs that could win. Given a sound Vern Law, Pittsburgh also deserves to be included. Even the Chicago Cubs, who haven't finished better than fifth since 1946, rate respect.

Only the new clubs, the New York Mets and Houston Colts, and the Philadelphia Phillies appear to be in over their heads.

All of which means that a solid ball club must be picked as low as seventh in the expanded 10-club National League.

Here's the way it looks from here:

1. St. Louis
2. San Francisco
3. Los Angeles
4. Cincinnati
5. Milwaukee
6. Pittsburg
7. Chicago
8. New York
9. Philadelphia
10. Houston

The reason for picking the Cardinals is not their hot spring training season as much as their closing rush last season. In the last months of the season, St. Louis played the best ball in the league, although it must be admitted that the pressure was off the Cards at that stage.

Much is expected of Minnie Minoso both as a player and as a spirited hustler who should lend a new aggressive air to this club. The Cards are outstanding at first and third with Bill White and Ken Boyer and boast a fine young center fielder in Curt Flood. Of course, St. Louis has Stan Musial, who hopes to close his career in a blaze of record-breaking glory.

But the real solid part of the Cards is their pitching staff, lacking in big name luster but deep in talent. Larry Jackson, Ernie Broglio, Ray Sadecki, Bob Gibson, rookie Ray Washburn, Curt Simmons and relief man Lindy McDaniel could well turn out to be the best in the league. In fact, they led the league last year in earned run averages.

Shortstop and catching are the big question marks. Julio Gotay, a young Puerto Rican who flunked earlier trials because of erratic fielding, appears to have steadied. He has been a spring whiz at bat. If he fails, the Birds will fall back on the veteran Alex Grammas. Gene Oliver must carry a big load of the catching if the club is to make it.

San Francisco looks like a red-hot contender, if the pitching comes through. The 1-2 punch of Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda is impressive. Perhaps Billy Pierce and Don Larsen can bolster the pitching but the staff appears to need more bullpen help for Stu Miller. Chuck Hiller, who didn't make it last year, must come through at second and Harvey Kuenn must better that sad .265 average. There is great respect here for Alvin Dark in his sophomore year as a big league manager.

Everybody is picking the Dodgers again and they certainly have the 28-man squad to do it if Walter Alston can get the right nine on the field. Alston knows he has to count on set of outfielders for punch and another set for speed and defense. This observer still has to be shown that switching to Chavez Ravine will make a big difference in the pitching of Don Drysdale. Rookie second baseman Larry Burright appears to be ready and the Davis boys, Tom and Willie, may have matured. But it's still maybe for too many Dodgers.

Cincinnati suffered a bad shock in the loss of third baseman Gene Freese due to a broken ankle. Although Joey Jay and Jim O'Toole were bombed in the spring games, that happened a year ago. Any club with a Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson in the line-up rates respect. Fred Hutchinson still is experimenting with his infield. Just as he was last year. The loss of Freese may be just enough to keep this good club from repeating.

Milwaukee has a set infield but only one set outfielder, Hank Aaron. Birdie Tebbetts is trying to man the other spots with rookies. Catcher Del Crandall appears to be ready for a comeback and the pitching is so deep that Tebbetts may have problems selecting among seven starters. Tony Cloninger and Bob Hendley are the hopes for the fugure while the seasoned front-liners are Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette, Carl Willey, Bob Shaw and Bob Buhl (unless he is traded).

Pittsburgh can sink or swim with Law, who missed most of last season due to arm trouble. Otherwise, the Pirates are the same club that won in 1960, with some new men in reserve.

The Cubs have been playing two rookies Ken Hubbs at second base and Lou Brock in center. If they come through as Billy Williams, Ron Santo and Jack Curtis have bloomed in recent years, Chicago could have something to cheer about for a change.

Casey Stengel's Mets are a collection of hand me-downs from other clubs who cost about $2.4 million. Casey and George Weiss surely will make many moves to strengthen their infield and pitching staff. They should score runs with Frank Thomas, Gus Bell, Charlie Neal and Gil Hodges to drive them in but the pitching, back of Roger Craig, has to prove itself.

BOB GROVES

WITH .400 AVERAGE

Bob Groves Heads Indian Batting List

Monroe sophomore Bob Groves, one of the stars of Northeast State's Gulf States Conference championship basketball team, is proving he's just as good on the baseball diamond this spring.

Groves is the leading Northeast hitter after seven games this season, sporting a handsome .400 average. The tall centerfielder is tied for the team lead in three other departments also — hits, doubles and home runs.

The ex-Neville star has collected 10 safeties in 25 at-bats to tie him for the lead in hits with outfielder John Pace. Groves has two doubles, as has Charley Dykes and Donnie Brunson, and has hit one of two homers slugged by Indain batters this season. First baseman Don Boniol hit the other roundtripper.

Two other Indian timber toters are batting over .300. Pace, the all-GSC star from Haile, is hitting .384 while Boniol, a freshman from Alexandria, is batting at a .381 clip. Second sacker Eddie McGowan is just under the .300 mark at .296.

Although he is batting a sub-par .200, all-GSC shortstop Phil Petras is leading the Indians in two departments. He has scored the most runs, seven, and has collected the most triples, two.

Pace is the runs-batted-in leader with seven, three more than any other player.

As a team, the Indians are hitting. 266.

Spearsville junior Bobby Lockwood and Alexandria sophomore Bob Rachal, both righthanders, are the leading Indian pitchers this spring. Lockwood has been the busiest Tribe hurler, pitching 24 2-3 innings and tops the team in wins with two against two defeats. His earned run average is 2.52.

Rachal, 1-0 for the young campaign, has the best ERA mark on the club, 1.85.

Northeast, 4-3 for the season and 1-1 in GSC play, will meet McNeese in a conference twin bill on the Ouachita High diamond here Saturday afternoon. Lockwood, who blanked Northwestern, 6-0 in his latest start Monday, is expected to start one game with Rachal, Teddy Payne, Ed Quimby or Jerry Godwin expected to open in the other contest.

Celtics Favored Over Warriors In Final Playoff

BOSTON (AP)—The return of Frank Ramsey. and the home court advantage make Boston a favorite in the seventh and final game in the National Basketball Association's semifinal playoff series Thursday night.

The teams will play at Boston Garden and the winner will play the Los Angeles Lakers in the NBA best-of-7 championship series.

The Celtics are favored to win and to defeat the Lakers as well and win their fourth consecutive championship.

Ramsey, who has been out of action because of a leg injury, will bolster the Celtics' defense. He is expected to be assigned to guard either Paul Arizin or Tom Meschery, the two Warrior corner men who have been bad news for the Celtics in this series.

After a skull session and a light practice Wednesday the Celtics' perennial star Bob Cousy said:

"We won't be able to let up for a minute but if we play the defense we'll win it."

As Jim Loscutoff put it:

"I don't want to spend the summer explaining why we lost in the playoffs. We want to win and we will.'

Loscutoff has a chipped bone in his right wrist but will play.

Emile Griffith Voted Fighter Of Month By Ring

NEW YORK (AP)—Emile Griffith, whose flailing fists stripped Benny (Kid) Paret of the welterweight crown and his life in their March 24 title bout, was named "fighter of the month" for March by Ring Magazine Wednesday.

The magazine also withdrew recognition of Archie Moore as light heavyweight champion, and moved him into sixth place among the heavyweights, where Sonny Liston is ranked No. 1.

Ring said the action was taken against moore because only the California commission still recognizes his title claim. All other major boxing bodies have followed the NBA lead in taking the title from Moore for failure to defend it.

Palmer Tops Record List Of Linksmen

By WILL GRIMSLEY

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — Arnold Palmer, bold as a Pirate and strong enough to choke a tiger with his bare hands, is a 3-1 favorite to whip a record field in the 26th Masters Golf Tournament, starting Thursday.

The relaxed confident professional from Latrobe, Pa., heads a list of 110 of the world's premier amateur and pro shotmakers who tee off, starting at 9:15 a.m. EST, on the first round of a four-day, 72-hole battle with the Augusta National course.

The field is so large, surpassing by eight the previous record of 102 in 1957, that the organizers found it necessary to break with tradition and send the competitors off on the first two days in threesomes, instead of the customary twosomes.

Palmer, who has won two of the last four championships and missed the other two by the combined margin of three strokes, goes off at 12:58 p.m. with Bill Hyndman III, the stylish Walker Cup amateur star from Philadelphia, and Mike Souchak, the former Duke football player.

While wagering is illegal and frowned upon by the Masters sponsors, an Augusta bookmaker put out a line which showed Palmer at 3-1 one of the shortest priced favorites in the tournament's history. Ben Hogan, in his heyday, was seldom better than 6-1.

The defending champion, Gary Player of South Africa, was listed as a 4-1 second choice with Bill Casper Jr., whose phenomenal putting touch has projected him to the top of the year's money-winner list, and Doug Sanders, the man with the hurry-up swing.

Jack Nicklaus, 21-year-old slugger from Columbus, Ohio, who turned pro shortly after winning the National Amateur title last fall, is rated a strong threat at at 5-1. Observers know he has the game but wonder if he has matured enough to stand the severe pressures of a test of this caliber.

An amateur has never won this prized championship, but two of them—Charlie Coe of Oklahoma City and Billy Joe Patton of Morganton, N.C.—are rated at 6-1 with U.S. Open champion Gene Littler, Dow Finsterwald, Ken Venturi and Phil Rodgers.

Ben Hogan, whose 274 in 1953 still stands as the Masters record, is an 8-1 choice despite his chronic attack of putting jitters. You can get 10 for 1 if you like such masters as Sam Snead and Cary Middlecoff. Perfect weather —was forecast for the weekend. The sun brought added warmth Wednesday after a brief cool spell and indications were the tournament would be played in 70-degree temperatures. Wednesday, tournament eve, was almost windless.

The 6,990-yard, par 72 Augusta course is lush and green after spring rains, with flowers which frame most of the holes in full bloom. The course is playing long but its broad, deceptive greens are soft enough that bold marksmen can go for the pins.

Palmer, determinedly whipping his game back into championship shape after a brief slump brought on by business distractions, said he was entering the tournament with no inhibitions over last year's renowned blowup.

Coming to the final hole needing only a par to win, Palmer took a double bogey 6 and finished in a tie with Coe for second, one shot back of Player.

"If I worried about every hole I goofed up in a tournament, I'd have nightmares in the daytime," Palmer said. "I'd like to come up to the 72nd hole again, with a one-stroke lead."

Player is battling a recalcitrant putter which has forced him into an unprofitable winter campaign. "I change my stroke every two holes," the South African said glumly. "But I think I'll get my touch back before Thursday."

Orioles Cut Three More From Roster

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The Baltimore Orioles cut three players from their roster Wednesday and assigned them to Rochester of the International League.

Ouachita, West Monroe Meet 1-AAA Teams

Ouachita and West Monroe meet district baseball foes in important games tomorrow, the Lions hosting Woodlawn and the Rebels traveling to Bastrop.

Ouachita, with a 3-1 league record, needs a win in its 3:15 p.m. game to stay in the 1-AAA running, while league leading Bastrop must topple last place West Monroe to stay atop the district heap. The surprising Rams have a 4-1 loop mark.

Tulane To Host Ole Miss Nine In SEC Games

NEW ORLEANS (Special) — Hoping to snap a three-game losing streak, Tulane's baseball team entertains the Ole Miss Rebels in New Orleans Friday and Saturday afternoons in two key Southeastern Conference games.

Friday's game will start at 3:15 and Saturday's at 2:30.

Coach Doug Hafner's Wave has found Mississippi schools tough to handle this year, losing 3-0 and 8-1 to Mississippi State and a 9-5 slugfest to Southern Mississippi.

Tulane's overall record is 3-7 and 1-3 in the league. Ole Miss split its first SEC games with LSU. Earlier the Greenies had also split with the Tigers.

APRIL 12

Pettit Guest Speaker For Tech Cage Fete

RUSTON (Special) — Bob Pettit of the St. Louis Hawks will be guest speaker at the annual Lions Club banquet here Thursday, April 12, honoring the Louisiana Tech basketball squad.

The banquet will be held at 7 p.m., in the student center on the campus.

The Tech team which won only six of 17 games this past campaign was a freshman and sophomore-loaded outfit with only two seniors and one junior. Max Lewis will be the only senior next season.

Tech's players will elect a captain for next season and awards will go to the Tech players who were tops in scholastic average, rebounding and free throw shooting. These are given by Town Tech, Ruston Hardware, and Ruston Office and Photo Supply, respectively.

Pettit, the former LSU All-American, has been named to the National Basketball Association all-star team for eight straight years. Pettit is also a successful businessman, with an insurance company in Baton Rouge as well as extensive apartment building holdings while serving as a special adviser to a national sporting goods firm.

Despite a record of 29 wins and 51 losses last season for St. Louis, Pettit scored 2,429 points for a 31.1 average and hauled down 1,459 rebounds, an average of 18.7 per tilt.

IN MEMPHIS RELAYS

Tech Track Team To Defend Crown

The Tech cinder team, however, is without the strong relay teams that carried them to victory a year ago.

Several Bulldog thinclads turned in good performances last weekend in the Florida Relays. Max Howard broad jumped 22-9¾ for fifth and Bob Goree barely missed going over the 14-foot mark in the pole vault.

Joe Cage was second in the javelin with a heave of 206-8 and Robert Daulton and Howard placed fourth and fifth in the hop, step and jump.

Tech Coach Jim Mize will take a 24-man team to Memphis and will compete in every running event, all the field events, and all the relays.

JOHN S. OELKERS

Tulane Coach To Pilot AAU Track Team

NEW ORLEANS (AP) —Tulane University track coach John S. Oelkers has been named head coach of the U.S. Amateur Athletic Union team which will compete against a Russian squad in July, the AAU track and field committee said Wednesday.

J. B. (Cap) Haralson, chairman of the AAU committee, said the executive body of the group picked Oelkers by ballot. He received 123 votes with his nearest rival compiling 78.

T e Americans and Russians will meet at Stanford University in Palo Alto, Calif., July 21-22.

Oelkers is a 54-year-old native of New Orleans, attended Tulane where he lettered in track for three years, specializing in the shot put and discus.

He joined the Tulane coaching staff in 1942, but had been a part-time assistant since 1937.

Haralson said he "considered it a privilege of the AAU to have such an outstanding coach and man as Oelkers named as head coach."

AFTER CLOSING RUSH LAST YEAR

St. Louis Is Favored To Win N.L. Pennant

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — The National League is so well balanced this year that the pennant may go to the club with the best sign stealer in the scoreboard.

In the absence of accurate spring training reports on the agility and electronic know-how of the telescope spies, selections must be made on a provisional B. S. (before spying) basis.

The pick here is an outsider—the St. Louis Cardinals—a 6-1 shot that finished fifth, 13 games back, last season.

San Francisco, Los Angeles, Cincinnati and Milwaukee all are solid ball clubs that could win. Given a sound Vern Law, Pittsburgh also deserves to be included. Even the Chicago Cubs, who haven't finished better than fifth since 1946, rate respect.

Only the new clubs, the New York Mets and Houston Colts, and the Philadelphia Phillies appear to be in over their heads.

All of which means that a solid ball club must be picked as low as seventh in the expanded 10-club National League.

Here's the way it looks from here:

1. St. Louis
2. San Francisco
3. Los Angeles
4. Cincinnati
5. Milwaukee
6. Pittsburg
7. Chicago
8. New York
9. Philadelphia
10. Houston

The reason for picking the Cardinals is not their hot spring training season as much as their closing rush last season. In the last months of the season, St. Louis played the best ball in the league, although it must be admitted that the pressure was off the Cards at that stage.

Much is expected of Minnie Minoso both as a player and as a spirited hustler who should lend a new aggressive air to this club. The Cards are outstanding at first and third with Bill White and Ken Boyer and boast a fine young center fielder in Curt Flood. Of course, St. Louis has Stan Musial, who hopes to close his career in a blaze of record-breaking glory.

But the real solid part of the Cards is their pitching staff, lacking in big name luster but deep in talent. Larry Jackson, Ernie Broglio, Ray Sadecki, Bob Gibson, rookie Ray Washburn, Curt Simmons and relief man Lindy McDaniel could well turn out to be the best in the league. In fact, they led the league last year in earned run averages.

Shortstop and catching are the big question marks. Julio Gotay, a young Puerto Rican who flunked earlier trials because of erratic fielding, appears to have steadied. He has been a spring whiz at bat. If he fails, the Birds will fall back on the veteran Alex Grammas. Gene Oliver must carry a big load of the catching if the club is to make it.

San Francisco looks like a red-hot contender, if the pitching comes through. The 1-2 punch of Willie Mays and Orlando Cepeda is impressive. Perhaps Billy Pierce and Don Larsen can bolster the pitching but the staff appears to need more bullpen help for Stu Miller. Chuck Hiller, who didn't make it last year, must come through at second and Harvey Kuenn must better that sad .265 average. There is great respect here for Alvin Dark in his sophomore year as a big league manager.

Everybody is picking the Dodgers again and they certainly have the 28-man squad to do it if Walter Alston can get the right nine on the field. Alston knows he has to count on set of outfielders for punch and another set for speed and defense. This observer still has to be shown that switching to Chavez Ravine will make a big difference in the pitching of Don Drysdale. Rookie second baseman Larry Burright appears to be ready and the Davis boys, Tom and Willie, may have matured. But it's still maybe for too many Dodgers.

Cincinnati suffered a bad shock in the loss of third baseman Gene Freese due to a broken ankle. Although Joey Jay and Jim O'Toole were bombed in the spring games, that happened a year ago. Any club with a Vada Pinson and Frank Robinson in the line-up rates respect. Fred Hutchinson still is experimenting with his infield. Just as he was last year. The loss of Freese may be just enough to keep this good club from repeating.

Milwaukee has a set infield but only one set outfielder, Hank Aaron. Birdie Tebbetts is trying to man the other spots with rookies. Catcher Del Crandall appears to be ready for a comeback and the pitching is so deep that Tebbetts may have problems selecting among seven starters. Tony Cloninger and Bob Hendley are the hopes for the fugure while the seasoned front-liners are Warren Spahn, Lew Burdette, Carl Willey, Bob Shaw and Bob Buhl (unless he is traded).

Pittsburgh can sink or swim with Law, who missed most of last season due to arm trouble. Otherwise, the Pirates are the same club that won in 1960, with some new men in reserve.

The Cubs have been playing two rookies Ken Hubbs at second base and Lou Brock in center. If they come through as Billy Williams, Ron Santo and Jack Curtis have bloomed in recent years, Chicago could have something to cheer about for a change.

Casey Stengel's Mets are a collection of hand me-downs from other clubs who cost about $2.4 million. Casey and George Weiss surely will make many moves to strengthen their infield and pitching staff. They should score runs with Frank Thomas, Gus Bell, Charlie Neal and Gil Hodges to drive them in but the pitching, back of Roger Craig, has to prove itself.

Twins Shutout Orioles

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Lefties Jack Kralick and Dick Stigman allowed only six hits Wednesday as the Minnesota Twins scored their second straight shut-out, a 5-0 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Twins collected only six hits themselves. But Jim Lehew gave up all Minnesota runs in the eighth inning by issuing five walks and yielding a two-run double to Bob Allison and a two-run single to Jim Snyder.

Stigman, making his first appearance after being acquired in the deal that also brought Vic Power from Cleveland for Pedro Ramos, faced only six Orioles over the last two innings to pick up the victory.

A's Defeat Reds

TAMPA, Fla. (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds wound up spring training in Florida Wednesday with a 3-1 loss to the Kansas City Athletics due to the pitching of Ed Rakow and the hitting of Haywood Sullivan.

Rakow became the first Kansas City pitcher to go the distance this spring. He scattered eight hits, fanned five and walked only two.

Sullivan, Rakow's battery mate, hit a two-run homer in the fifth off starter Joey Jay.

In closing the Arizona phase of their spring exhibition schedule, the Cubs scored four runs in the final inning to pull out their 15th victory in 24 games.

George Altman's single drove in the first two runs. Ernie Banks singled Altman home. With two out, pinch hitter Jim McKnight rapped a double, Banks taking third. The Dodgers then gave an intentional walk to Andre Rodgers and set the stage for the winning run.

Los Angeles hit three of the game's five solo homers with Tommy Davis, Andy Carey and Lee Walls doing the honors. Ken Hubbs and Altman cracked home runs for the Cubs.

Del Crandall's two-run single had given the Braves a 3-2 advantage against Don Schwall in the first four innings. Then Schwall left for a pinch hitter and Kolstad got bombed.

In addition to the homers by Maye and Mathews, the Braves had a triple by Frank Bolling and Doubles by Crandall and Howie Bedell in their six-hit, six-run explosion.

Colts Crush Angels

EL PASO, Tex. (AP)—Roman Mejias hit two of Houston's five home runs Wednesday as the colts crushed the Los Angeles Angels 20-5 in an exhibition game.

Mejias, who played only three innings, had three for three, including a double. He drove in five of the Colt tallies. Hal Smith, Dave Giusti and Norm Larker slugged the other homers for Houston.

Majias' homer was 390 feet over the center field fence. A 30 mile per hour wind was blowing and it carried most of the homers over the right field wall. Leon Wagner hit one for Los Angeles.

The clubs are barnstorming and will play at San Antonio Thursday. Ryne Duren, San Antonio native, will pitch for Los Angeles. Hal Woodeshick will hurl for the Colts.

Mets Rally

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP) —The New York Mets came from behind on a freak inside-the-park home run by Felix Mantilla and defeated the Chicago White Sox 6-4 Wednesday.

Ray Daviault, 27-year-old Montreal-born right-hander, was the winning pitcher. He worked six innings and gave up all four hits the Sox collected. Herb Moford, 33-year-old right-hander, finished and ran his scoreless spring string to 13 innings.

Eddie Fisher worked the first five innings for the Sox and allowed nine of the Mets' 13 hits. Don Zanni pitched the last four and was the loser.

Craft Not Setting Goals This Year

By SCOTT BAILLIE

APACHE JUNCTION, Ariz. (UPI) — Manager Harry Craft of the brand new Houston Colt 45s extols his club for the "minimum of griping and beefing" that has gone on in training camp.

There are chances, though, that Texas fans may indulge in some beefing this August when they look at the baseball standings. But Craft isn't being caught off base making any predictions.

"All I can say is that we haven't lost a National League game yet," the former Cincinnati outfield star declares. "This will be a year of experiment. And we would be foolish to set any goal for ourselves in the standings."

Apparently, the club will stick to General Manager Paul Richards' policy of winning the "one-run ball games, stressing defense and speed."

That was how the man from Waxachie, Tex. made his name when he piloted the Chicago White Sox and Baltimore Orioles, and that still seems to be his line of thinking.

"We drafted for youth and speed, not names and power," Richards said. "I think that our defense is more than adequate. And we hope that our pitching stands up."

The colt .45's have one long ball hitter—catcher Hal Smith, a .223 batter last year at Pittsburgh. Smith, however, batted .295 and belted 11 homers with the pennant-winning Pirates in 1960.

There seems to be strength down the middle, however. Smith is a good catcher and the second base combination features Don Buddin—acquired in a trade from Boston—and Joe Amalfitano who was drafted from the San Francisco Giants. Out in center field there is a good ballhawk in Al Heist, the former Chicago Cub.

At third base it could be Bob Aspromonte or Von McDaniel. The latter is the same McDaniel who made a big debut with the St. Louis Cardinals as a pitcher in 1957 then faded into the minors. First base can be adequately platooned by Norman Larker, who once made a run on the national league batting title with Los Angeles, or Dick Gernert.

The best pitchers seem to be Ken Johnson (6-2) who helped hurl Cincinnati into the 1961 world series, lefty Bobby Shantz (6-3 for Pittsburgh), Al Cicotte (2-6 at St. Louis) Dick Drott (1-4 with the Chicago Cubs), and relief whiz Dick Farrell (8-7 for the Philadelphia Phils and Los Angeles Dodgers.)

Bob Bruce (1-2 at Detroit), Bob Tiefenauer (10-2 at Charleston) and Hal Wookeshick (4-3 at Washington and Detroit) are among others getting the close look.

'PUBLIC SLAUGHTER'

New Moves Began On Banning Boxing

By JIM BECKER

NEW YORK (AP) — Several thousand persons filed past the body of former welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Paret, 25-year-old Cuban who died after a savage ring beating, at a Bronx funeral parlor Wednesday.

At the same time, seven New York state legislators, one a former fighter, were appointed to a special committee that will investigate boxing to decide if it should be banned in the state. Hearings will open in New York Friday.

There were new moves to end the sport in Canada and Sweden, and Rep. Abraham J. Multer, D-N.Y., called for congress to ban radio and television broadcasting of fights. Multer said this would make them unprofitable. He called the sport "public slaughter."

The Havana press reacted furiously to the death, accusing American "commercial interests" of causing it.

Paret died early Tuesday. He never regained consciousness after he was carried from the Madison Square Garden ring March 24, after he collapsed in the 12th round from a beating at the hands of Emile Griffith.

More than 20 policemen were on duty outside the funeral home to prevent any disorder. One man was arrested Tuesday night when the crowd got out of hand.

Griffith was not expected to visit the funeral home because of fears his appearance could create ill-feeling in the largely Spanish-speaking neighborhood. Griffith is a 24-year-old Virgin Islander who now lives in New York.

Nor was he expected to attend a mass Wednesday night although he said Tuesday that he wanted to.

Twins Shutout Orioles

ORLANDO, Fla. (AP)—Lefties Jack Kralick and Dick Stigman allowed only six hits Wednesday as the Minnesota Twins scored their second straight shut-out, a 5-0 triumph over the Baltimore Orioles.

The Twins collected only six hits themselves. But Jim Lehew gave up all Minnesota runs in the eighth inning by issuing five walks and yielding a two-run double to Bob Allison and a two-run single to Jim Snyder.

Stigman, making his first appearance after being acquired in the deal that also brought Vic Power from Cleveland for Pedro Ramos, faced only six Orioles over the last two innings to pick up the victory.

Rakow became the first Kansas City pitcher to go the distance this spring. He scattered eight hits, fanned five and walked only two.

Sullivan, Rakow's battery mate, hit a two-run homer in the fifth off starter Joey Jay.

Braves Whip Red Sox

SCOTTSDALE, Ariz. (AP) — Lee Maye and Ed Mathews hit home runs as the Milwaukee Braves fell on rookie reliever Hal Kolstad for six runs in the fifth inning and whipped the Boston Red Sox, 9-2 Wednesday.

Del Crandall's two-run single had given the Braves a 3-2 advantage against Don Schwall in the first four innings. Then Schwall left for a pinch hitter and Kolstad got bombed.

In addition to the homers by Maye and Mathews, the Braves had a triple by Frank Bolling and Doubles by Crandall and Howie Bedell in their six-hit, six-run explosion.

The Sox nicked Lew Burdette for two runs in the first on Gary Geiger's triple, Carl Yastrzemski's single and Frank Malzone's double. They failed to score thereafter against Burdette.

Mejias, who played only three innings, had three for three, including a double. He drove in five of the Colt tallies. Hal Smith, Dave Giusti and Norm Larker slugged the other homers for Houston.

Majias' homer was 390 feet over the center field fence. A 30 mile per hour wind was blowing and it carried most of the homers over the right field wall. Leon Wagner hit one for Los Angeles.

The clubs are barnstorming and will play at San Antonio Thursday. Ryne Duren, San Antonio native, will pitch for Los Angeles. Hal Woodeshick will hurl for the Colts.

Eddie Fisher worked the first five innings for the Sox and allowed nine of the Mets' 13 hits. Don Zanni pitched the last four and was the loser.

Pender Is Better Complete Boxer

BOSTON (AP)— Former middleweight champion Paul Pender wound up his sparring sessions Wednesday for Saturday night's title bout with Terry Downs, and nobody's happier about it than Indian Willie Greene.

Greene, once a promising middleweight himself, has sparred 110 rounds with Pender over the past month. As of Wednesday he was an ex-fighter.

Greene, only 24, will go to work for his father, who owns a construction firm in Providence, R.I.

Since he once fought Downes before the tough, little Britisher won the disputed title from Pender in London last July, Greene was asked to compare the two.

"I can't see how Pender can lose," he said. "He hits a little harder than Downes and he's a better 'all-around boxer. I just can't see Downes beating him."

Greene battled Downes in a tune-up fight in London last May. Downes was credited with a three-round TKO, but Greene said Terry never knocked him down or cut him.

Greene said British judges and officials didn't appreciate his style of bobbing and weaving and that the referee kept telling him to stand up and box whenever he went into a crouch. Finally, the bout was halted, he said.

Treene's appraisal of Pender being the harder hitter was surprising, since the tall sharpshooter is best known for his ability to hook, jab and move away.

Paul, an 8-5 choice to win back the title, avers that Downes' boring-in style is "made to order for me."

He compared Downes with two other opponents of his—National Boxing Association middleweight champ Gene Fullmer and former titlist Sugar Ray Robinson.

"I went 30 rounds with Robinson (twice winning 15-round title fights on decisions) and he never knocked me down," Pender said. "And Robinson hits harder than Downes. And I went 10 rounds with Fullmer in 1955 (losing a decision) and Fullmer's a lot stronger than Downes.

"So I don't see why you can figure Downes to knock me down or out."

"I don't think I've ever felt better," he said. "Usually a fighter at this point in training feels a little tired. He doesn't get that real strength—like he can lick the world — until after the two or three-day rest before the fight.

"But I feel strong right now."

Downes, who predicts a knockout victory defense, also wound up his heavy training in Boston Wednesday. Later in the day he was presented a championship belt by ring historian Nat Fleischer.

A special British 707 jetliner from London is scheduled to arrive at Logan International Airport at noon Thursday with 137 faithful fans of Downes.

The high-flying cheering section will be met at the airport by Downes.

Indian Frosh Rally To Clip Bastrop, 4-2

BASTROP (Special) — Northeast's state's freshmen made it five wins in a row yesterday with a 4-2 victory over Bastrop's scrappy Rams.

Coach Ed Hemphill's surging Indians now have a week to prepare for their next game which is against Rayville, April 12, on the Hornet's diamond.

Big Ed Quimby got his second victory of the year yesterday and both have been against Bastrop. The hard-throwing righthander yielded five hits, struck out two and walked only one.

The Indians, who have made a habit of coming from behind, did it again yesterday by overcoming a 2-1 deficit to register the win.

After Bastrop jumped off to a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first on a triple to right by Scott Rawls and a single by catcher Don Cox, the Tribe tied things up in the third.

First baseman Larry McDonald led off the third with a double to the center field wall and scored following two walks and a hit batter.

Bastrop wouldn't quit though, and came back with another run in the Rams half of the third. With one man out, Ricky Head boomed a double to deep center and continued to third with the ball was bobbled momentarily. Then with two out, Cox came through again, this time with a sharp single to plate Head.

Northeast picked up the tying run in the fifth on three walks and a couple of miscues by the Rams.

Then, in the sixth, the Indians finally took the lead, 4-1, on base hits by Don Senn, Dave McCarty, and James Cromwell, plus two walks and two more Ram errors.

Losing pitcher, Billy Arnett gave up only four hits to Northeast before being replaced in the sixth by Rick Reynolds. Reynolds finished the game and yielded only one hit.

Cox and Rawls led Bastrop with two hits each. Cox had a double and single and Rawls a triple and single.

Bastrop, which is tied for first in the district 1-AAA high school race, has a 10-4 mark for the season.

HUNTERS TO CHECK BIRDS

Turkey Season To Open Saturday In 7 Parishes

Louisiana's annual 9-day turkey season will open in seven Fifth District parishes Saturday while hunters are urged to check their birds with state biologists.

The season, which will end April 15, will be open in parts of Union, Morehouse, Madison, Franklin, Catahoula, Concordia and Tensas.

Monroe district supervisor Cliff Williams said biologists will roam-at-large in the Morehouse area in an effort to check gobblers killed by hunters.

From Ferriday, district supervisor Dewey Wills explained that check stations will be operated in the Tensas area on the Chicago Mill Game Management Area.

One gobbler will be allowed each hunter for the season and hunters must have a big game license, plus a turkey tag. Hunters going on the Chicago Mill area must obtain a permit from Wills at the Ferriday office of the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission.

Wills said check stations will be operated at the following locations:

1. Franklin Parish — Big Lake Area, at entrance marker approximately three miles east of Swampers.

2. Tensas Parish — Cooter Point boat landing and the Tensas River bridge on state highway 4 and 128.

First baseman Larry McDonald led off the third with a double to the center field wall and scored following two walks and a hit batter.

Bastrop wouldn't quit though, and came back with another run in the Rams half of the third. With one man out, Ricky Head boomed a double to deep center and continued to third with the ball was bobbled momentarily. Then with two out, Cox came through again, this time with a sharp single to plate Head.

Northeast picked up the tying run in the fifth on three walks and a couple of miscues by the Rams.

Then, in the sixth, the Indians finally took the lead, 4-1, on base hits by Don Senn, Dave McCarty, and James Cromwell, plus two walks and two more Ram errors.

Losing pitcher, Billy Arnett gave up only four hits to Northeast before being replaced in the sixth by Rick Reynolds. Reynolds finished the game and yielded only one hit.

Cox and Rawls led Bastrop with two hits each. Cox had a double and single and Rawls a triple and single.

Bastrop, which is tied for first in the district 1-AAA high school race, has a 10-4 mark for the season.

HUNTERS TO CHECK BIRDS

Turkey Season To Open Saturday In 7 Parishes

Louisiana's annual 9-day turkey season will open in seven Fifth District parishes Saturday while hunters are urged to check their birds with state biologists.

The season, which will end April 15, will be open in parts of Union, Morehouse, Madison, Franklin, Catahoula, Concordia and Tensas.

Monroe district supervisor Cliff Williams said biologists will roam-at-large in the Morehouse area in an effort to check gobblers killed by hunters.

From Ferriday, district supervisor Dewey Wills explained that check stations will be operated in the Tensas area on the Chicago Mill Game Management Area.

One gobbler will be allowed each hunter for the season and hunters must have a big game license, plus a turkey tag. Hunters going on the Chicago Mill area must obtain a permit from Wills at the Ferriday office of the Wild Life & Fisheries Commission.

Wills said check stations will be operated at the following locations:

1. Franklin Parish — Big Lake Area, at entrance marker approximately three miles east of Swampers.

2. Tensas Parish — Cooter Point boat landing and the Tensas River bridge on state highway 4 and 128.

3. Madison Parish — Warsaw where Hunter Bend road joints state highway 577; Sharkey Road, located at junction of U.S. 65; and at Lake One on U.S. 80.

Following is a description of the areas that will be open for the turkey season in Northeast Louisiana:

Area No. 1: Union and Morehouse Parishes.

S. Highway 165 at Bonita; and West of U.S. Highway 165 from Bonita to the Arkansas State Line.

Declarer employed rare delicacy in the play of his slam contract today. His caution was well rewarded, for the slightest slip would have turned a substantial profit into a loss.

South had something to spare for his demand bid of two hearts. When his partner made a positive response by offering a single raise, he made several attempts to reach a grand slam. North continued to sign off, however, since he had given his all, and South finally settled somewhat reluctantly for a six heart contract. Fortunately, he did not slip into a state of complacency during the play of the hand.

West led the jack of diamonds from his complete sequence and declarer took the trick with the ace. The combined holdings appeared to present a laydown unless diamonds broke badly. If West had a singleton in the suit there was nothing declarer could do to protect himself, but if East were short in diamonds South could conserve his high cards by forcing his opponent to play first.

Declarer led the six of hearts to the seven in dummy and returned a small diamond. If East ruffed in, it would establish the diamond suit for South. Trumps could be drawn with one more pull, and then dummy's small spade would be discarded on the good diamonds enabling declarer to ruff out his losing spade.

East decided to throw off a spade on the second round of diamonds, and South won the trick with the king. The eight of hearts was now led over to the nine, back. East was confronted by the same Hobson's choice as before, and once again he elected to take a discard. Declarer played the queen of diamonds and then led the six to ruff away. West's ten with the queen of hearts. In the end, he surrendered a spade trick for his only loser.

Had he ever led a high diamond from his hand, he would have been unable to avoid the loss of both a diamond and a spade.

Human Cannonball Retires

But how many working wives who plan to devote all their time to a school-age daughter can say that the career they're giving up is that of a human cannonball?

Victoria, who is shot from a cannon in the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus, is retiring at the end of the 1962 tour. Lora, her 6-year-old daughter, starts to school next fall and Victoria doesn't want to be separated from her.

Until then Victoria and her husband, Walter Patterson, a member of a flying trapeze act, will travel with the circus in their house trailer. Occasionally he joins her for a double shoot from the cannon.

"I'd never seen too much of the circus, says Victoria, recalling her pre-cannon days, "but I'd always wanted to travel. And I sure got my wish!"

It started seven years ago. Victoria was attending classes at the University of Iowa when her uncle, veteran circus performer Edmundo Zacchini, called. Edmundo's daughters had married and left the act; would Victoria be interested?

Soon the petite, shapely daughter of an Iowa bank employe was being fired 125 feet through the air from a monstrous cannon mounted atop a large truck.

Victoria started practice being shot out just a few feet, then doing a somersault and landing on her back in the safety net.

"You get the feeling and the timing, and then the cannon is moved back a little farther every day," Victoria explains.

Uncle Edmundo, who built the cannon, takes care of aiming and firing it. Compressed air sends Victoria flying headfirst from the cannon's mouth, as bursts of gunpowder provide smoke and noise to "add to the effect and drama."

"I've been lucky — I've never had any broken bones," Victoria says. "But I have had some pulled muscles and sore shoulders if I haven't landed just right."

Declarer employed rare delicacy in the play of his slam contract today. His caution was well rewarded, for the slightest slip would have turned a substantial profit into a loss.

South had something to spare for his demand bid of two hearts. When his partner made a positive response by offering a single raise, he made several attempts to reach a grand slam. North continued to sign off, however, since he had given his all, and South finally settled somewhat reluctantly for a six heart contract. Fortunately, he did not slip into a state of complacency during the play of the hand.

West led the jack of diamonds from his complete sequence and declarer took the trick with the ace. The combined holdings appeared to present a laydown unless diamonds broke badly. If West had a singleton in the suit there was nothing declarer could do to protect himself, but if East were short in diamonds South could conserve his high cards by forcing his opponent to play first.

Declarer led the six of hearts to the seven in dummy and returned a small diamond. If East ruffed in, it would establish the diamond suit for South. Trumps could be drawn with one more pull, and then dummy's small spade would be discarded on the good diamonds enabling declarer to ruff out his losing spade.

East decided to throw off a spade on the second round of diamonds, and South won the trick with the king. The eight of hearts was now led over to the nine, back. East was confronted by the same Hobson's choice as before, and once again he elected to take a discard. Declarer played the queen of diamonds and then led the six to ruff away. West's ten with the queen of hearts. In the end, he surrendered a spade trick for his only loser.

Had he ever led a high diamond from his hand, he would have been unable to avoid the loss of both a diamond and a spade.

Human Cannonball Retires

But how many working wives who plan to devote all their time to a school-age daughter can say that the career they're giving up is that of a human cannonball?

Victoria, who is shot from a cannon in the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus, is retiring at the end of the 1962 tour. Lora, her 6-year-old daughter, starts to school next fall and Victoria doesn't want to be separated from her.

Until then Victoria and her husband, Walter Patterson, a member of a flying trapeze act, will travel with the circus in their house trailer. Occasionally he joins her for a double shoot from the cannon.

"I'd never seen too much of the circus, says Victoria, recalling her pre-cannon days, "but I'd always wanted to travel. And I sure got my wish!"

It started seven years ago. Victoria was attending classes at the University of Iowa when her uncle, veteran circus performer Edmundo Zacchini, called. Edmundo's daughters had married and left the act; would Victoria be interested?

Soon the petite, shapely daughter of an Iowa bank employe was being fired 125 feet through the air from a monstrous cannon mounted atop a large truck.

Victoria started practice being shot out just a few feet, then doing a somersault and landing on her back in the safety net.

"You get the feeling and the timing, and then the cannon is moved back a little farther every day," Victoria explains.

Uncle Edmundo, who built the cannon, takes care of aiming and firing it. Compressed air sends Victoria flying headfirst from the cannon's mouth, as bursts of gunpowder provide smoke and noise to "add to the effect and drama."

YOUR PROBLEMS

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: I have something to say and I want to say it to the widest audience possible. So I'm witing to Ann Landers.

Why are people so thoughtless? I'm a perfectly normal human being who happens to be about 4 inches shorter than the average American woman. Like any accident of birth I am struck with my size and can do nothing about it.

Yet every time I enter a dress shop the sales person approaches me with, "You're going to be difficult to fit. You're very short, you know." I know I'm short. How could I not know? A sales person with an ounce of brains would never say to a heavy woman, "Youre FAT, you know." Yet they think nothing of reminding short people that they are under-sized.

All my life I've been called "Half - Pint," "Pee - Wee" and "Shrimp." I've tried to laugh it off but it still hurts. And it isn't only the insensitive dolts who make these remarks. I've had them from intelligent people.

Please print my letter for the benefit of all mankind. Like a pebble tossed into a brook one never knows how far the ripples may reach.—WEE BUT MIGHTY

Dear Mighty: Thank you for striking a blow for freedom. I am 5'2" and it's downright boring when people repeatedly say "I expected you to be taller."

When I ask them why they usually come up with some non sequitur, such as "Oh, from the picture of your face I expected a tall woman."

On the other hand, I don't object to that tired but friendly cliche — about good things coming in small packages.

Dear Ann: I used to think this was a family problem but now I see it is something more. I need an outsider's opinion.

We have two teenage sons. Robert is an excellent student. He has distinguished himself academically all through his school years. His younger brother garely gets passing grades.

We have threatened, punished and even tried to shame the younger boy into doing as well as Robert. Nothing works. In fact, he is showing signs of bitter resentment toward his older brother. Things are going from bad to worse. What can you suggest?—DEEPLY CONCERNED

Dear D. C.: Stop holding up Robert as the shining example. In seeking to persuade the younger boy to compete you are throttling his initiative and making enimies of these brothers.

One reason the younger boy does so poorly is because he never felt he could do as well as his brother, so he withdrew completely. He figured that one who does not even try can scarcely be considered a contestant.

You parents need help from a professional so that you may learn to deal with your children more intelligently. I hope it isn't too late.

Dear Ann: An acquaintance who works in this office has become an irritant. It's an accumulation of small things over the years — such as "May 1 borrow your car during lunch hour if you're not using it?" Or "Would you mind dropping this off at the post office on your way home?"

I resent his gall and I could kick myself for allowing him to impose on me. Yet I hate to say no because when I refuse him something I feel guilty. What is the solution? — DUCK SOUP

Dear Ducky: People who voice this complaint often fail to remember that THEY make "small requests," too.

If you wish to enjoy a clear conscience about saying no, make certain that you never ask this man to do you a favor. And I mean never.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mothers are upset when their children will not eat specific foods. This seems to me of very little consequence and nothing to be concerned about. There are all kinds of foods providing the same kind of nourishment.

One mother complains because her little girl will not eat cereals. She writes, "I am afraid she will become a feeding problem if she doesn't."

Give her ripe, raw bananas or banana flakes. Give her whole-grain breads and crackers. These are all good-quality starchy foods and can take the place of cereal.

DIDN'T LIKE THEM

Another complaint is that children won't eat their vegetables. That's one of the commonest of dislikes. Infants enjoy vegetables but later on children pretend to "despise' them. I can remember back to my own childhood when most vegetables actually nauseated me. As no one forced me to eat them now I find I like almost every vegetable.

Sometimes a child's food habits become very rigid. He won't eat any vegetable but peas, or no meats but hamburger, or no fruits but peaches. Why make an issue of this? Feed him peas, hamburgers and peaches until he becomes curious about other foods and willing to have a try at them. If he gets something of all the essential food categories — meat, milk, vegetables, fruits, whole grain breads and cereals, it's unimportant whether or not he eats the same ones daily.

SHOULD BE ENJOYABLE

The fact to keep in mind is that you want your children to enjoy eating. You don't want to make eating an obligation done to please the parent.

This does not mean — I add hastily — that children should be fed candy and desserts because they enjoy them. Far from it. It does mean that within reason (the above wouldn't be reasonable) — children should eat what they like and as much or as little as they want.

Then food becomes a pleasure to them, mealtimes are enjoyable and they come to them willingly. You can't ask for more than this. And it is upon this foundation that a good appetite and an increase in the variety of foods is built.

There seem to be so many feeding problems with youngsters that all mothers welcome guidance. Such help is available in Mrs. Eldred's 25-cent booklet "All About Feeding." Obtain it by sending 25 cents and a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

Piracy Charges Exchanged By Irate Sealers

CHARLOTTETOWN, Prince Edwards Island (AP)—Airborne and seaborne sealers are exchanging charges of piracy, accusing each other of hijacking piles of pelts.

One man got a lump on the head when struck with a rifle in one fracas, the leader of the airborne sealers charged Tuesday night.

Last Saturday Capt. William Morris of the Halifax sealer North Star VI complained to Royal Canadian Mounted Police that pirates using helicopters lifted two piles totaling 700 pelts, which he had stored on the ice on the sealing grounds 45 miles north of Prince Edward Island.

Tuesday night, Dr. Marc Arsenault, leader of a group of airborne seal hunters from the Magdalen Islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, accused the men from the sealing ships of piracy.

He said that when one of his helicopters landed on the ice to pick up pelts belonging to the islanders, two men from a sealing ship were standing guard with rifles. The chief of operations for the islanders was struck on the head with a rifle.

Bandits Loot Postal Truck

LONDON (AP) — Six masked men slugged a post office driver with an iron bar Wednesday and made off with his truck containing stamps and postal orders worth $280,000.

The looted truck was found abandoned a mile away, along with a stolen car used by the robbers in their getaway.

HINTS FROM Heloise

Dear Heloise:

I have found that when making your own spray starch, cooked starch is the best kind to use.

I pour some of this in a bottle and add water to it. Attach a spray top and spray away. The quart bottle can be kept in the refrigerator for refilling.

The only drawback I've found is that the spray is not as fine a mist as the commercially - filled aerosol cans. My remedy for this is to put more distance between the sprayer and the fabric.

I began doing the dishes by hand a couple of months ago when our dishwasher motor burned out. Until then, my plastic dishes had never been stained. Shortly afterwards, I noticed they looked like everyone else's plastic dishes.

A little thought made me see the only difference was in the detergent used. So I tried the granulated detergent, used for the electric dishwasher, in my dish pan, and left the dishes to soak one morning while I did my other chores.

The stain was gone. This is now a twice-a-week procedure. If the cups are especially soiled, fill them with a little water and a small amount of the granules and forget them for a while.

Virginia Rowland

Dear Heloise:

Will you please tell us the answer to getting drip dries, Nylons, Dacrons and wrinkle resistant material white Can chlorine bleaches be used I tried this and my clothes turned brown, yellow and dirty looking.

M.F.E.

Chlorine bleach CANNOT be used on some types of finishes. The materials you mention have special finishes on them to make them wrinkle resistant or to give them polished or embossed surfaces.

Chlorine (which is household bleach) reacts to this type of material and turns it brownish and yellow!

To eliminate this . . . buy sodium thiosulfate at a drugstore and add two tablespoons to one gallon of hot water (and the hotter the water the better job you're gonna get) —

Soak the stained garment until the stain disappears.

If this first solution turns yellow . . . during the soaking period . . . make a new solution and transfer the garment to it.

And gals . . . don't let anyone gyp you on the price. Ask for commercial sodium thiosulfate! It's really cheap. I have gotten letters from my friends (housewives like me . . . bless their little hearts) who have been really gypped! by people selling them other kinds.

NEVER and I repeat . . . . NEVER soak wrinkle resistant or pre-treated clothes in bleach of any kind. It ruins 'em gals.

Heloise

Dear Heloise:

Do you know those "rainbow-marks" on the bottom of stainless steel? Well, I have found that copper cleaning powder will remove them! It really will.

Just a sprinkle of this powder and a swish of a damp cloth or sponge is usually enough to remove discoloration.

For scorch, rubbing the powder in gently with steel wool does the job. The pot should then be rinsed in clear water before drying.

Irene B. Scortia

Heloise welcomes all mail, especially household hints which she can pass on to readers as space permits. However, because of the tremendous volume of mail she receives daily, Heloise is unable to answer all individual letters. She will answer readers' questions in her column whenever possible.

Genealogical Society Hears Talk On Records

B. S. McRaney, Ouachita Parish Clerk of Court, was the featured speaker at a recent meeting of the Ouachita Genealogical Society.

The meeting was held in the clerk's office, because of the presenattion of the modern method of record filing as well as modern equipment for making copies of the records.

McRaney told the group that the records on file in his department reveal the history of this parish, both personal and business. "Many names of note are spread on the pages of history are revealed in the records of this department," he said.

Members attending the educational tour were: Mrs. Aline Banister, Mrs. Abbie Leckie, Mrs. Doris Tynes, Mrs. Judy Caraway, Fred Culver, Mr. and Mrs. John P. Zoll, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Crider, Miss Dovie Goodlet, Miss Agatha Burckett, Mrs. Mae Modes, Miss Ena McDuff, Mrs. Opal Baur, Mrs. Beatrice R. Rankin, and guests, Mr. and Mrs. McRaney, Mr. and Mrs. M. YOUR PROBLEMS

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann: I have something to say and I want to say it to the widest audience possible. So I'm witing to Ann Landers.

Why are people so thoughtless? I'm a perfectly normal human being who happens to be about 4 inches shorter than the average American woman. Like any accident of birth I am struck with my size and can do nothing about it.

Yet every time I enter a dress shop the sales person approaches me with, "You're going to be difficult to fit. You're very short, you know." I know I'm short. How could I not know? A sales person with an ounce of brains would never say to a heavy woman, "Youre FAT, you know." Yet they think nothing of reminding short people that they are under-sized.

All my life I've been called "Half - Pint," "Pee - Wee" and "Shrimp." I've tried to laugh it off but it still hurts. And it isn't only the insensitive dolts who make these remarks. I've had them from intelligent people.

Please print my letter for the benefit of all mankind. Like a pebble tossed into a brook one never knows how far the ripples may reach.—WEE BUT MIGHTY

Dear Mighty: Thank you for striking a blow for freedom. I am 5'2" and it's downright boring when people repeatedly say "I expected you to be taller."

When I ask them why they usually come up with some non sequitur, such as "Oh, from the picture of your face I expected a tall woman."

On the other hand, I don't object to that tired but friendly cliche — about good things coming in small packages.

Dear Ann: I used to think this was a family problem but now I see it is something more. I need an outsider's opinion.

We have two teenage sons. Robert is an excellent student. He has distinguished himself academically all through his school years. His younger brother garely gets passing grades.

We have threatened, punished and even tried to shame the younger boy into doing as well as Robert. Nothing works. In fact, he is showing signs of bitter resentment toward his older brother. Things are going from bad to worse. What can you suggest?—DEEPLY CONCERNED

Dear D. C.: Stop holding up Robert as the shining example. In seeking to persuade the younger boy to compete you are throttling his initiative and making enimies of these brothers.

One reason the younger boy does so poorly is because he never felt he could do as well as his brother, so he withdrew completely. He figured that one who does not even try can scarcely be considered a contestant.

You parents need help from a professional so that you may learn to deal with your children more intelligently. I hope it isn't too late.

Dear Ann: An acquaintance who works in this office has become an irritant. It's an accumulation of small things over the years — such as "May 1 borrow your car during lunch hour if you're not using it?" Or "Would you mind dropping this off at the post office on your way home?"

I resent his gall and I could kick myself for allowing him to impose on me. Yet I hate to say no because when I refuse him something I feel guilty. What is the solution? — DUCK SOUP

Dear Ducky: People who voice this complaint often fail to remember that THEY make "small requests," too.

If you wish to enjoy a clear conscience about saying no, make certain that you never ask this man to do you a favor. And I mean never.

To learn the knack of feeling comfortable with the opposite sex send for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Be Date Bait," enclosing with your request 20 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Your Baby And Mine

By Myrtle Meyer Eldred

Mothers are upset when their children will not eat specific foods. This seems to me of very little consequence and nothing to be concerned about. There are all kinds of foods providing the same kind of nourishment.

One mother complains because her little girl will not eat cereals. She writes, "I am afraid she will become a feeding problem if she doesn't."

Give her ripe, raw bananas or banana flakes. Give her wholegrain breads and crackers. These are all good-quality starchy foods and can take the place of cereal.

DIDN'T LIKE THEM

Another complaint is that children won't eat their vegetables. That's one of the commonest of dislikes. Infants enjoy vegetables but later on children pretend to "despise' them. I can remember back to my own childhood when most vegetables actually nauseated me. As no one forced me to eat them now I find I like almost every vegetable.

Sometimes a child's food habits become very rigid. He won't eat any vegetable but peas, or no meats but hamburger, or no fruits but peaches. Why make an issue of this? Feed him peas, hamburgers and peaches until he becomes curious about other foods and willing to have a try at them. If he gets something of all the essential food categories — meat, milk, vegetables, fruits, whole grain breads and cereals, it's unimportant whether or not he eats the same ones daily.

SHOULD BE ENJOYABLE

The fact to keep in mind is that you want your children to enjoy eating. You don't want to make eating an obligation done to please the parent.

This does not mean — I add hastily — that children should be fed candy and desserts because they enjoy them. Far from it. It does mean that within reason (the above wouldn't be reasonable) — children should eat what they like and as much or as little as they want.

Then food becomes a pleasure to them, mealtimes are enjoyable and they come to them willingly. You can't ask for more than this. And it is upon this foundation that a good appetite and an increase in the variety of foods is built.

There seem to be so many feeding problems with youngsters that all mothers welcome guidance. Such help is available in Mrs. Eldred's 25-cent booklet "All About Feeding." Obtain it by sending 25 cents and a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request for it to Myrtle Meyer Eldred, in care of this newspaper.

Grand Jury Digging Into Estes Case

PECOS, Tex. (AP)—A federal grand jury showed signs Wednesday that it may dig deeper into the Billie Sol Estes mortgage cases than the Justice Department originally asked.

The jury, meeting in El Paso, called at least three men not known to be connected with the charge of fraud filed by the FBI. The men were not identified.

The charge was filed against Estes and three associates last Thursday.

All four are free on bond.

Estes, 37, a financier specializing in grain storage and anhydrous ammonia fertilizer, was named Wednesday in two more lawsuits. These brought the total of damages sought from him to nearly $9 million, although some of the suits may duplicate each other.

Suing for return of mortgages they signed for anhydrous ammonia tanks were T. J. Wilson and Lewis S. Thomas, both farmers.

The suits indicate each signed mortgages for 75 tanks and were paid $7,500 each in cash or credit for signing. The tanks are worth about $1,000 each.

Also named in the farmers' suits are Superior Manufacturing Co.; Superior's president, Harold Orr; W. H. King, listed as vice president of Superior and area representative of CIT Co., a lending agency; and CIT.

Many of the mortgages in question in the multimillion-dollar deals were made to Superior. These mortgages later were transferred to national and local lending companies.

Farmers, at the time they signed the mortgages, agreed to lease them to Estes companies. The Justice Department says many of the tanks cited in the mortgages do not exist.

Charged with Estes are Orr, of Amarillo; Ruel Alexander, Amarillo, Superior's secretary-treasurer; and Coleman McSpadden, Lubbock, a director of Superior.

Dutch Premier Gives Report On New Guinea

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)—Premier Jan de Quay said Wednesday the Netherlands is willing to turn over sovereignty of West New Guinea to Indonesia only if the inhabitants of that Dutch territory approve of it.

The premier, in an address to Parliament, also cautioned the Dutch people against what he called Indonesian military propaganda or scare reports. The Indonesians have claimed they have taken control of a small island off West New Guinea as part of their threat to take the territory by force.

Earlier, the Dutch Labor party said the Netherlands should be prepared to hand over the territory and call a halt to shipments of troops to the Pacific island.

De Quay said the absence of Dutch troops in New Guinea would not improve the situation but would merely increase the dangers for the Papuan people and Dutch residents on New Guinea.

He added that in secret talks Dutch officials had recently with the Indonesians the Netherlands made it clear it wanted to discuss Papuan self-determination.

The secret talks for a solution to the New Guinea problem collapsed at a site near Washington. The United States had been serving as a mediator in the conferences.

Foreign Minister Joseph Luns said, "the government is not prepared to accept the Indonesian demand that the Netherlands declare in advance that (it) agrees to transfer of sovereignty."

Freshman Coed Selected For Beauty Pageant

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP) —A freshman sorority sister of two former Ole Miss co-eds who won the Miss America title was picked Wednesday night as the university's representative in the Miss Mississippi pageant.

Judges of the two-day pageant chose 18-year-old Cathleen Dexter Parsons of Rosedale, Miss., as Miss University of Mississippi for 1963.

Miss Parsons, nicknamed "Chuckles," is a brown-eyed brunette. She is a member of Tau Omega sorority, whose Ole Miss chapter produced Linda Lee Mead and Mary Ann Mobley, both winners of the Miss America pageant at Atlantic City.

Forty-one beauties participated in the pageant. First alternate was Patricia Diane Hapes, a 17-year-old Gulfport freshman. Mary Amanda Brown of Jackson, Miss., 18 and also a freshman, won the second alternate spot.

Couple Found Dead In Home

MERIDIAN, Miss. (AP) — An aged Meridian couple, under doctors care for some time, was found dead in their home here Wednesday.

Officers said J. W. Espey, 78, shot and killed his 89-year-old wife with a 22-caliber rifle and then fatally wounded himself.

The coroner said Mrs. Espey died instantly. Espey died about two hours after arriving in a hospital.

Mrs. Kennedy's Garb Defended By Designer

NEW YORK (AP)—"I couldn't disagree more with John Moore's remarks about Mrs. Kennedy," Clare Potter, a nationally known designer, said Wednesday.

She shared the platform Tuesday in Philadelphia with Moore and other designers at the Philadelphia Museum College of Art's third annual fashion forum.

"I do feel that she is very well dressed. She is the epitome of the American girl look. I wouldn't, I couldn't find anything wrong in the way she dresses," Miss Potter said.

"She is a busy woman yet she dresses in the styles that are right and comfortable for her."

During the panel discussion of "What Makes the Best-Dressed Woman?" Moore had pointed out that Princess Lee Radziwill dressed with more fashion elegance than her sister the First Lady.

Some newswomen attending the late afternoon social function at the Academy of Music understood Miss Potter to agree with Moore's views. Others said they did not hear her disagree. All said the acoustics in the new high-ceilinged ballroom were bad.

CHINA LEADER TO SPEAK

TOKYO (AP) — President Liu Shao-chi of Red China will make an important speech on the situation facing the country when parliament holds its belated session, Radio Peiping said Wednesday.

Liu met with other members of the ruling state council to discuss setting a date for parliament—called the National People's Congress. The congress originally was scheduled to meet March 5 but was postponed without explanation.

Anhalt, shown Wednesday checking a stick he uses for measuring the water, moved into a trailer house he keeps on high ground for just such emergencies. Anhalt's home, visible in background, also was flooded in 1957 and 1960. Flooding Wednesday was limited mainly to low areas. (AP Wirephoto)

George Maharis Stricken With Acute Hepatitis

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—George Maharis, star of the "Route 66" television series, has been stricken with acute infectious hepatitis, his studio reported Wednesday.

Maharis, 28, was admitted to St. John's Hospital Tuesday. The hospital said he is being allowed no visitors.

Screen Gems studio said persons who had had close contact with Maharis in the last four weeks are being asked to see their doctors because of the highly infectious nature of the disease.

The studio said at least 150 members of the cast and crew who worked with Maharis on his last five shows may have been exposed. They have begun taking preventive innoculations.

Actress Joanna Moore, who engaged in some torrid love scenes with Maharis during shooting on nearby Catalina Island last week, got her shots Tuesday. Costar Martin Milner, actor Douglas Fairbanks Jr. and actress Tuesday Weld also went to their doctors.

The studio said at least four upcoming shows will have to shoot without Maharis. He is not expected to work for about four weeks.

Labor Leaders Say Tax Relief Plan 'Giveaway'

WASHINGTON (UPI) —President Kennedy's plan of tax relief for business was described by organized labor Wednesday as a "mountainous giveaway' that many businessmen do not want.

Stanley H. Ruttenburg, research director for the AFO-CIO, said the program would be a "super ... permanent subsidy" that would cost the Treasury $86 billion over the next 10 years.

"(It) would reward investors in a host of undertakings — from bowling alleys to barber shops—that have little bearing on our ability to raise exports or on other priority national goals," Ruttenburg told the Senate Finance Committee.

But while the AFL-CIO opposes the business tax relief feature, he said, it supports the revenue-producing features of the administration tax reform bill which the House passed last week.

Labor opposition to the relief section complicated the problems of administration leaders trying to drum up enough support to put the measure through the Senate.

Several Hurt By Mine Blast

BEAVER FALLS, Pa. (AP) — An explosion at a coal mine near this southwestern Pennsylvania city rocked a wide section Wednesday night, injuring several persons.

State police said the blast occurred in a shed at the Courtney Coal Co. mine, a small pit about 15 miles west of Beaver Falls.

Space Chief Says Tragedy May Strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — Television viewers may expect to become eyewitnesses to tragedies as well as triumphs in space probes by American astronauts, the head of the nation's space program said Wednesday.

James E. Webb, administrator of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA), told television and radio executives that "sooner or later we will again have to take it on the chin—openly."

Addressing the 40th annual meeting of the National Association of Broadcasters, Webb repeated a warning issued a year ago from the National Academy of Science's Space Science Board.

"Men will perish in space as they have on the high seas. . .and wherever they have ventured into unknown regions," Webb quoted the space board.

"That warning remains valid," the NASA head warned. "If we are to ride into space with (U.S. astronauts) via TV, we cannot avoid being there if tragedy strikes."

Webb told United Press International that the Russians may beat the United States to a "multi-man orbit of the earth or a multi-man fly-by of the moon." But he added:

"I believe we are going to make the manned lunar expedition ahead of them and we're going to acquire the know-how to operate in space faster than they can."

Webb told the broadcasters that NASA next year will begin a three - year program of orbital flights around the moon for "extensive mapping. . .to assist in selection of landing sites for the manned lunar landing program."

Youth Caught Playing Hooky Kills Himself

NORWALK, Ohio (AP)—A 15-year-old boy shot and killed himself Wednesday after a truant officer caught him playing hooky from school, sheriff's deputies reported.

Truant officer Albert M. Pebbles said he visited the home of the boy, Richard M. Quillen, in nearby Wakeman. He said the boy told him he stayed home because he had a sore toe. Pebbles said he asked the boy to remove his shoe and that he couldn't see anything wrong with his toe.

Pebbles said he told the boy to get dressed and went outside to wait for him in his car. After waiting about 20 minutes, Pebbles said he went inside the house and found the youth lying across a bed with a shotgun wound in the head.

The boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Quillen, were away at the time.

Sheriff John Borgia said officials at Wakeman High School described the boy as a good student but said he had been absent 42 of 108 school days last semester.

Grand Jury Digging Into Estes Case

PECOS, Tex. (AP)—A federal grand jury showed signs Wednesday that it may dig deeper into the Billie Sol Estes mortgage cases than the Justice Department originally asked.

The jury, meeting in El Paso, called at least three men not known to be connected with the charge of fraud filed by the FBI. The men were not identified.

The charge was filed against Estes and three associates last Thursday.

All four are free on bond.

Estes, 37, a financier specializing in grain storage and anhydrous ammonia fertilizer, was named Wednesday in two more lawsuits. These brought the total of damages sought from him to nearly $9 million, although some of the suits may duplicate each other.

Suing for return of mortgages they signed for anhydrous ammonia tanks were T. J. Wilson and Lewis S. Thomas, both farmers.

The suits indicate each signed mortgages for 75 tanks and were paid $7,500 each in cash or credit for signing. The tanks are worth about $1,000 each.

Also named in the farmers' suits are Superior Manufacturing Co.; Superior's president, Harold Orr; W. H. King, listed as vice president of Superior and area representative of CIT Co., a lending agency; and CIT.

Many of the mortgages in question in the multimillion-dollar deals were made to Superior. These mortgages later were transferred to national and local lending companies.

Farmers, at the time they signed the mortgages, agreed to lease them to Estes companies. The Justice Department says many of the tanks cited in the mortgages do not exist.

Charged with Estes are Orr, of Amarillo; Ruel Alexander, Amarillo, Superior's secretary-treasurer; and Coleman McSpadden, Lubbock, a director of Superior.

Dutch Premier Gives Report On New Guinea

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)—Premier Jan de Quay said Wednesday the Netherlands is willing to turn over sovereignty of West New Guinea to Indonesia only if the inhabitants of that Dutch territory approve of it.

The premier, in an address to Parliament, also cautioned the Dutch people against what he called Indonesian military propaganda or scare reports. The Indonesians have claimed they have taken control of a small island off West New Guinea as part of their threat to take the territory by force.

Earlier, the Dutch Labor party said the Netherlands should be prepared to hand over the territory and call a halt to shipments of troops to the Pacific island.

De Quay said the absence of Dutch troops in New Guinea would not improve the situation but would merely increase the dangers for the Papuan people and Dutch residents on New Guinea.

He added that in secret talks Dutch officials had recently with the Indonesians the Netherlands made it clear it wanted to discuss Papuan self-determination.

The secret talks for a solution to the New Guinea problem collapsed at a site near Washington. The United States had been serving as a mediator in the conferences.

Foreign Minister Joseph Luns said, "the government is not prepared to accept the Indonesian demand that the Netherlands declare in advance that (it) agrees to transfer of sovereignty."

Freshman Coed Selected For Beauty Pageant

UNIVERSITY, Miss. (AP) —A freshman sorority sister of two former Ole Miss co-eds who won the Miss America title was picked Wednesday night as the university's representative in the Miss Mississippi pageant.

Judges of the two-day pageant chose 18-year-old Cathleen Dexter Parsons of Rosedale, Miss., as Miss University of Mississippi for 1963.

Miss Parsons, nicknamed "Chuckles," is a brown-eyed brunette. She is a member of Tau Omega sorority, whose Ole Miss chapter produced Linda Lee Mead and Mary Ann Mobley, both winners of the Miss America pageant at Atlantic City.

Forty-one beauties participated in the pageant. First alternate was Patricia Diane Hapes, a 17-year-old Gulfport freshman. Mary Amanda Brown of Jackson, Miss., 18 and also a freshman, won the second alternate spot.

ANTI-COMMUNISM

Schools In Florida Slate New Course

EDITOR'S NOTE — Florida has laws requiring students to be taught kindness to animals, the harmful effects of alcohol and now it has a mandatory course in anticommunism. But if there's disagreement over just what communism is, there's even more over how it should be taught.

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — "The Communists have taken over Washington. All socialists are just Communists in disguise. No student should be allowed to read anything written by a Communist."

Those points of view are just a few of the politically hot potatoes that Florida state education officials have been juggling for the past nine months.

The Florida Legislature set a national precedent last May with a law requiring that a six-week course on "Americanism versus Communism" be aught in all public high schools, starting next fall.

Since then, the educators have learned the hard way that it is easier to talk about the evils of communism than to design a high school course on the subject. They have had the help of a 13-member advisory committee representing a wide range of opinion. And they have had the unsolicited advice of scores of individuals and groups who profess to know exactly what the course should be.

Florida, with Communist Cuba just 90 miles off its shores, is the first state to make an anti-Communist course mandatory in high schools. Other states have laws encouraging or permitting such courses. Still others are watching the Florida experiment to see whether they want to follow suit.

The Florida law is painstakingly clear: "The course shall lay particular emphasis upon the dangers of communism, the ways to fight communism, the evils of communism, the fallacies of communism, and the false doctrines of communism.

"The course shall emphasize the free enterprise — competitive economy of the United States of America as the one which produces higher wages, higher standards of living, greater personal freedom and liberty than any other system of economics on earth."

But what do you use for a textbook? To whom do you turn as authorities on communism? What is essential, and what can be left out of the course? How much help do teachers need, and what kind?

These are the questions the law raises but doesn't answer.

Florida still is looking for a suitable textbook, but doesn't expect to find one in time for the 1962-63 school year.

It has, however, produced a 62-page teacher's guide that outlines the approach to be taken, the main points to be covered, and a list of 50 publications which may be used for reference or outside reading.

Special summer school course and preschool workshops are planned for teachers who will be giving the course. Until a textbook is available, teachers will be asked to teach from the guide.

The guide, naming no names but otherwise pulling no punches, has this to say about extremist groups: "Instructional materials published by organizations combatting communsim that use Communist labels instead of facts, arguments and sound reasonsing (are) of little value.

"Individuals and organizations who use the Communist label for everyone and every organization they do not like, do damage in the battle against communism."

Dr. Fred Turner, the state's textbook chief, is in over-all charge of the project.

"We believe the approach to communism is all-important in any high school course," he said.

The teacher's guide sets five objectives for the course. The student, it says, should:

Develop a greater appreciation of the American heritage, democratic processes, freedom of opportunity, enterprise under law, and the will to preserve that freedom.

— Understand what the threat of communism means to the freedom of Americans.

—Obtain the factual picture of communism in all its aspects.

— Achieve a thorough understanding of the nature and evils of communism.

—Become aware of the grounds on which free people of the world have condemned communism.

The guide points out that "communism is not merely a set of ideas, but an ideology combined with a combat organization." It also warns of Communist "aesopian language or double talk," which means one thing to a Communist and something else again to a non-Communist.

Such double talk, the guide says is found in the Communist use of such words as socialist or socialism, co-existence, democracy, freedom, party, peace, people and imperialism.

The guide had this word for teachers: "Although totalitarian communism is the greatest threat our nation has confronted, instruction about communism should not be designed to create hysteria or despair, but sober understanding of the danger."

Turner said he long ago gave up hope of pleasing everyone.

"Some of the committee members wanted the guide to say that the federal government in Washington has been infiltrated by Communists," he said. "There also was pressure on us to paint the socialists and the Communists with the same brush."

Rep. George Stallings, a conservative Democrat of Jacksonville and author of the legislation, complained that the teacher's guide didn't go deeply enough into what he called the pitfalls of socialism.

"I don't want to leave the student confused about socialism," he told a meeting called to discuss the guide. "I want you to trace this thing from the first seeds of socialism into communism, and make it clear that, if you practice it long enough, socialism will join into communism."

Stallings was dissuaded, on the grounds that socialism is a course of study in itself.

Negotiations Sought To Avert Strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal mediator Wednesday tried to arrange a resumption of negotiations in a dispute that could lead to a strike by all of the nation's conductors on pullman sleeping and parlor cars.

National Mediation Board member Robert O. Boyd summoned representatives of the Pullman Co. and the Order of Railway Conductors and Brakemen (ORCB) into separate conferences on the union's threat to begin a progressive strike at 6 a.m. April 12.

Conferees went into the huddles with Boyd with divergent stories about their disagreement in negotiations over job protection provisions sought by the union.

Work rules negotiations between the nation's railroads and five operating brotherhoods, including the conductors union, meanwhile were recessed until April 17 so that new union spokesmen could study a report from a presidential study commission.

The talks were recessed at the request of the unions, the negotiators announced jointly, because of "wholesale changes of personnel of the union negotiating committee."

Brotherhood spokesmen said the unions—particularly the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen (BRT) which made several changes in its team—needed more time to acquaint themselves with the commission's report.

Neil P. Speirs, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America (SUNA), said later that the postponement was arranged to give the railroads time to answer a SUNA demand that the carriers "unqualifiedly" accept the union as bargaining agent for its members in the work rules talk.

Speirs said that after the last wage talks the railroads challenged SUNA's right to bargain in a suit now pending in federal courts.

J. E. Wolfe, head of the carriers' bargaining unit, said the railroads hoped "an agreement can be reached . . . within the framework of the presidential report."

"We assume in the lack of statements (to the contrary) by the unions that they are willing to discuss the carrier proposal." Spokesmen for the trainmen, conductors, engineers, firemen and switchmen have said outside the closed hearings this week that they would not negotiate on the basis of the commission report.

OPENS 1962 SEASON

Circus Offers N.Y. Plenty Of Thrills

NEW YORK (AP)—A man who skied down a 60-foot slope on his hands, a lady who naps with a tiger and a horse that dances backwards were just a few of the phalanx of phantasmagoria at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

The greatest show on earth, the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus, opened its 1962 season and a 40-day run at the Garden with a roster of all the old favorites and some thrilling new performers.

Among the most exciting was King Everest, a newcomer who makes the 60-foot slide down a snowless slope on his hands after doing a sensational series of balancing stunts on stacks of ski poles.

Also new is the Great Bartschelly, who spins 30-odd plates on poles—which may seem simple enough in the circus atmosphere—but turns into one of the most hilarious acts of the show when the plates all start falling and he manages to catch almost every one.

Back this year for the first time in nine seasons is Roberto de Vasconcellos, visconte Ponte de Barca, who does a one-horse act of "dressage" riding which involves not only making his mount dance backwards but also dancing him to music and cantering on three legs.

The lady who sleeps with the tiger is Evelyn Currie, who at least appears to be catching a few winks after she climbs onto the beast's back as it pretends to doze while swinging in a huge swing.

House Refuses To Halt U.N. Congo Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House refused Wednesday to cut off funds for the U.S. Contribution to the United Nations military force in the Congo, or to limit disbursing of the funds.

The $25,616,000 item was left intact in an appropriation bill after a sometimes emotional debate and three votes. The House then passed the bill.

The same issue of financing U.N. activities in the Congo is involved in a bill before the Senate proposing the United States loan the U.N. $100 million or purchase that amounts of U. N. bonds.

Rep. Donald C. Bruce, R-Ind., sought to delete the Congo item altogether. He displayed enlarged photographs which he said showed old women, nurses and children killed by U.N. troops in Katanga, the Congo's secessionist province where the international force went into actinn.

Youth Booked After Mishap

Allen J. Ritter, Jr., 20, of 1401 College Ave., Monroe, was booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages in West Monroe last night after overturning his car.

According to West Monroe police, Ritter was driving north on Trenton Street, and overturned his small model foreign car at its intersection with Young Street. The accident happened around 10:30 p.m.

He apparently escaped injury, and police booked him for DWI and reckless driving, causing a wreck.

Negro Booked On Theft Count

Page was booked at 4:30 p.m. after being apprehended at 1301 Texas Ave. The warrant was taken out by Henry Wimberly of Wimberly's Grocery Store. The warrant charged him with the theft of a carton of cigarettes valued at $2.65.

Hospital Board Announces Bids

The names of 22 successful bidders on Group 2 equipment for West Monroe's new Glenwood Hospital were announced Wednesday by Judge Jesse S. Heard, chairman of the facility's board of commissioners.

The bids were opened by the board in mid - February and have been held under study and advisement since that time. Successful bidders have been notified of their awards.

Group 2 items include largely heavy but movable materials, principally operating tables and related surgical equipment, office, bedroom and dining furniture, laboratory instruments, and office machines, according to Glenwood administrator Ewell D. Singleton.

Bids on Group 3 equipment, mainly minor, expendable items, are presently in receipt and due to be opened during a meeting of the board set for 3 p.m., April 11.

ANTI-COMMUNISM

Schools In Florida Slate New Course

EDITOR'S NOTE — Florida has laws requiring students to be taught kindness to animals, the harmful effects of alcohol and now it has a mandatory course in anticommunism. But if there's disagreement over just what communism is, there's even more over how it should be taught.

By G. K. HODENFIELD
AP Education Writer

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — "The Communists have taken over Washington. All socialists are just Communists in disguise. No student should be allowed to read anything written by a Communist."

Those points of view are just a few of the politically hot potatoes that Florida state education officials have been juggling for the past nine months.

The Florida Legislature set a national precedent last May with a law requiring that a six-week course on "Americanism versus Communism" be aught in all public high schools, starting next fall.

Since then, the educators have learned the hard way that it is easier to talk about the evils of communism than to design a high school course on the subject. They have had the help of a 13-member advisory committee representing a wide range of opinion. And they have had the unsolicited advice of scores of individuals and groups who profess to know exactly what the course should be.

Florida, with Communist Cuba just 90 miles off its shores, is the first state to make an anti-Communist course mandatory in high schools. Other states have laws encouraging or permitting such courses. Still others are watching the Florida experiment to see whether they want to follow suit.

The Florida law is painstakingly clear: "The course shall lay particular emphasis upon the dangers of communism, the ways to fight communism, the evils of communism, the fallacies of communism, and the false doctrines of communism.

"The course shall emphasize the free enterprise — competitive economy of the United States of America as the one which produces higher wages, higher standards of living, greater personal freedom and liberty than any other system of economics on earth."

But what do you use for a textbook? To whom do you turn as authorities on communism? What is essential, and what can be left out of the course? How much help do teachers need, and what kind?

These are the questions the law raises but doesn't answer.

Florida still is looking for a suitable textbook, but doesn't expect to find one in time for the 1962-63 school year.

It has, however, produced a 62-page teacher's guide that outlines the approach to be taken, the main points to be covered, and a list of 50 publications which may be used for reference or outside reading.

Special summer school course and preschool workshops are planned for teachers who will be giving the course. Until a textbook is available, teachers will be asked to teach from the guide.

The guide, naming no names but otherwise pulling no punches, has this to say about extremist groups: "Instructional materials published by organizations combatting communsim that use Communist labels instead of facts, arguments and sound reasonsing (are) of little value.

"Individuals and organizations who use the Communist label for everyone and every organization they do not like, do damage in the battle against communism."

Dr. Fred Turner, the state's textbook chief, is in over-all charge of the project.

"We believe the approach to communism is all-important in any high school course," he said.

The teacher's guide sets five objectives for the course. The student, it says, should:

Develop a greater appreciation of the American heritage, democratic processes, freedom of opportunity, enterprise under law, and the will to preserve that freedom.

— Understand what the threat of communism means to the freedom of Americans.

—Obtain the factual picture of communism in all its aspects.

— Achieve a thorough understanding of the nature and evils of communism.

—Become aware of the grounds on which free people of the world have condemned communism.

The guide points out that "communism is not merely a set of ideas, but an ideology combined with a combat organization." It also warns of Communist "aesopian language or double talk," which means one thing to a Communist and something else again to a non-Communist.

Such double talk, the guide says is found in the Communist use of such words as socialist or socialism, co-existence, democracy, freedom, party, peace, people and imperialism.

The guide had this word for teachers: "Although totalitarian communism is the greatest threat our nation has confronted, instruction about communism should not be designed to create hysteria or despair, but sober understanding of the danger."

Turner said he long ago gave up hope of pleasing everyone.

"Some of the committee members wanted the guide to say that the federal government in Washington has been infiltrated by Communists," he said. "There also was pressure on us to paint the socialists and the Communists with the same brush."

Rep. George Stallings, a conservative Democrat of Jacksonville and author of the legislation, complained that the teacher's guide didn't go deeply enough into what he called the pitfalls of socialism.

"I don't want to leave the student confused about socialism," he told a meeting called to discuss the guide. "I want you to trace this thing from the first seeds of socialism into communism, and make it clear that, if you practice it long enough, socialism will join into communism."

Stallings was dissuaded, on the grounds that socialism is a course of study in itself.

Negotiations Sought To Avert Strike

CHICAGO (UPI) — A federal mediator Wednesday tried to arrange a resumption of negotiations in a dispute that could lead to a strike by all of the nation's conductors on pullman sleeping and parlor cars.

National Mediation Board member Robert O. Boyd summoned representatives of the Pullman Co. and the Order of Railway Conductors and Brakemen (ORCB) into separate conferences on the union's threat to begin a progressive strike at 6 a.m. April 12.

Conferees went into the huddles with Boyd with divergent stories about their disagreement in negotiations over job protection provisions sought by the union.

Work rules negotiations between the nation's railroads and five operating brotherhoods, including the conductors union, meanwhile were recessed until April 17 so that new union spokesmen could study a report from a presidential study commission.

The talks were recessed at the request of the unions, the negotiators announced jointly, because of "wholesale changes of personnel of the union negotiating committee."

Brotherhood spokesmen said the unions—particularly the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen (BRT) which made several changes in its team—needed more time to acquaint themselves with the commission's report.

Neil P. Speirs, president of the Switchmen's Union of North America (SUNA), said later that the postponement was arranged to give the railroads time to answer a SUNA demand that the carriers "unqualifiedly" accept the union as bargaining agent for its members in the work rules talk.

Speirs said that after the last wage talks the railroads challenged SUNA's right to bargain in a suit now pending in federal courts.

J. E. Wolfe, head of the carriers' bargaining unit, said the railroads hoped "an agreement can be reached ... within the framework of the presidential report."

"We assume in the lack of statements (to the contrary) by the unions that they are willing to discuss the carrier proposal." Spokesmen for the trainmen, conductors, engineers, firemen and switchmen have said outside the closed hearings this week that they would not negotiate on the basis of the commission report.

Youth Booked After Mishap

Allen J. Ritter, Jr., 20, of 1401 College Ave., Monroe, was booked for driving while under the influence of intoxicating beverages in West Monroe last night after overturning his car.

According to West Monroe police, Ritter was driving north on Trenton Street, and overturned his small model foreign car at its intersection with Young Street. The accident happened around 10:30 p.m.

He apparently escaped injury, and police booked him for DWI and reckless driving, causing a wreck.

Negro Booked On Theft Count

Page was booked at 4:30 p.m. after being apprehended at 1301 Texas Ave. The warrant was taken out by Henry Wimberly of Wimberly's Grocery Store. The warrant charged him with the theft of a carton of cigarettes valued at $2.65.

PRODUCTION RISES

NEW YORK (UPI) — Paperboard production totaled 365,679 tons in the week ended March 31 compared with 354,443 tons in the previous week and 320,592 tons in the same week last year, the National Paperboard Association reported today.

OPENS 1962 SEASON

Circus Offers N.Y. Plenty Of Thrills

NEW YORK (AP)—A man who skied down a 60-foot slope on his hands, a lady who naps with a tiger and a horse that dances backwards were just a few of the phalanx of phantasmagoria at Madison Square Garden Wednesday night.

The greatest show on earth, the Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey Circus, opened its 1962 season and a 40-day run at the Garden with a roster of all the old favorites and some thrilling new performers.

Among the most exciting was King Everest, a newcomer who makes the 60-foot slide down a snowless slope on his hands after doing a sensational series of balancing stunts on stacks of ski poles.

Also new is the Great Bartschelly, who spins 30-odd plates on poles—which may seem simple enough in the circus atmosphere—but turns into one of the most hilarious acts of the show when the plates all start falling and he manages to catch almost every one.

Back this year for the first time in nine seasons is Roberto de Vasconcellos, visconte Ponte de Barca, who does a one-horse act of "dressage" riding which involves not only making his mount dance backwards but also dancing him to music and cantering on three legs.

The lady who sleeps with the tiger is Evelyn Currie, who at least appears to be catching a few winks after she climbs onto the beast's back as it pretends to doze while swinging in a huge swing.

House Refuses To Halt U.N. Congo Funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — The House refused Wednesday to cut off funds for the U.S. Contribution to the United Nations military force in the Congo, or to limit disbursing of the funds.

The $25,616,000 item was left intact in an appropriation bill after a sometimes emotional debate and three votes. The House then passed the bill.

The same issue of financing U.N. activities in the Congo is involved in a bill before the Senate proposing the United States loan the U.N. $100 million or purchase that amounts of U. N. bonds.

Rep. Donald C. Bruce, R-Ind., sought to delete the Congo item altogether. He displayed enlarged photographs which he said showed old women, nurses and children killed by U.N. troops in Katanga, the Congo's secessionist province where the international force went into actinn.

BREAK UP 'DEATH WATCH'

Castroites End Relatives' Vigil

HAVANA (UPI) — Castro supporters in civilian garb and shrieking "Fidel, Fidel" Wednesday attacked and broke up a "death watch" at Principe prison by relatives and friends of war prisoners awaiting the verdict in their mass treason trial.

Shouting pro - Castro slogans and waving Cuban flags, about 300 men and women crossed Carlos Tercera Avenue to forcibly dislodge the group of 100 persons massed before the prison since the trial's start last Thursday.

There was no immediate indication of casualties or arrests. By early afternoon, however, the pro-Castro mob had swelled to about 500 persons, including some 60 persons, including some 60 women, apparently determined to prevent any popular reaction to announcement of the trial sentences.

The government has asked death or 20-year jail terms at hard labor for each of the 1,179 war prisoners being tried. The court-appointed defense counsel, repudiated by the prisoners, appealed to the five-man military tribunal for "justice tempered with generosity."

There was no indication of when the sentences might be handed down but Premier Fidel Castro scheduled a speech to a mass rally of the young Communist league Wednesday night and it was assumed he might then make first disclosure of the verdict.

Wednesday's street clash, first open battle since the trial started, had been building up since before dawn. For the third time, the "death watch" group had been forced to shift its position to about 1½ blocks from the prison itself. Some friends and relatives of the prisoners in the group had been forced to shift its position to about 1½ blocks from the prison itself. Some friends and relatives of the prisoners in the group found the tires of their cars slashed and car windows smashed by hoodlums.

The pro - Castro mob started forming across the street under the Miguel Mariano Gomez statue around dawn. By mid-day it had grown to some 330 members. Because of their threatening attitude, many of the "death watch" group had started to drift away before the attack came.

Tension began building up Tuesday night when government-controlled newspapers disclosed that the prosecution had asked death or 20-year jail terms for the invasion captives. State prosecutor Santiago Cubas Fernandez termed the prisoners "traitors" and insisted that the court deal out "the most severe punishment our laws permit."

Cubas, in a 40-minute summation, said that "U.S. imperialism and its President, Kennedy," were "co-authors" of the April 17, 1961 invasion. He said they "will have to answer for their crime before the court of the peoples of the world."

Defense attorney Antonio Cejas in a 90-minute address urged a "generous" verdict. He quoted Castro himself last April 26 as saying "no very severe punishment" would be dealt the invaders.

The three - hour and 10-minute closing session of the trial was the shortest of the four sessions. The prisoners, denied their free choice of counsel, refused to enter any defense.

Students Hear Dr. Brown At NLSC Banquet

Noting that many Americans seem to long for the "good old days," Dr. Joseph R. Brown told Northeast Louisiana State College students at their annual Greek Week banquet that one reason those days were good "is that they were old."

An associate professor of history at the college, Dr. Brown was featured speaker at the event at the Paragon Club, sponsored jointly by the school's Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils.

Elaborating, he explained, "We can sit back and enjoy the crises with which our grandfathers struggled, because the crises were theirs and we know how they turned out."

Brown expressed a belief that within 30 years, with present problems solved, the 1960's would be looked back on as the good old days.

The Interfraternity and Panhellenic Councils at Northeast are headed respectively by Peter Mangum of West Monroe and Carol Shipp of Bosco.

Need $400,000 To Plan Work On Ouachita

WASHINGTON (AP) — Army Engineers say they could use $400,000 in the coming year to continue their planning work on the nine-foot navigation channel for the Ouachita River in Louisiana and Arkansas.

This engineering capability for the year starting July 1 compares with $235,000 budgeted by President Kennedy.

Maj. Gen. Thomas A. Lane, lower Mississippi Division Army Engineer, discussed the project Tuesday before a Senate appropriations subcommittee headed by Sen. Allen J. Ellender, D-La.

Lane told Ellender the engineers have not received firm assurances that all local commitments for the project would be forthcoming, and that no actual construction work would be started until those assurances are received.

The project involves a federal cost of $45.5 million plus local contributions of $1,440,000.

Contractor Tells Of Zsa Zsa's Help

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "She certainly could influence men," said playboy-contractor Hal Hayes of actress Zsa Zsa Gabor.

That, he said, was why he called on her to help his public relations in Washington, D.C., while he negotiated for military housing projects.

And, on a trial basis, he said, he proffered a 20-carat diamond ring—rather large even in millionaire circles. He got it back, though—that is, the jeweler did.

Hayes' remarks came in depositions filed Wednesday with Superior Court Judge Lloyd S. Nix. The contractor is involved in litigation with Continental Casualty Co. over $60 million worth of uncompleted military housing.

In the depositions Hayes said Zsa Zsa appeared a couple of times in his behalf in Washington in 1959.

"Did she participate in any type of negotiations?" asked attorney Donald E. Ruppe, representing one of the defendants.

"Well, she certainly could influence men."

"Did she try to?"

"To this extent: We entertained there. We gave a party one time in the—I think it was the Hilton. Naturally, it would have been one of her husband's hotels, and we had quite a number of people there from around Washington." (Zsa Zsa formerly was married to hotel man Conrad Hilton.)

Hayes once was reported engaged to the beautiful actress. His present fiancee, a Finnish former United Nations building guide, Raili Hanninen, 27, attends the trial with him every day.

Hayes said the ring was the only payment Miss Gabor received, to his knowledge.

"I got it back," he said. "I made history."

And he added: "It was never paid for. It was a kind of purchase on trial. Those things don't last forever, sometimes."

Judy Garland Confirms Split With Husband

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Judy Garland confirmed Wednesday a studio spokesman's announcement that she and her husband, Sid Luft, have separated again.

"It is true that my husband and I are living apart," the 38-year-old singer-actress' statement said. "I have retained (attorney) Grant Cooper to represent me."

"At the present time she is contemplating no legal action at all," the spokesman said after talking to Cooper. Tuesday night the spokesman had said she would seek a legal separation.

Why the attorney? Cooper told a reporter: "I can't reveal the confidence of a client but somtimes people come to a lawyer for advice. Maybe she just wanted to find out what her rights are. I have received no instructions to file legal action."

The studio spokesman said Miss Garland moved to a hotel last week. Luft, 45, could not be reached for comment.

Judy has five more days' work to do on a movie, then leaves for a picture commitment in London.

No reason was given for the latest of several separations. She sued Luft for divorce in 1952 and 1958 but dropped the actions. The couple has two children.

Miss Garland divorced movie director Vincente Minelli, by whom she has a daughter, Liza May, 15, in 1951. In 1944 she divorced composer-conductor David Rose. Luft formerly was married to actress Lynn Bari.

Actress Claims Trickery On Mexican Vows

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actress Ann Miller sued oil millionaire Arthur Cameron Wednesday for more than $7 million, charging he tricked her into a Mexican marriage and then repudiated it in a telegram.

In the Superior Court action, Miss Miller asked she be declared Cameron's legal wife. She also seeks a decree of separate maintenance.

The actress alleged through attorney Jacques Leslie that she and Cameron were married in Mexico City on May 25, 1961, after he told her that he was worth $100 million.

The alleged Mexican marriage, Miss Miller asserts, did $5 million worth of damage to her professional career. For mortification of feelings and indignities to her person, the actress is seeking $1 million, plus $1 million punitive damages.

CZECH TOMB CLOSED

VIENNA (UPI) — Czech newspapers received here Wednesday said that former Czech President Klement Gottwald's tomb had been closed to the public for an indefinite period. The tomb had become a symbol for the Stalinist "personality cult" in Czechoslovakia.

Eugene Smith To Attend Meet

Leaving this afternoon for Jennings is West Monroe Chamber of Commerce Manager Eugene Smith who will represent the city organization Friday and Saturday at the annual convention of the Louisiana Association of Chambers of Commerce Managers.

Highlighting the program Friday morning at the Hotel Zigler will be a discussion of "An Analysis of Louisiana's Major Economic Supports" by Dr. John M. Richards, assistant professor of economics at McNeese State College in Lake Charles.

STORAGE AREAS GROW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Underground gas storage areas exceeded a capacity of 3 trillion cubic feet for the first time, the American Gas Association reports. These storage areas, which are playing an increasingly important part in delivering natural gas to the consumer, are spread across 21 states and are capable of storing one-quarter of all the natural gas produced last year, the association said.

"Did she try to?"

"To this extent: We entertained there. We gave a party one time in the—I think it was the Hilton. Naturally, it would have been one of her husband's hotels, and we had quite a number of people there from around Washington." (Zsa Zsa formerly was married to hotel man Conrad Hilton.)

Hayes once was reported engaged to the beautiful actress. His present fiancee, a Finnish former United Nations building guide, Raili Hanninen, 27, attends the trial with him every day.

Hayes said the ring was the only payment Miss Gabor received, to his knowledge.

"I got it back," he said. "I made history."

And he added: "It was never paid for. It was a kind of purchase on trial. Those things don't last forever, sometimes."

Judy Garland Confirms Split With Husband

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Judy Garland confirmed Wednesday a studio spokesman's announcement that she and her husband, Sid Luft, have separated again.

"It is true that my husband and I are living apart," the 38-year-old singer-actress' statement said. "I have retained (attorney) Grant Cooper to represent me."

"At the present time she is contemplating no legal action at all," the spokesman said after talking to Cooper. Tuesday night the spokesman had said she would seek a legal separation.

Why the attorney? Cooper told a reporter: "I can't reveal the confidence of a client but sometimes people come to a lawyer for advice. Maybe she just wanted to find out what her rights are. I have received no instructions to file legal action."

The studio spokesman said Miss Garland moved to a hotel last week. Luft, 45, could not be reached for comment.

No reason was given for the latest of several separations. She sued Luft for divorce in 1952 and 1958 but dropped the actions. The couple has two children.

Miss Garland divorced movie director Vincente Minelli, by whom she has a daughter, Liza May, 15, in 1951. In 1944 she divorced composer-conductor David Rose. Luft formerly was married to actress Lynn Bari.

Actress Claims Trickery On Mexican Vows

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP) — Actress Ann Miller sued oil millionaire Arthur Cameron Wednesday for more than $7 million, charging he tricked her into a Mexican marriage and then repudiated it in a telegram.

In the Superior Court action, Miss Miller asked she be declared Cameron's legal wife. She also seeks a decree of separate maintenance.

The actress alleged through attorney Jacques Leslie that she and Cameron were married in Mexico City on May 25, 1961, after he told her that he was worth $100 million.

The complaint alleges that on March 7, 1962, she received a telegram from Cameron terminating what he called their engagement.

The alleged Mexican marriage, Miss Miller asserts, did $5 million worth of damage to her professional career. For mortification of feelings and indignities to her person, the actress is seeking $1 million, plus $1 million punitive damages.

CZECH TOMB CLOSED

VIENNA (UPI) — Czech newspapers received here Wednesday said that former Czech President Klement Gottwald's tomb had been closed to the public for an indefinite period. The tomb had become a symbol for the Stalinist "personality cult" in Czechoslovakia.

STORAGE AREAS GROW

NEW YORK (UPI) — Underground gas storage areas exceeded a capacity of 3 trillion cubic feet for the first time, the American Gas Association reports. These storage areas, which are playing an increasingly important part in delivering natural gas to the consumer, are spread across 21 states and are capable of storing one-quarter of all the natural gas produced last year, the association said.

Hiss' Innocence Claim Rejected

WASHINGTON (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy has rejected Alger Hiss' declaration that his 11-year-old claim of innocence to perjury can now be proven by Richard M. Nixon's new book, "Six Crises."

The Justice Department recently reviewed the case carefully, Kennedy said, because of renewed controversy over a key issue — possession of a typewriter — but found nothing to substantiate Hiss' contentions.

"Accordingly no further action in this case is contemplated," said the attorney general's statement, issued Wednesday.

Hiss, once one of the State Department's bright young men, spent 44 months in prison after he was sentenced to five years on charges that he lied in denying he had passed government secrets to Whittaker Chambers, admitted spy courier for the Communists.

Chambers, who renounced communism and was the key witness against Hiss, is dead. Hiss has never given up trying to remove the label that his perjury conviction pinned on him.

The argument over the typewriter, a battered Woodstock Hiss is alleged to have used to type secret information for Chambers, centered on whether it ever was in the FBI's possession.

The FBI denied that it had ever had possession of the machine.

The issue arose anew with the recent publication of the book by Nixon, who was the chief congressional investigator of Hiss before the perjury trial. The book said that FBI agents had found the typewriter on Dec. 13, 1948.

Hiss welcomed the statement, terming it new evidence to support his pleas of innocence. But a spokesman for Nixon in Los Angeles said the statement in "Six Crises" about FBI possession of the typewriter was erroneous and occurred because a researcher picked up an erroneous newspaper story.

Four Believed Killed In Crash Of Navy Plane

NORFOLK, Va. (UPI)— The Navy found evidence Wednesday indicating four crewmen were killed in the crash of an S2F anti-submarine tracker plane Monday in the Atlantic.

Search units reported that two helmets and a damaged self-inflating liferaft from the missing plane were found about 150 miles east of here.

The Navy said the helmets belonged to the pilot and co-pilot of the plane and indicated "very little possibility of survivors."

The plane, laden with electronic detection equipment, was last heard from at 9:14 p.m. EST Monday. It was assigned aboard the aircraft carrier Randolph.

Space Grant For Research Given NLSC

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration has awarded a grant of $11,987.20 to Northeast Louisiana State College for research in developing methods for solving problems associated with space vehicles.

Announcement of the grant was received this week by College officials in a letter from Marion S. Hardee, contracting officer of the George C. Marshall Space Flight Center of Huntsville, Ala. The grant is for one calendar year, starting May 1.

The college will work with the Future Projects Branch of the Aeroballistics Division of the National Aeronautics and Space Administration. The Northeast State department of mathematics will supervise the work.

NLSC instructors handling the project will be Dr. Daniel E. Dupree, chairman of the department of mathematics, as project leader; Frank L. Harmon, associate professor of mathematics, as research associate; and Dr. H. Lawrence Browning Jr., assistant professor of chemistry, as consultant.

Under the terms of the grant, the college will apply the principles of mathematics and mechanics to develop methods of solving problems associated with space vehicles of high and low thrust in the following areas.

1. Guidance Concepts for Space Flight: develop criteria for cut-off of each stage of multi-stage vehicles.

2. Optimized Missile Steering Equations: study methods for developing the steering program needed by the vehicle at each instant of time in order to satisfy the cut-off equations in an optimum manner.

3. Effect of Space Phenomena of Vehicle Trajectories and Space Craft Orbits: studies of a special nature should be made to evaluate the effects of possible or anticipated phenomena on Flight Mechanics that may be encountered in space flight.

4. Optimized Missile Trajectories: study methods for developing optimum trajectories needed by the vehicle in order to satisfy the cut-off equations in an optimum manner.

In addition, the college will apply such other approaches and techniques to these studies as may be needed as the solution develops.

Students Urged To File NLSC Room Requests

High school graduates planning to enroll at Northeast Louisiana State College in the summer or fall semesters should make applications for dormitory rooms as soon as possible.

The College has received more than twice as many requests for rooms as at the same time last year, Dr. Fred J. Vogel, dean of student services, has announced.

All summer school residents will live in air-conditioned halls, and 70 per cent of on-campus students will live in air-conditioned rooms during the 1962-63 school year.

VFW Officers To Be Installed

The meeting is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. at the post hall on 6th Street. According to the post commander, the group will also discuss plans to expand membership.

WITH LUSCIOUS SAUCE

Turn Plain Fare Into Party Dish

Want to be known as a famous cook? Master the art of making sauces! Although the word "sauce" is derived from the Latin "salsus" (from salire, to salt) and Roman ruins have yielded tinned copper saucepans much like those in use today, sauces as we know them are a comparative innovation — only a couple of centuries old!

We recommend luscious pecan-grape sauce as a subtle flavorful accompaniment sauce made with golden - kernelled pecans and piquant grapes to turn the simplest fare into a party dish. The cook, whose deft hand prepared it, will soon gain the reputation of performing "kitchen miracles."

BAKED STUFFED FISH WITH PECAN-GRAPE SAUCE

Stuffed Fish

1-3 cup butter or margarine
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup chopped celery
2 tablespoons minced parsley
1 1/2 teaspoons salt
4 cups finely torn (or 1/4 inch cubes) fresh bread
1 whole (2 to 3 pound) white fish, dressed and boned for stuffing

Sauce

1/4 cup chopped onion
1/4 cup chopped celery
1 cup water
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/2 teaspoon sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
1 teaspoon lemon juice
1/2 cup halved seeded green grapes
1/2 cup chopped pecans

Stuff and cook fish. Melt 1/4 cup butter or margarine in fry pan. Add onion, celery, parsley and salt, cook until vegetables are tender.

Add bread and brown lightly, stirring constantly. Stuff fish loosely with dressing. Close opening using skewers and poultry lacing. Place in greased shallow baking pan. Melt remaining butter and brush over surface of fish. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) until fish is tender, 50 to 60 minutes. Make sauce. Combine onion, celery and 1/2 cup of water.

Cover and cook slowly until vegetables are tender. Mix salt, sugar and cornstarch together; add remaining 1/2 cup water and stir until smooth. Add cooked vegetables and stock. Cook mix over low heat until sauce thickens and is clear. stir in lemon juice, grapes and pecans; heat. serve with stuffed fish. Yield: 4 servings.

Lively Flavor Sparks Salad Dressing Mix

Parmesan salad dressing mix, a bright new flavor, has been added to the roster of distinctive salad dressing mixes. Like the other eight dressings, Parmesan has a flavor all its own. A variety of subtle seasonings are skillfully blended with piquant Parmesan and Romano cheeses and just the righ touch of garlic bouquet to achieve a unique flavor.

This new salad dressing mix creates a lively and provocative dressing that gives an appealing new flavor lift to a wide range of salads — tossed green, vegetable, citrus fruit, sea food, chicken, and such old favorites as potato salad and cole slaw. Parmesan dressing is also a natural for popular Caesar salad. With Parmesan cheese and the garlic flavor right in the dressing, it's now easy to make a streamlined version of Caesar salad with this newcomer among salad dressings.

To prepare Parmesan dressing, blend the mix with the correct amounts of water, vinegar and oil as indicated on the envelope or use the convenient cruet. This self - measuring cruet with its attractive gold leaf design is handy to use in blending the dressing and handsome enough to grace the dinner table.

For delightful variations of Parmesan salad dressing, substitute dry wine, vermouth, lemon juice or sour cream for the correct amount of water called for in preparing the dressing. To give Parmesan dressing a continental flair, toasted sesame seeds, slivered almonds, chopped pimento or ripe olives, or minced chives can be added to the dressing after it is blended.

Kennedy Gets 400-Year-Old Rocking Chair

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Wednesday accepted a 400-year-old mahogany rocking chair from the Dominican Republic and had to be urged to try it out.

The high-back rocking chair with a cane seat was presented to Kennedy by Dr. Jose A. Bonilla-Atiles, foreign minister of the Dominican Republic. Dr. Bonilla-Atiles had promised Kennedy a rocking chair last January when he called at the White House and thought that the rocking chair the President was using then "was not very pretty—in my opinion."

When cameramen and reporters went to the President's office to see the chair, photographers asked Kennedy to sit in it for a picture. At first, Kennedy said "no" but then, looking it over, he said "it's beautiful" and sat down in it.

New Guinea Crisis May Be Settled

By J. M. ROBERTS
Associated Press News Analyst

American officials are convinced the crisis between The Netherlands and Indonesia over West New Guinea is about over, but you can get just about as many opinions as there are observers as to the future of the new nation.

The Dutch presence there has become unprofitable. Its cession to Indonesia now seems to be a matter of letting the Dutch government out gracefully—something which President Sukarno is not eager to do, but probably will do to avoid the onus of violence.

There are indications that he does not wish to create an unstable situation at home which might put him in the same relation to his Communist constituents as Fidel Castro of Cuba.

Sukarno is still the boss in Indonesia—with the aid of an army to which he gives sufficient power to check any too-forward Communist activities.

For their part, the Indonesian Communists are playing a game which has been played before, elsewhere, as in France and Italy and some other European countries immediately after World War II.

In Asia the pattern has been for the establishment of cadres, and recruiting for guerrilla action as preliminary to control of villages and eventual establishment of footholds in governments.

In Indonesia there has been greater emphasis on a more subtle phase of Communist tactics. That is the tactic of creating production troubles in industry and disruption of commerce, forcing governments to go adventuring into various forms of nationalization, spreading Socialist practices which the Reds see as the last step before arrival at universal communism.

The question is whether Sukarno will emerge from the Dutch dispute with enhanced support by the army—as he should—and whether he believes American economic aid will be offered under a true application of the new policy of full recognition for neutralism.

A State Department spokesman said recently that Indonesia had not received enough American attention. The implication is that she will get more.

There is little indication, however, that the new nation can be drawn into any sort of anti-Communist front in Asia, political or military. There are strong indications it would be unwise to attempt to do so. At any rate the failure of the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization to swing any real weight probably has taught a sufficient lesson about attempting to create such a front among countries whose governments are poised on the points of some very prickly pins.

Antarctic Gets Nuclear Reactor

CHRISTCHURCH, New Zealand (AP)—When the long winter night settles over the antarctic in May, the U.S. naval station at McMurdo Sound will glow with the power of the continent's first nuclear reactor.

Fast installation of the reactor was one of the achievements that made the past season the most successful yet for Operation Deep Freeze, the U.S. scientific research program.

American scientists at Christchurch, staging point for the exploration, said the nuclear reactor would provide ample power for lighting, heating and scientific experiments. It is planned, too, to power water distillation and sewage treatment plants.

Volcanic contamination makes the water far from pure, and with up to 1,000 men moving in the area every year, snow must be sought farther and farther away from camp.

Other groups are wintering in a model village, built under the snow at Byrd Station, in the [illegible] of Marie Byrd Land; and at the South Pole, each some 800 miles from the main base at McMurdo and a similar distance apart.

The village, replacing the old Byrd encampment that was crushed by 35 feet of accumulated snow, has been built in huge tunnels.

The buildings, standing within the tunnels, have an expected life of 20 years—three times that of the previous camp built on the surface, and providing living conditions a far cry from the spartan comforts and narrow confines of the old camp.

In the past year, scientists, among other things, took the biggest fish ever caught in Antarctica. It was 52 inches long and weighed 58 lbs. They took it from the mouth of a seal, which popped up through a hole in the ice where biologists were working.

Later, 350 miles from the South Pole, Ohio State University geologists blasted 50 feet into the side of a mountain and took the first coal mined in Antarctica.

EASTER BUNNY is made of glistening white popcorn, stands over a foot high and will delight the children (and grown-ups) this season.

EASTER CENTERPIECE

Star Attraction: Popcorn Bunny

This wise and knowing Easter bunny, with one eye closed in an outrageous wink, will be the star attraction as your centerpiece during the Easter season. With its perky bow tie and bristling pipe cleaner whiskers, the glistening white popcorn Roue Rabbit stands over a foot high, monarch of all he surveys!

A special touch can be added with small copies of big bunny at each place. Three small ones can be made with this basic recipe. Simple to make, the bunnies can be prepared days ahead, wrapped in saran, kept in a cool place, and will emerge fresh and saucy when the big moment arrives.

ROUE RABBIT

Waxed paper (18" long)
2 cups sugar
½ cup light corn syrup
½ cup water
½ cup butter or margarine
1½ teaspoons salt
Colored pipe cleaners
4 quarts popped popcorn
Gum drops or small Easter eggs
Small ribbon bows for necktie.

Spread a sheet of heavy waxed paper 18 inches long onto a flat surface. Draw a large egg 9 to 10 inches high and 5 to 6 inches wide at widest end of egg. Draw 2 long ears on top (wide end) of head. Cut out bunny head. Smooth waxed paper pattern out flat onto a greased baking sheet.

Combine sugar, syrup, water, butter or margarine and salt in large saucepan. Cook over low heat until syrup reaches the "crack" stage (280 - 290 degrees F.) Place warmed popped popcorn in large buttered bowl.

Pour syrup in a fine stream over popcorn. Stir just until kernels are evenly coated with syrup. Spoon popcorn onto waxed paper pattern and shape (with hands) into a bunny head. cool. Use colored pipe cleaners and shape as needed to make eyes, whiskers, mouth, carrot nose and to outline ears. Attach ribbon bow to chin to make necktie.

To stand upright, press into pins of a metal "frog" flower holder. If preferred, eyes may be made with slices of large gum drops or halves of jelly beans.

Serve Family Small Steaks At Breakfast

Start the day off right with a protein - packed breakfast steak which cooks faster than bacon! The hearty brown - and - pink of these lean, one-to-a-person steaks of boneless beef combine spectacularly with the luscious gold of French toast. Just prepare them with instant meat tenderizer to unlock tenderness and juiciness, brush lightly with oil and pop them into the waffle iron with the French toast — right at the table!

Even the breakfast skippers at your house will be back for seconds, and ready to start the day with proper protein nourishment to face the full day's activities. Doctors and dietitians have long told us that breakfast is the most important meal of the day, but we always seem a little too hurried to spend the time we should on preparing ourselves for the busy hours ahead at home, at work, or at school. The new look of breakfast steaks — combining old - fashioned goodness and nutrition with space - age speed and convenience — is the perfect remedy for this only-to-common and potentially dangerous situation.

Temptingly tender and juicy, breakfast steaks are tenderized and cooked with the French toast in less than 2½ minutes. Since both are prepared in the waffle iron right at the table, there are practically no cooking utensils to wash and clean-up time is reduced, too.

Breakfast steaks need not be a burden on the budget since they are cut from the less expensive boneless beef cuts.

Where breakfast steaks are not available already packaged, your meatman will be happy to cut them for you. A breakfast steak is nautrally smaller than a dinner portion — ¼ to ⅜ inch thick and weighing from 2½ to 3½ ounces. Recommended cuts are eye of round, top round, bottom round, heel of round, sirloin tip, rump or boneless shoulder (chuck).

BREAKFAST STEAK AND FRENCH TOAST
(Serves 4)

4 breakfast steaks.
Instant meat tenderizer, seasoned.

For French Toast

4 eggs
¼ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon sugar
¾ - 1 cup milk
8 slices bread (2-3 days old)

Prepare all surfaces of the meat, one side at a time, as follows:

1. Thoroughly moisten the meat with water — pat the water on from the faucet with your fingers or use a pastry brush or draw a wet fork across the surface; sprinkle instant meat tenderizer (seasoned) like salt, over the entire surface of the meat. Use no salt.

2. To insure penetration and retain meat juices, pierce meat deeply with a kitchen fork at approximately ½ - inch intervals. Meat is ready for cooking immediately.

3. Preheat waffle iron to its highest temperature.

4. In a shallow dish, beat eggs slightly; add salt, sugar and milk. Soak bread in mixture until soft.

5. Place 2 slices of softened bread in well seasoned waffle iron.

6. Brush 2 breakfast steaks with oil and place in other half of waffle iron. Cook 2½ minutes. Repeat steps 5 and 6 for 2 additoinal servings.

7. Serve one breakfast steak and one slice of toast to each person. Allow last 4 slices of bread to cook while eating breakfast steak and toast. Serve second slice of piping hot toast to each person.

Top with melted butter and serve to a delighted family with a choice of syrup or preserves and a half grapefruit with a bright red maraschino cherry garnish. Variations: butter the toast ever so lightly, hot off the waffle iron, and then sprinkle it with grated Cheddar or Parmesan cheese . . . or serve the toast with cranberry sauce or with applesauce stirred with cinnamon . . . or serve it "a la mode" with sour cream and fresh or frozen berries.

Black Market Flourishing In Colombia City

BOGOTA, Colombia (AP) — Business groups are demanding a crackdown on Bogota's sidewalk black market, flourishing in the city's downtown shopping district.

Hundreds of hucksters and their ragamuffin helpers do a handsome business in contraband. They sell such forbidden delights as Venezuelan sardines, California seedless raisins, English talcum powder and stick deodorants.

What imports can legally be sold in stores are sold cheaper on the Persian market—as it is called here. The reason is the products are brought into the country tax-free primarily from the duty free port of San Andres.

A package of American cigarettes, for example, costs 42 cents in the store. It sells for 32 cents on the sidewalk.

Customs officials estimate a business of $200 million was done in contraband in Colombia last year and cost the government 2½ million in taxes.

The market once had half of Bogota engaged in braiding multicolored plastic strips into totally useless plaits. The business in plastic was brisk while the fad lasted.

Bootblacks, with refuse handier than water, will put the finishing lick on a shoe shine by dabbing the shoe with a squeezed orange—or even a tomato.

Man Sentenced For Serving Term Of Friend

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Manfred Lehner, 24, was sentenced Wednesday to three months in jail for spending almost four months there.

A friend, Karl Kaspar, had been sentenced to four months last fall. He was given a few days to arrange his affairs before starting the term.

Lehner testified Kaspar was down-hearted about having to go to jail and, because he was such a good friend, he took pity on him.

So, Lehner reported to jail instead of Kaspar. He served almost the entire term before the switch was discovered.

Judge Denies Continuance In Moore's Trial

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Dist. Judge Fred S. Leblanc Wednesday denied a continuance in the April 10 trial of Ronnie Moore, Negro chapter chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality here.

Defense attorneys had asked a delay, saying essential witnesses in the case were in New York on business and would be unable to be in the state on April 10.

The court said the defense did not claim it could not have its witnesses here at that time.

Moore, a leader in the Dec. 15 mass anti-segregation demonstration of southern university students here, has pleaded innocent to charges of disturbing the peace through illegal use of a loudspeaker.

EDWIN A. WALKER, former Army general who was a witness Wednesday before a special Senate Armed Services Subcommittee, signs autographs in the hearing room as the Capitol Hill probe recessed for luncheon. Walker was relieved of his 24th Division command last year and admonished for his troop indoctrination program. Walker labeled himself as a "scapegoat" and lashed out at government officials in the investigation of charges that military leaders have been muzzled in speaking on anti-communist activities. Stock Prices Slide Lower For Session

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mid-afternoon profit-taking reversed an early upside pattern Wednesday to push the market lower for the fifth consecutive session.

Dow - Jones industrial average fell 3.72 while Standard & Poor's index of 500 stocks slipped 0.32. This marked the twelfth decline in the last 14 sessions for the industrial average and is the first time it has fallen below the 700 level since Jan. 30.

Trading, which fell behind the tickers in the final hours, totaled 3,290,000 shares compared with 3,350,000 Tuesday.

Wednesday's selloff could be detrimental to the market according to those analysts who feel that unless there is an immediate and strong rebound, a good deal of time may be needed to repair the damage.

Among the blue chips American Tobacco slipped 1⅞ despite higher earnings, Owens - Illinois a point and United Aircraft 1⅛.

In the steels, Republic lost ⅝ and Youngstown 1 while General Steel tacked on 2⅞. Parmelee Transportation rose 3¾ but General Motors dropped 1⅛ in the motors. Among the chemicals Union Carbide declined 2.

A total of 1,297 issues were traded Wednesday of which 669 declined and 352 advanced. Of these 54 fell to new 1962 lows and 27 rose to new highs.

The D-J rails dipped 0168 but rails held unchanged. In the latter, Norfolk & Western lost a point.

Chadbourn Gotham topped the most active list for the second consecutive day, down ⅜ on 136,900 shares. The company recently obtained a U.S. patent for a seamless and runproof stocking.

This was followed by Texas Gulf producing up ¾, Brunswick down 1, General Motors off 1⅛, and General Tire off 5½. Also on the most active list was Standard Oil of Jersey, down ⅝. An affiliate plans to build a $13 million refinery in Vietnam.

Prices on the American Exchange were lower on a turnover of 1,150,000 shares compared with 1,250,000 in the prior session. Featured on the AMEX was Simca, off 15⅞. The company has recently been involved in rumors of a three-way European merger. Elsewhere on the AMEX Aerojet General dropped 3, Paddington 2⅝ and Anken Chemical 1½.

GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP)—The grain futures market added another broad general advance to nearly all contracts Wednesday on the Board of Trade.

Gains ran to more than a cent a bushel in wheat, corn, rye and soybeans with most of them on the nearby months. Oats finished in a mixed range.

Trade volume probably was the heaviest in several days as the demand pulled in a good deal of stop loss buying after midday. Some profit taking developed shortly before the close but it was quickly absorbed and prices finished at or near their highs of the day in all pits.

Wheat ended ⅝-1¼ cents a bushel higher, May $2.09½-⅝; corn 1⅜ higher to ⅛ lower, May $1.15⅞-¾; oats ¼ higher to ⅝ lower, May 71-71⅛; rye 1-1⅝ higher, May $1.30⅝-⅞; soybeans ⅝-1⅛ higher, May $2.49⅜-½.

AIDS TIRE STRUCTURE

NEW YORK (UPI)—U.S. Tire Co., a subsidiary of U.S. Rubber Co., has announced development of a new chemical bonding agent for tires, which it claims greatly reduces ply and tread separations.

Man Sentenced For Serving Term Of Friend

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Manfred Lehner, 24, was sentenced Wednesday to three months in jail for spending almost four months there.

A friend, Karl Kaspar, had been sentenced to four months last fall. He was given a few days to arrange his affairs before starting the term.

Lehner testified Kaspar was down-hearted about having to go to jail and, because he was such a good friend, he took pity on him.

So, Lehner reported to jail instead of Kaspar. He served almost the entire term before the switch was discovered.

Judge Denies Continuance In Moore's Trial

BATON ROUGE (AP) —Dist. Judge Fred S. Leblanc Wednesday denied a continuance in the April 10 trial of Ronnie Moore, Negro chapter chairman of the Congress of Racial Equality here.

Defense attorneys had asked a delay, saying essential witnesses in the case were in New York on business and would be unable to be in the state on April 10.

The court said the defense did not claim it could not have its witnesses here at that time.

Moore, a leader in the Dec. 15 mass anti-segregation demonstration of southern university students here, has pleaded innocent to charges of disturbing the peace through illegal use of a loudspeaker.

EDWIN A. WALKER, former Army general who was a witness Wednesday before a special Senate Armed Services Subcommittee, signs autographs in the hearing room as the Capitol Hill probe recessed for luncheon. Walker was relieved of his 24th Division command last year and admonished for his troop indoctrination program. Walker labeled himself as a "scapecoat" and lashed out at government officials in the investigation of charges that military leaders have been muzzled in speaking on anti-communist activities. Stock Prices Slide Lower For Session

NEW YORK (UPI) — Mid-afternoon profit-taking reversed an early upside pattern Wednesday to push the market lower for the fifth consecutive session.

Dow - Jones industrial average fell 3.72 while Standard & Poor's index of 500 stocks slipped 0.32. This marked the twelfth decline in the last 14 sessions for the industrial average and is the first time it has fallen below the 700 level since Jan. 30.

Trading, which fell behind the tickers in the final hours, totaled 3,290,000 shares compared with 3,350,000 Tuesday.

Wednesday's selloff could be detrimental to the market according to those analysts who feel that unless there is an immediate and strong rebound, a good deal of time may be needed to repair the damage.

Among the blue chips American Tobacco slipped 1⅜ despite higher earnings, Owens - Illinois a point and United Aircraft 1⅛.

In the steels, Republic lost ⅝ and Youngstown 1 while General Steel tacked on 2⅜. Parmelee Transportation rose 3¾ but General Motors dropped 1⅛ in the motors. Among the chemicals Union Carbide declined 2.

A total of 1,297 issues were traded Wednesday of which 669 declined and 352 advanced. Of these 54 fell to new 1962 lows and 27 rose to new highs.

The D-J rails dipped 0168 but rails held unchanged. In the latter, Norfolk & Western lost a point.

Chadbourn Gotham topped the most active list for the second consecutive day, down ⅜ on 136,900 shares. The company recently obtained a U.S. patent for a seamless and runproof stocking.

This was followed by Texas Gulf producing up ¾, Brunswick down 1, General Motors off 1⅛, and General Tire off 5½. Also on the most active list was Standard Oil of Jersey, down ⅝. An affiliate plans to build a $13 million refinery in Vietnam.

Prices on the American Exchange were lower on a turnover of 1,150,000 shares compared with 1,250,000 in the prior session. Featured on the AMEX was Simca, off 15⅞. The company has been involved in rumors of a three-way European merger. Elsewhere on the AMEX Aerojet General dropped 3, Paddington 2⅝ and Anken Chemical 1½.

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE -- Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this sample A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

END THREE-DAY SWEEP

84 Rebels Slain By Vietnamese

CAO LANH, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Three thousand South Vietnamese troops Wednesday completed a three-day sweep against Communist rebels in this area 100 miles southwest of Saigon. They killed 84 rebels in one of the biggest actions in the seven-year guerrilla war.

But the air-supported troops of the South Vietnamese 7th infantry division failed to force the Viet Cong rebels into a decisive battle, and the operation thus fell short of government expectations.

Eighty of the rebels were killed in one air strike Monday night. The government troops had surrounded a group of Viet Cong rebels at twilight. Planes were called in to prevent the rebels from escaping during the night.

But in other engagements, the Viet Cong managed to slip through government lines to rebel-held territory on the Plain of Reeds, which adjoins the area of the sweep.

One of the main objectives of the action in Kien Phong province was to drive the rebels away from a road the government is building.

Lt. Col. Frank Clay, U.S. Army adviser to the 7th division and son of President Kennedy's Berlin representative, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, said the rebels have been harassing road construction camps.

Rebuilding of an old Japanese occupation road between Kieng Phong and Dinh Tuong provinces is vital to South Viet Nam's communications system, Clay said. The road will make it easier for the government to move troops across the provinces and save local farmers time in sending their produce to Saigon.

Farmers now must use canal and riverboat transportation to Saigon, and much of their produce spoils before it reaches the market.

Has Three Objectives

Division commander Col. Hyunh Van Cao said the other two objectives of the action are to determine if the 502nd Viet Cong battalion still is based in the Plain of Reeds area and to wipe out guerrilla pockets in Kien Phong.

Sketchy intelligence reports indicate the Viet Cong has scattered an estimated 300 men and they are slipping through government lines to safety by twos and threes.

One reason the government sweep failed to score more heavily against the rebels was a delay in setting up lines blockading the northern perimeter of the battle zones.

The delay was caused by the rebel closing of the Thap Moui Canal. By the time government forces dynamited the blocked areas of the canal and waited for high water to get their troop-carrying riverboats through, the rebels had a four-hour lead and were able to escape.

Women Urge Geneva Pact On Disarming

GENEVA (UPI) — Ninety women from the United States, Russia, and eight other nations Wednesday held an unprecedented meeting with top American and Soviet disarmament negotiators and urged them to find agreement and abandon "out of date ideas" on security.

The women, members of the "Women Strike for Peace" movement, marched through the streets of Geneva to the Palais des Nations, were 17 nations are trying to draft a disarmament treaty under the co-chairmanship of the United States and the Soviet Union.

A United Nations regulation was broken for the first time and the women, most of them mothers or grandmothers, were admitted to the conference building.

Mrs. Dagmar Wilson of Washington, D.C., founder of the movement and leader of the 51 American women taking part in the march, handed the co-chairmen, Arthur H. Dean of the United States and Valerian A. Zorin of Russia, bundles of petitions containing 50,000 signatures.

They called for a halt to nuclear testing and agreement on "genuine disarmament."

Mrs. Wilson referred to Dean and Zorin as "two fathers" and told them:

"You are constantly concerned with national security, national sovereignty, national prestige, and all these out-of-date ideas must be abandoned in a nuclear age when the security of one is the security of all."

The American women arrived here Monday and held separate meetings with Dean Monday and Zorin Tuesday. They were joined Tuesday by groups from the Soviet Union, Britain, France, Switzerland, West Germany, Sweden, Norway, Canada, and Austria.

Among the American group are Mrs. Martin Luther King, wife of the Negro integrationist leader, and Mrs. Cyrus S. Eaton, whose Cleveland industrialist husband has exchanged visits with Soviet Premier Nikita S. Khrushchev.

WANT-AD WONDERS

Want Ad Advertised Tea In 1658

The interesting history of tea has been successfully traced back to an ad published by the Ineravious Politicus, September 30, 1658.

That excellent and by all Physitian approved China drink, called by the Chineans, Tcha, by other nations Tay alias Tee, is sold at the Sultaness Head Cophee House, in Sweeting's Rents, by the Royal Exchange, London.

This was the beginning of what was to become the national drink of England and has been so ever since.

END THREE-DAY SWEEP

84 Rebels Slain By Vietnamese

CAO LANH, South Viet Nam (UPI)—Three thousand South Vietnamese troops Wednesday completed a three-day sweep against Communist rebels in this area 100 miles southwest of Saigon. They killed 84 rebels in one of the biggest actions in the seven-year guerrilla war.

But the air-supported troops of the South Vietnamese 7th infantry division failed to force the Viet Cong rebels into a decisive battle, and the operation thus fell short of government expectations.

Eighty of the rebels were killed in one air strike Monday night. The government troops had surrounded a group of Viet Cong rebels at twilight. Planes were called in to prevent the rebels from escaping during the night.

But in other engagements, the Viet Cong managed to slip through government lines to rebel-held territory on the Plain of Reeds, which adjoins the area of the sweep.

One of the main objectives of the action in Kien Phong province was to drive the rebels away from a road the government is building.

Lt. Col. Frank Clay, U.S. Army, adviser to the 7th division and son of President Kennedy's Berlin representative, Gen. Lucius D. Clay, said the rebels have been harassing road construction camps.

Rebuilding of an old Japanese occupation road between Kieng Phong and Dinh Tuong provinces is vital to South Viet Nam's communications system, Clay said. The road will make it easier for the government to move troops across the provinces and save local farmers time in sending their produce to Saigon.

Farmers now must use canal and riverboat transportation to Saigon, and much of their produce spoils before it reaches the market.

Has Three Objectives

Division commander Col. Hyunh Van Cao said the other two objectives of the action are to determine if the 502nd Viet Cong battalion still is based in the Plain of Reeds area and to wipe out guerrilla pockets in Kien Phong.

Sketchy intelligence reports indicate the Viet Cong has scattered an estimated 300 men and they are slipping through government lines to safety by twos and threes.

One reason the government sweep failed to score more heavily against the rebels was a delay in setting up lines blockading the northern perimeter of the battle zones.

The delay was caused by the rebel closing of the Thap Moui Canal. By the time government forces dynamited the blocked areas of the canal and waited for high water to get their troop-carrying riverboats through, the rebels had a four-hour lead and were able to escape.

Women Urge Geneva Pact On Disarming

GENEVA (UPI) — Ninety women from the United States, Russia, and eight other nations Wednesday held an unprecedented meeting with top American and Soviet disarmament negotiators and urged them to find agreement and abandon "out of date ideas" on security.

The women, members of the "Women Strike for Peace" movement, marched through the streets of Geneva to the Palais des Nations, were 17 nations are trying to draft a disarmament treaty under the co-chairmanship of the United States and the Soviet Union.

A United Nations regulation was broken for the first time and the women, most of them mothers or grandmothers, were admitted to the conference building.

Mrs. Dagmar Wilson of Washington, D.C., founder of the movement and leader of the 51 American women taking part in the march, handed the co-chairmen, Arthur H. Dean of the United States and Valerian A. Zorin of Russia, bundles of petitions containing 50,000 signatures.

They called for a halt to nuclear testing and agreement on "genuine disarmament."

Mrs. Wilson referred to Dean and Zorin as "two fathers" and told them:

"You are constantly concerned with national security, national sovereignty, national prestige, and all these out-of-date ideas must be abandoned in a nuclear age when the security of one is the security of all."

The American women arrived here Monday and held separate meetings with Dean Monday and Zorin Tuesday. They were joined Tuesday by groups from the Soviet Union, Britain, France, Switzerland, West Germany, Sweden, Norway, Canada, and Austria.

Want Ad Advertised Tea In 1658

The interesting history of tea has been successfully traced back to an ad published by the Ineravious Politicus, September 30, 1658.

That excellent and by all Physician approved China drink, called by the Chineons, Tcha, by other nations Tay alias Tee, is sold at the Sultaness Head Cophee House, in Sweeting's Rents, by the Royal Exchange, London.

This was the beginning of what was to become the national drink of England and has been so ever since.

State Pupil Law Ruling Explained

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — The sweeping school integration order handed down Tuesday by U.S. District Judge J. Skelly Wright did not rule on the constitutionality of the pupil placement law itself, some lawyers pointed out Wednesday.

What it did do was rule unconstitutional its application in the New Orleans case, thereby throwing out the law in New Orleans until circumstances are changed.

Judge Wright ruled this:

(1) The pupil placement law is unconstitutional if applied in a city which operates a dual or segregated school system.

(2) The transfer test provision of the law is unconstitutional if the tests are not given to all transfer students.

He wrote:

"The failure to test all pupils is the constitutional vice in the board's (Orleans Parish School Board) testing program. However valid a pupil placement act may be on its face, it may not be selectively applied.

"Moreover, where a school sysem is segregated, there is no constitutional basis whatever for using a pupil placement law. A pupil placement law may only be validly applied in an integrated school system, and then only where no consideration is based on race."

This could mean by extension that no Louisiana city may use the state's pupil placement law since they all maintain segregated school systems. If they switched to a satisfactory integrated system, it appears, the pupil placement law could, at least theoretically, be applied legally.

Hospital Patients Spurn Modern Art

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Art choices of sick people, the vulnerable months in the womb, and the decreasing death rates from appendicitis are subjects for Focus on Health:

The Bedside Critic

So you're sick in bed, and they show you 30 paintings and ask you which you'd like to hang in your hospital room.

A jury of hospitalized patients at the University of Michigan was asked just that. Members turned thumbs down on most of the candidates from the modern art field, and chose instead quiet, sentimental paintings of landscapes, seascapes and wildlife.

Time of Danger

The first three months in the womb—the time of rapid development from a few cells to an embryo — are among the most critical for the unborn. Researchers know that deformities often occur when the mother is struck by a vrius disease like measles during this period.

Now comes word that the early stages of pregnancy are the time that unborn animals are most susceptible to death or damage from X rays and other ionizing radiation as well.

So far it has not been proven that radiation damages human embryos, Dr. Robert Rugh of Columbia University reported to the American Radium Society. But, he warned, radiation can harm, even kill, embryo rats—and these findings indicate that care should be taken in using X rays on newly pregnant women.

Appendicitis

Fewer people are dying from appendicitis, thanks to antibiotics to control infections, and better surgery and diagnosis. The death rate has fallen to one 1000,000 Americans.

But it doesn't mean that fewer people are getting appendicitis. In one year alone, 417,000 Americans fell ill to the disease. Ninety per cent underwent operations. In all, these appendicitis victims spent 2,709,000 days in hospitals, say statisticians from the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

Trouble Chart

Pediatricians now have available a first aid chart for parents, the American Academy of Pediatrics reports.

The free chart has data on bruises, scrapes, cuts, punctures, slivers, bites and stings, burns and scalds, fractures, sprains and eye injuries. It also tells what to do first for nose bleeds, fainting, convulsions, head injuries, poisoning, and choking. The chart is designed for hanging in a bathroom or kitchen.

The Nose Knows

Scientists, searching for a way to measure and detect bad breath, decided that no man-made device was as good at detecting odor as the nose.

The study showed, however, that volatile sulphur compounds are the odor-causing elements in saliva, for instance hydrogen sulfide which has the smell of rotten eggs.

NOT TO FIGHT

TOKYO (UPI) — Gen. Lyman L. Lemnitzer, chairman of the U.S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, emphasized Wednesday that American military personnel in South Viet Nam "are not there to engage in combat." He said their mission is to "advise, train and offer assistance to the South Vietnamese," not to fight.

New Regime Maps Plans For Algeria

TUNIS (AP)—The Algerian nationalist government in exile is drawing up plans for a mass return of its supporters to Algeria before the crucial self-determination referendum.

The project now under study by nationalist ministers calls for the return of 10,000 Algerian civil servants from Morocco, Tunisia and the United Arab Republic and the establishment of nationalist politicians hold key positions in the country before legislative elections take place.

In principle, an all-Algerian vote to elect a Parliament and name a government should follow self-determination within several months.

At this stage, no Algerian nationalist doubts that the self-determination referendum later this year will result in independence. Most Algerian politicians here are Most Algerian politicans her eare already preoccupied with the problems connected with independence and with consolidation of their power in a new Algeria.

Many agree that the birth of the new nation will be extremely painful and marked by internal clashes.

"The hardset year of our struggle is ahead," somberly said a nationalist minister.

The main preoccupation of the provisional Algerian government, based in the Tunisian capital for the past 3½ years, is to win control of Algeria after independence.

The nationalist regime is well equipped to face this task. It has a well-developed administrative apparatus and is backed by a tough and disciplined army of 40,000 men based in Tunisia and Morrocco.

Yet there are some dissensions and personality clashed within the rebel regime which eventually could become more damatic.

In addition, a sizeable part of the rebel setup inside Algeria appears opposed to a sweeping takeover of the country by the "Emigres"—their name for the Algerian nationalist who left the country to conduct the rebellion from the outside.

For the time being, the nationalist officials here believe their takeover of the country will not encounter serious obstacles. They intend to make sure of this by bringing into Algeria as soon as possible all Algerian nationalists who have been working in the Moroccan, and Tunisian administrations as well as those residing in other Arab nations.

The rebel army is to come in last—after independence—and is to represent the main force of the nationalist regime.

Senators Told Of Profits On Nike Missile Contracts

By GARDNER L. BRIDGE

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate investigators were told Wednesday the Douglas Aircraft Co. collected $45.58 million in profits on a series of Nike missile system contracts after turning over much of the work to subcontractors.

Robert E. Dunne, a Senate staff investigator, also told how the government was charged for $11.47 million profit on a fleet of missile base trailers that cost subcontractor $46.8 million to build.

"It may be legitimate, I don't know," Sen. John L. McClellan, D-Ark., said. "There may well be some explanation for it."

McClellan is chairman of the Senate subcommittee which is inquiring into the system under which a contractor agrees to take on a government missile project, and then assigns all or part of the work to subcontractors, with each subcontractor's fees and profits added to the final bill.

Dunne placed in evidence a chart listing 17 Nike missile system contracts he said Douglas received from the Western Electric Co., the chief contractor, between 1952-61.

The contracts cost the government a total of $598.96 million, Dunne said, of which $45.58 million represented Douglas profit although 82.8 per cent of the actual work was done by others.

Dunne testified that Douglas profit as computed against the over-all $598.96-million total averaged 7.6 per cent on the 17 contracts. But when measured against the amount of work done in Douglas plants, he said, the company's profit figured out to the equivalent of 44.3 per cent, ranging from 18.3 per cent on one contract to 200 per cent on another.

Dunne said he was not sure whether all of the contracts had been reviewed by the Pentagon's contract renegotiation board, whose job it is to pare down any excessive profits in defense jobs. Officials of the board are to be questioned later.

Another chart produced by Dunne indicated that Western Electric, as the chief contractor, had received profits totaling $53.16 millin on $952.74 million of production, research and development work it farmed out to Douglas.

McClellan said he questioned whether it was necessary for Western Electric to go through Douglas, as he put it, instead of placing orders directly with the firms that did the actual work on some subcontracts.

But, he said, if it was necessary because of engineering and other services supplied by Douglas, that would raise a question of what Western Eelectric did to earn the profits it charged for work done by others.

Town Council Votes Against Dating Probe

DUNOON, Scotland (AP)—The town council has rejected a demand by two of its members to investigate the dating by local teen-age girls of sailors from the U.S. ship Proteus.

The Proteus, an atomic submarine tender, came to Dunoon on the Holy Loch in March last year.

Miss Anne Melville, a council member, claimed Wednesday the morals of the Dunoon lassies had deteriorated since the Polaris submarine base began operating in the Holy Loch.

And Councilor Hugh Christie was of the same opinion. He called for an inquiry by the town's magistrates into the dating of school girls by American sailors.

"If school girls are fraternizing with sailors, it appears to me to be the responsibility of the parents," he said.

The council agreed it was none of its business.

"All this talk about American sailors and school girls has done nothing but give this town harmful publicity," said James Marshall, another city father.

Former Resident Dies In Houston; Rites Set Today

Mrs. Dorothy Blacketer, 43, former resident of Monroe, died April 3 in Houston, Texas, friends here learned yesterday.

Mrs. Blacketer was the wife of R. C. Blacketer, general freight agent for the Arkansss & Louisiana Missouri Railway Company.

While in Monroe, Mrs. Blacketer was employed as a secretary by the Monroe Hardware Company. She was also a member of St. Paul's Methodist Church where she was superintendent of the primary department and a Sunday School teacher.

Funeral services will be held at 10 a.m. Thursday at Houston.

Gremillion Urges State Industry Aid

BATON ROUGE (AP) — Atty. Gen. Jack Gremillion said Wednesday Louisiana government should be put into its proper perspective — where it can nurture and be a positive help in development of industry.

"We must be progressive thinkers as leaders," Gremillion told the annual convention of the Louisiana State Labor Council, AFL-CIO, here.

Gremillion suggested as a possible government move the creation of a reserve fund to guarantee loans to small plants for greater development of diversified industries.

He was throwing the idea out to see if it had merit, he said, adding, "it may be that we need more work in a local level to encourage industry throughout the state."

"There is a need," he said, "for diversified, small manufacturing or industrial plants in our state. Sometimes, these plants need a spur in order to get proper financing and to show a profit."

Under his proposal, any new industry wanting to locate in Louisiana first would have to get a loan from private sources. Then, if it could qualify under state regulations, the loan would be guaranteed by the state.

Richard J. Murphy, assistant U.S. postmaster general, said President Kennedy's proposed pay raise for federal workers would put them on a par with workers in private industry.

For the first time in many a year, Murphy said, the Post Office Department is offering support for — rather than opposition to — a federal employes' pay raise which was one of the largest ever proposed.
